Holden cadets enjoy weekend

Lake Vincent was the scene of a recent "family camp" outing when members of the Holden RCSCC were joined by their families for a fun weekend in July.

Sailing and boating were the main activities, and the weather cooperated nicely, so that each cadet and some family members gained some sailing experience during the weekend.

The camp activities were supervised by Capt. D. Cooper of Holden and Lt. William Taylor of Viking, and the cadets performed as ably in the kitchen as they did in the

The Holden Sea Cadet Corps presently has two sailboats and the cadets are gaining valuable sailing experience on each weekend camp they attend. As well the cadets have the opportunity to attend summer camps at various locations across Canada, where more intensive seamanship training is provided.

The Holden Sea Cadet Corps hopes to enter one or two crews in the sailing regattas to be held at Cold Lake on the August 20th weekend, and also in the latter part of Sep-

"Did I say that last winter?"

Restricted information

It has taken a long time for Canadians to become even more than slightly aware of the problem caused in this country by the refusal of government offices to divulge great masses of the information it collects, on the basis that revealing it might not be in the nation's best interest, or that it might be injurious to the interests of some individual or group, or for whatever other reason.

More often, one suspects, the main reason is that it might be injurious to the calm and peaceful life of the people gathering the information.

Secretary of State Roberts' recent introduction of a green paper to the House of Commons has finally brought the matter to this level, though it is doubtful if anything will come of this for at least another whole government, unless possibly public pressure becomes more demanding.

The carrot

A statement by the Hon. Andre Ouellet on his program of granting up to $350 assistance for home owners adding insulation to their homes came to hand recently, and it reminded us of the criticism endured by Premier Lougheed and his government over the matter.

Mr. Ouellet, it may be remembered, offered the insulation grant to each of the provinces, on condition that they accept four conditions which he attached, ranging from adoption of an insulation policy at least as strict as that of the National Housing Act, to insistence that they reduce the speed limit to fifty miles per hour maximum under any circumstances.

Like several other provinces, Alberta refused to be stampeded into acceptance, and thus drew the wrath, to our surprise, of NDP Leader Grant Notley and also of the National Farmers' Union, which found the policy much along the lines they themselves had proposed.

Mr. Notley's opposition dismayed us, because it smacks of pure political partisanship. Both he and the Union completely ignore the matter of principle involved, in Ottawa dangling a carrot in front of the provinces, rather than having either matter stand on its own. To reduce the speed limit for safety reasons, for gasoline economy, or some engineering reason might make good sense.

But to accept it as a bribe to gain an insulation grant completely ignores the basic principle involved, and we find Mr. Notley's lack of interest in principle dismaying, to say the least. We had looked for better performance from both him and the Union.

To argue that Ottawa should bribe us with our own money, surely, is the height of irresponsibility.

Interest grows in balcony gardening

The interest in balcony gardening is growing every year with the increasing number of people who live in apartment buildings.

Apartment dwellers are using flower pots, hanging baskets, planters, window boxes and wooden tubs to grow annual flowers, vegetables and even shrubs on their balconies. The best containers are those made of a porous material like clay or wood, and that provide good drainage but plastic containers can also be used.

Flower pots six to 10 inches in diameter can be used to grow radishes, lettuce, chives, parsley and a large variety of herbs. Planters, window boxes and wooden tubs make good containers for such things as tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, green beans, spinach and strawberries.

The varieties of annual flowers that can be grown in a balcony garden are almost unlimited if the balcony has a southern exposure and is protected from prevailing winds. Balconies facing north are really suitable only for foliage plants because all plants that bloom require some sunshine. Most vegetables also require some sun, but things like lettuce, chives, parsley and herbs will usually grow reasonably well on the north side of a building.

Some balcony gardeners have successfully grown dwarf evergreens like pines and junipers. They are usually brought inside for the winter, but some have been successfully wintered outside, even in our northern climate, when they were given a thorough watering just before freeze-up and protected from the wind.

Because of the limited amount of soil in any plant container, it is necessary to use more fertilizer than would be the case in a flowerbed or vegetable garden. A fertilizer such as 20-20-20 or a slow release fertilizer in either powder or pellet form are suitable for use in balcony gardens. Frequent (four to six weeks apart) light applications are better than one heavy application at planting time because of the danger of burning the plants' roots.

The small volume of soil in most plant containers used on a balcony make it necessary to water the plants more often than would be necessary in a garden. They should be given enough water at each watering to allow the water to run out of the bottom of the container.

A mixture of topsoil and peat moss with 20 to 25 per cent sand or vermiculite makes a good growing medium for plants grown in containers. The sand prevents the soil from becoming so tightly packed that it prevents water and oxygen from reaching the plant's roots.

Since knowledge about what can, and what cannot, be grown in a balcony garden is still limited, anyone who has had particular success with this type of gardening in a northern climate, or who has grown unusual types of plants this way, is invited to write to P.D. McCalla, Horticultural Branch, Agriculture Building, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T5K 2C3.

THE HOTTER, THE BETTER

Canada's overseas markets like our mustard - - the hotter, the better. At Agriculture Canada's Saskatoon, Sask., Research Station, Drs Keith Downey and Dan Woods have developed a new variety of oriental mustard seed that has the features wanted by foreign buyers. Called Duma, which means thank you in Japanese, the new variety has the desired "hotness" wanted by the trade.

It's also at least 10 per cent higher yielding than the variety now grown (Lethbridge 22A) is more resistant to lodging and has good seed shape and color.

Oriental mustard is produced on 25 per cent of the 200,000 acres of mustard grown annually in Canada.

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — There's considerable anger in opposition ranks about government actions and intentions in the field of international nuclear sales. The concern centers around the possibility of Canadian uranium winding up in somebody's bomb.

Canada was burned badly in 1974 when India exploded a nuclear device made with Canadian technology and parity with Canadian exported fuel. The government avowed publicly to construct the safest standards for safeguarding future nuclear sales in the world.

As a result our uranium sales to many customer countries were suspended early this year, causing particular concern in West Germany. Uranium sales to Germany prevented a particular problem because under the European Economic Community's nuclear agreement, technology and all materials must be freely exchanged between member nations. Canada might well be satisfied with West Germany's provisions for safeguards, but she isn't satisfied with the French attitude.

The new Canadian requirements demand that Canadian nuclear equipment, fuel, and technology must be monitored by Canada no matter where they go, and the French will have no part of that. The situation would leave Germany high and dry for uranium to run her reactors coming close to causing an energy crisis, and certainly stalling the reactor construction program.

The result of West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's visit to Ottawa in July put Canada back in line for minimum shipments to West Germany, but without the safeguards which were touted as so necessary by the government only a few months ago.

The International Atomic Energy Agency is mounting a study which will take likely for two years, on nuclear fuel and fuel recycling. Canada will agree to resume interim shipments of uranium to West Germany, pending the outcome of that study. The opposition is crying "foul" while uranium stocks climb on the market.

There's no question that the cut-off of uranium sales early this year hurt Canada economically, but are we really ready to sell nuclear fuel, which can be reprocessed into weapons without the safeguards considered necessary? If Canada was concerned enough to cut off sales in January, why is she now ready to resume sales under the old terms for another two years?

James 2:14. What doth it profit my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? — In the second chapter of his epistle James declares that true faith is demonstrated by good works. He says it is worthless to tell a fellow-believer who is hungry and destitute "depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled," and then gave him no assistance. It's not enough to feel sorry for him, we must back up what we say with thoughtful, helpful deeds.

Dr. DeHaan once wrote, "what a poor, naked hungry brother requires is food and clothing." Reading Scripture to him will not clothe him. Speaking kind words will not feed and warm him. If you are in a position to furnish what is required, don't shirk your duty by saying, "I'll pray for you, I'm sure God will supply you need." Many who are suffering both physically and spiritually need the help and encouragement your faith and Christ honoring good works can provide.

Hobo week started out with a variety of junk crafts such as rag-rug braiding made from baby food jars, containers covered with rolled up sets of newspaper, pictures, and on Friday a special craft called Tie-dye. The kids made very creative tie-dye T-shirts, wall hangings, etc.

On Wednesday, Rev Dave Meddle thrilled the children with a sing-song which the kids enjoyed a lot. We'd like to send a big thanks to Rev Meddle for spending his time and talents with us.

Our special event for the week was a hobo supper and campout held at Allan Warner's farm on Thursday evening. The attendance was quite low but fun was had by all. The supper consisted of canned food such as stew, potatoes, ravioli, etc., all mixed into one pot. Although it didn't look appetizing the stew was put away in these starving tummies.

Today (Thursday) the playgrounds throughout the county are holding the 1977 Beaver Summer Games in Ryley.

There is still another week left, full of fun, maybe your children would like to come down and enjoy our last week with us.

For further information contact Lynn 403-3131 or Donna - 403-3458.

By crossing a radish and a rape (a European herb of the mustard family, as is the radish) whose seeds hold rape oil and serve as feed, a Scottish researcher has come up with what could prove to be a cheap new feed for cattle and sheep, and maybe for hogs too. What's it called? A ravish, of course!

Senior Citizens

65 senior citizens of our county spent Monday touring the Alberta Game Farm and the Queen Elizabeth Planetarium. Be watching next week's Mercury for details of the trip.

I'm sorry I had to turn some seniors down because of limited space. Perhaps a third bus will be necessary next time.

[illegible]

This year our playground leaders are really challenging themselves! They have planned a county meet for all playground children on Thursday (today).

Attended for last week:

CAMP CHATTER

Here is Homer's weekly letter of August 1-4

Beaus Gardens

Had plenty of wind and cold winds. The boys last week enjoyed painting up like Indian tribes and doing ceremonial dances.

Watching them go through the obstacle course was quite interesting - walking through boxes, swinging on ropes, jumping over logs.

They built huts in the bush out of trees, grass, and mud. You might get a little wet if you tried sleeping in one though. And they really liked playing in the tire tube in the water or making land forts.

Had a close call with that trap.

Your cousin,
Homer

Homer had one more letter written before he was strang led in a mousetrap hold. In his will, he asked that I take over his newspaper column.

Dear Gomer

The playground kids from across the county came to visit the camp. Seems like all they wanted to do was go swimming - even if it was raining.

Most days were too rough and windy for canoeing.

Bumping into bones all over the kitchen as the camp staff has begun packing.

So long
Cousin Homer

Progressive Farming

Late summer or early fall, before the actual feeding season starts, is the best time to test the new crop of farm grown feeds for its nutritional value. Alberta Agriculture's Soil and Feed Testing Laboratory analyses farmers' feeds to enable livestock men to make best use of the feeds available to them. The cost for the farmer is minimal but the benefits of knowing the feed's nutrient content are great.

In order for the laboratory to be able to proceed correctly the farmer has to follow the suggested sampling methods. Sample boxes, information sheets and a core sampling tool for roughages are available from our office.

Samples should always be taken before the feeding period begins in order a feed formulation which adequately meets the needs of the animals to be fed. Feed testing allows for the best use of the available feed. The farmer will learn what supplements are necessary and at what level the supplementation should be. Underfeeding livestock will limit their production and overfeeding livestock is a waste of feed.

Each type of feed to be tested in the ration should be sampled and analysed separately. Different forage species, mixtures or cuttings should be sampled individually because they all differ in nutrient content. Make always sure that the submitted samples are thoroughly representative. If the samples are not representative, the testing results may be misleading and consequently of little value. In sampling try to avoid the loss of leaves. Take roughage samples from several bales or places in the stack. Fifteen to twenty samples should be taken from a large bale, stack or side. All the samples of one type of feed should be mixed thoroughly but never dried before sending them in. Silage samples may be frozen before being submitted.

The general analysis cost is $2.00 per sample. This analysis measures the moisture content, pH (acidity of silage materials). As fermentation takes place the pH of silage should drop from 7 to 4.0 - 4.5. In general the lower the pH the better the silage. If further analyses the crude protein content of the feed and the amount of calcium and phosphorus. Calcium and phosphorus deficiency symptoms include rickets, weakness of bones, reproductive problems and poor performance. The fibre content of roughages is also determined. Roughages containing low levels of fibre are generally higher in digestible energy than roughages containing high levels of fibre. The nitrate content is tested to detect toxic amounts of Nitrates may accumulate in cereal hay or straw, flax straw and rape straw. Abnormal growing conditions such as frost or cold,

Health Unit conducts survey about children

A survey by the Family Living Department of the Vegreville Health Unit has recently been conducted in the Vegreville-Lavoy area, in hope of identifying the needs of school children as perceived by the parents.

Forty-eight people agreed to participate in this survey. Each respondant was a parent of a pre-school youngster. The respondants were asked to go over a list of family living education topics and pick the ones they felt were worthy of their child's future school time. They were also asked to indicate which school grades they felt each topic could be discussed. The results of this survey proved interesting.

The majority of the people apparently felt that most of the topics on the list were worthy of school presentation. Among the topics on the list were nutrition and disease, future dating and marriage, saving money and shopping wisely, human sexuality, and legal and non legal drug use. Old age and death was the one topic area which was not popular with many of the parents.

There was less consensus on what grades the various topics should be discussed. The results were, however, quite informative and will serve to help develop the program.

More than half of those participating in the survey made additional comments. These comments frequently consisted of such suggestions as what topics to put emphasis on, how to combine certain topics, program content, and other suggestion for program development. All comments received were very much appreciated. Indeed, all respondants are to be thanked for their kindness and interest.

The results of this survey will be used to help maintain a comprehensive program which can be offered to the schools. There is presently a resource center located at the Vegreville Health Unit which is a result of the Family Living Program. The resource center consists of, a library complete with an assortment of audio-visual aids. Material contained in the center is now available to groups and individuals on a lending basis.

Further information can now be obtained by either phoning or visiting the Family Living Department at the Vegreville Health Unit.

Progressive Farming

Beware of Grain Beetles

The prevention of beetle and other insect infestations, and spoiled grain, should start before the grain is harvested.

Alberta Agriculture's entomologist and pest control specialist, Michael Dolinski, urges farmers to take precautions now to prevent costly insect infestations this winter in their stored grain. "These precautions," he says, "are particularly important for grain growers south of Lethbridge, where widespread grain-beetle infestations occurred last winter. Chances are there are beetles in many empty and partially empty bins and even in bins that were fumigated early last spring." The beetles are usually found in crevices and among the sweepings inside the bin and split grain outside.

Grain beetles move from one location to another during warm weather. Then lay eggs and start a new infestation. "It can take only one beetle infested bin to start infestations in bins for several miles around," says Mr. Dolinski.

He points out that, in addition to destroying grain in the bin, by causing it to heat, grain beetles make grain unsalable. "It is against the law," he says "to deliver beetle-infested grain to an elevator."

Following is a list of the precautions that should be taken every year to prevent beetle infestations. According to Mr. Dolinski, most of the owners of the infested grain he inspected last winter had not taken these precautions.

Clean repair and waterproof empty bins and burn or bury infested sweepings.

Remove waste grain that has accumulated inside or outside bins.

Spray the walls and floor of empty bins with one per cent Malathion, 0.1 per cent of Pyrethrin or one per cent Bioresmpbos.

Harvest the grain as dry as possible. Insects, mites and molds increase rapidly in tough grain.

Never bin new grain in a bin that contains old grain.

Fill bin only to top plates to allow the heat and moisture that normally develops to dissipate.

Examine grain every two weeks by pushing your hand under the surface at various points to see if it is warm and crusted. If you suspect a problem, insert a metal rod into the grain at various depths to test for warmth and crusting.

Mr. Dolinski says farmers who had a serious beetle problem last year and those who plan to store their grain for a year or more in an area that was heavily infested last year, might be wise to treat their grain as it is being augered into the bin with Malathion (liquid or dust). It can be obtained from Oliver Industries Ltd in Lethbridge, Calgary or Edmonton and from Kem-san in Edmonton.

Hastings Lake news

At the Community Association meeting on Monday evening, details of the 25th anniversary celebrations were discussed, and it was planned to hold a monster barbecue, at a cost of $3 per head, and it is hoped that all new and old neighbours will get together on the day, September 10th. A dance will follow in the evening.

The County Fair will take place this Saturday, at the Putnam Sports complex, and we hope you will all take a look in and admire the Hastings Lake entry, put together by the efforts of Vince and Roberta Bates.

On holiday last week were Cindy Rabby, visiting friends in Washington, D.C., and the Jurgens family, who were staying on Vancouver Island.

A mistake in reporting last week mentioned the Pony Club meeting on Friday evenings, but the day has been changed to Tuesdays, at the Rabbys' arena as usual.

Erik Fenna returned home on Monday after a week of canoeing and biking in Jasper National Park, but was not among those who talked to Mr Trudeau on the Skytrain.

cloudy weather may lead to high nitrate contents If high levels of nitrates are consumed by an animal they may decrease performance, or in extreme cases, cause death

A special analysis is performed for an additional charge of $1.00 per sample Analysed are the carotene contents of feed (provitamin A) Carotene is found in green roughages If it is present in an adequate amount, vitamin A supplementation should not be necessary But since the availability of carotene to the animal may sometimes be in question, vitamin A supplementation is usually recommended even when the carotene level appears to be adequate Symptoms of vitamin A deficiency include nervous incoordination, night blindness, bling or eyeless calves at birth and low weight gains Prussic acid content is also tested Prussic acid can be existent in lethal amounts in flax or sorghum hay Moreover crude fat and ash content are also tested

For an additional $2 00 charge a special mineral analysis will be performed which will establish the content of such minerals as selenium etc

With the feed quality known after sampling and analysing a ration formulation advisory service can be given to enable the farmer to achieve the fastest and largest gains at the least cost Feed formulation is available for swine, beef cattle sheep and dairy cattle Jim MacKay P Ag

"HUMAN RIGHTS"(???)

Dear Canadians,

What is happening to those great documents of American freedom - - - the very foundation of our country - - - the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights? Not only is there dictatorship rule in American Judicial System, but one of the most cruel, and inhumane acts ever used in all mankind, the Habitual Criminal Law. What crime have we committed to have judgment passed on our poor misguided souls? Saying we're not fit to live among society anymore !!!!!

Now the Habitual Criminal Statute, court records, prison records will show that Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, Texas and 26 other states are violating the 8th and 14th Amendments by letting one person, the prosecutor, use despotic dictatorship rule and pick and choose who to try as habitual criminals.

(Since the statute is used randomly and vindictively by prosecutors without guidelines or standards, constitutes Cruel and unusual Punishment The Eighth Amendment prohibits Cruel and Unusual Punishment and incorporates the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment and requires that punishments be handed out uniformly)

In America, all citizens are created equal, governed and judged by the same laws "Our Great American Heritage"

On behalf of Americas' founding fathers and all Americans past and present who have gave their sweat, blood, limbs, very lives and "Sacred Honor", for these documents - - - I would like to issue a challenge to anyone in the "Whole United States Judicial System" to deny these allegations publicly.

Truth Conquers All Things !!!

Sincerely,
Thomas Joseph Smith Jr

Bardo ball team has a "colorful" history

by Leonard Stauffer

When the Alberta Baseball Association held its first Twilite Division Provincial Championship playoffs at Stony Plain last weekend, it was only fitting that one of the teams entered was from Bardo.

This small rural community south of Tofield, has had a baseball team which is probably one of the oldest continuously operating teams in Alberta.

It was first organized in 1908 and has operated every year since.

In 1910 the teacher in the Bardo district was Mr. Marr. He along with John A. Johnson organized a baseball team complete with uniforms. Mr. Marr was manager and John A. Johnson was the coach.

Down through the years a great number of players have performed for the Bardo athletes, as they are now called

Some of the families that have contributed quite a number of players to the team are Anderson, Steen, Foshaug, Rude, Fineeth, Kindley, Larbekmo, Johnson, Lampit, Stauffin, Erickson and Mines.

At first the team operated as an independent club However in 1930, the Bardo Athletic Association was formed to sponsor all recreational activities in the community and has since sponsored the club.

Although they have never become famous for their playing ability, they have most always had a competitive club and have had their moments of triumph as well as defeat.

They were an original member of the Powerline Baseball League when it was formed in 1932 and have been in it every year since. They have been league champions several times.

How does a small rural community keep a team going so long, being able to compete against much larger centers?

One reason is the fact the community really likes baseball There has also been those who are willing to give of their time to keep it going, but possibly the best reason is the fact that most of the players are out for recreation and fun first, and winning although important is kept in its proper place.

They have also played their own local boys so that anyone who wished to play ball was given a fair chance to play

How much longer they will be able to continue is anyones guess, but, as long as it continues to be operated fairly, they will keep on "playing ball" in Bardo.

Normal School class reunion of 45 years

An event of unusual interest took place at the Crystal Springs Motor Motel in Camrose on the evening of June 10th and the following day when 88 people gathered to celebrate the 45th anniversary of their graduation from the Camrose Normal School

On Thursday, June 9th, 1932, the closing exercises were held which included addresses by the late Hon Perren Baker, then minister of Education and the late G K. Haversteck, who was principal of the Normal School

Mr Baker's words were, "The world owes nothing to young people of 19 or 20 years of age, but the debt of students to the world is great We have done all we can for you, the world's in front of you, and out you go"

It was in the heart of the depression and many householders in Camrose depended on the $20 board money received monthly from the Normal students

School was not easy to acquire but sooner or later by one means or another many of the graduates found their way into the classroom, some for a few years only but others for their lifetime occupation

So it was with nostalgia that members of that class renewed acquaintances and reminisced One highlight was the tour of the old Normal School building itself Did time alone make those stairs steeper?

The staff of the Crystal Springs served a smorgasbord on Saturday Ruby Keehn on the piano and Jon Holmberg on the sax provided old time [illegible]

A moment of silence in honor of those who lost their lives in the second World War or who have since passed away, was observed

Impromptu speeches community singing of the old Normal songs, and picture taking completed the delightful in formal occasion The group is now looking forward to another re-union in five years. Chester Sorenson of Stettler and his committee planned this reunion.

ROOT FOR BEETS

Agriculture Canada sent the following article on beets

It's a funny thing about beets. You rarely hear of anyone not liking them, yet they're probably one of the most forgotten of vegetables.

Forgotten because we don't seem to do much with them!

Look for clean, firm, smooth beets free from cracks or other blemishes. Store in a cool moist place or refrigerate, with a 1-inch stem and all roots attached. Use within several weeks. To prepare, wash well under running water without bruising the skin to avoid "bleeding" during cooking.

Boil unpeeled beets in enough water to cover. Cover and boil 14-18 minutes for small beets, 24-30 for medium and 30-40 minutes for large. They're cooked when you can slip the skins off easily. Serve whole, sliced or diced, seasoned with salt and pepper and buttered with butter. In the case of canning, melt butter in a large heavy frypan, add beets that have been peeled, sliced thin and cut in small fingers, and sprinkle with salt. Add a couple of tablespoons of water to prevent scorching, cover, and cook gently for about 10 minutes. Shake or stir frequently to avoid sticking. If you're short of time, pressure cooking is the answer! Pressure cook unpeeled, whole beets (1½ inches in diameter) for about 5 minutes.

Don't throw away those fresh crisp beet tops! Not only do they come free with the fresh beets, but they're nutritious too . . . one serving of beet greens contributes at least 35 per cent toward the recommended daily intake of vitamin A and vitamin C. Refrigerate them in a plastic bag and use within 1-2 days. Wash well and leave a little water on the leaves for cooking. Boil as you would spinach with salt between the layers and allow 4-5 minutes for 1 pounds. Serve whole or chopped beet tops with butter.

Beet with greens and butter

1 tablespoon butter
1 pound beets, cooked, peeled and diced
1 cup diced peeled apple
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Melt butter in frypan. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Cover and heat quickly to form steam. Reduce heat and cook gently until beets are crisp-tender, stirring frequently (about 3 minutes). 6 servings.

HOW TO READ FOOD LABELS

There is a wealth of information on a food label. Ingredients are listed in descending order of proportion. Take the time to read them. You'll find out what is in the food you buy and in what proportion. Is that beef stew mostly potatoes? Is there sugar in the product?

When a food has been enriched with vitamins or minerals it is indicated on the label. There may be directions for cooking and ideas for serving the food. There may be a durable life date. Use the food before the specified date to ensure highest quality. Dates are not required on foods with a durable life of more than ninety days.

1. The Food and Drug Regulations respecting foods for special dietary use, require that certain information appear on the labels of the following foods: "carbohydrate reduced" must contain not more than 50 per cent of the carbohydrate contained in the original food. The label must state that it is for a carbohydrate-reduced diet and indicate the content of protein, fat, carbohydrate and kilojoules.

2. A food that is labelled "sugar-free" must meet the requirements of a carbohydrate-reduced food but in addition must contain not more than 0.25 percent available carbohydrate and provide not more than 1 calorie per 100 grams or per 100 millilitres of that food.

3. A food that is labelled "calorie-reduced" must provide not more than 50 per cent of the calories normally provided in that food. The label must state that it is for a calorie-reduced diet and indicate the protein, fat, carbohydrate and calorie content of the food.

4. A food that is labelled "low calorie" must meet the requirements of a calorie-reduced food and in addition may not provide more than 15 calories per average serving.

5. A food that is labelled "low-sodium" may not contain more than 50 percent of the sodium normally present in the food, may not contain any added sodium salts, or more than 40 milligrams sodium per 100 grams, except for meat, fish or poultry where 80 milligrams is permitted. The label must state that it is for a sodium restricted diet, and state the content of sodium and potassium in milligrams as well as the protein, fat, carbohydrates and calorie content of the food.

Tofield area drivers are fast-moving group

Drivers in the area served by the Tofield Detachment of the RCMP are a fast-moving bunch of people, something to which the Mounties can readily testify.

Writing tickets for speeding and other highway traffic violations can become part of a routine business day in the life of an RCMP officer and sometimes statistics can climb without being noticed too closely.

Shockingly enough, members of the Tofield Detachment have issued over one thousand (1,000) traffic tickets so far this year, and this year is not quite one-half over.

During a ten-day period, between August 13-22, Tofield RCMP members issued sixty eight traffic tickets to drivers in their area for traffic violations, mostly for speeding. During that period of time, the fewest number of tickets issued was two with this event taking place on three days. On one day, tickets issued soared to twenty-four while on another day, sixteen tickets were issued.

RCMP warn that, unless speeding and other violations are curtailed, drivers will continue to receive tickets and pay fines and any other penalties issued by the courts.

RCMP are looking for assistance from the public in an attempt to apprehend two men who committed a robbery while using violence, on Sunday night.

Paul Nalesnik, operator of a store south of Poe, suffered slight neck injuries when he was held by the throat by one of the two men who committed the robbery about ten o'clock Sunday night.

While one man held Mr Nalesnik, the other took a quantity of money from the cash register.

After the assault and robbery, the two suspects headed in a southerly direction in a [illegible].

Anyone who may have seen the two men are asked to contact the Tofield, or nearest branch of the RCMP.

People who wish to spend time at campsites in the area are being advised by RCMP to make sure that their property is locked up, preferably in the trunk of their car, when not in use.

Many people have reported missing items when they are at the campsites and RCMP are urging more care being taken to protect one's property.

A juvenile has been apprehended in connection with a break and enter at Sears in Tofield, last week, and charges are pending.

A second juvenile, along with two adults, were apparently involved with stolen goods and charges against this trio are being contemplated.

RCMP are looking for assistance in another area.

Quite a number of rural mailboxes, located between the Lindbrook Corner, north to Islet Lake, were knocked down and damaged on Sunday.

Anyone having any information as to who might have knocked down these mail boxes are asked to contact the RCMP.

A Tofield resident has been charged with two counts of assault and possession of a restricted weapon, as the result of a family feud.

Daniel and Douglas Brown also won placings in other junior classes.

Lacombe Club won the honors this year and the trophy which had been in the possession of the Tofield Garden Club for the past 3 years was presented to the Lacombe Club.

Museum will open on September 9th

The Tofield Museum interior decorating is nearing completion.

Murals by Mrs Severson of Kingman will be undertaken this week and will serve as background for symbols of the area. Artifacts and antiques will then be put in place.

The informal banquet plans are complete and a program for the official opening is taking shape.

Tickets for the event are $5.00 for adults and $2.50 for children. These are available from all Historical Society and craft club members or by [illegible].

Construction of the museum and the arts and crafts centre have been going on over a ten-month period with the building being an addition to the existing arena.

The new museum is 48 ft. by 42 ft and Harold Schultz, president of the Tofield Historical Society, hopes that all items owned by the society will be in their proper place in time for the official opening [illegible].

A new area was needed by the society when the building they were using was needed by the County of Beaver School Committee because of increased enrolment at the Tofield School.

The arts and crafts centre is contained in an area 36 ft by 24 ft with some of the featured installations being a kiln and a pottery wheel.

The club had been meeting regularly at various homes in the community but, as interest grew, facilities became an absolute necessity.

Two washrooms have been added to the new area while two rooms, each 30 ft by 20 ft. have been constructed upstairs and will be used for sewing and weaving, as well as for the holding of meetings.

The official opening has been scheduled for Friday, September 9th.

Pressure pays

When it comes to politics, pressure pays off. And so, sometimes, does delay. We were reminded of this as we scanned a recent report from the Battle River Tourist Association, recalling that only five years back there was talk of abandoning Big Knife Provincial Park. Not much use was being made of it, and abandonment seemed perfectly logical.

Memory over five years can be pretty faulty, but we seem to recall MLA Gordon Stromberg putting on a good deal of pressure to keep the park, and we know the Battle River Tourist Association stepped up its promotion efforts. We know interest in trailering and tourism grew rapidly during those five years.

Far from the park being abandoned, reports Lloyd Anderson of Forestburg, it's now bursting at the seams, to the point that very shortly another 180 parking stalls will be opening up in the park.

Going a little further, Mr. Anderson has already conducted more tours through the Forestburg Collieries in just half of this year than he did in the entire two years beforehand.

Probably there are many reasons, but certainly the sustained efforts of Battle River Tourist Association and its hard-working coterie of executive members have to be among the chief reasons.

Rights, and privileges

Isn't it perplexing how there seems always a way to twist appearances and viewpoints so that things don't any longer seem to be what they've been accepted as. Things started with the best intentions are made to appear as evil.

For many, many years society has looked with envy on the worker who had reached the point where he could retire, and who was no longer forced to exert himself to earn a living. Generally speaking, some centuries ago, we think the military led the way, with the civil service following. Industry also picked up the concept, here and there, and frequently better pension provisions became one of the most important points in collective bargaining.

Than it reached the point where the federal government introduced the universal pension concept, with a number of fringe benefits appended.

Suddenly now, tied in with the fresh new ultra concern over human rights, comes a furore over discrimination against workers who are "arbitrarily" retired at 65, or some such age.

How ridiculous can we get! It's only short months ago that teachers and civil servants tried to have the age for retiring (on a voluntary basis) reduced by variations of one or another point schemes to as little as 55 years. The government has even managed to introduce the concept of forced retirement for judges and senators, (admittedly past 65). Industrial staffing policies and pension factors are based on the concept of a turn-over of staff at such an age.

Certainly there are many people who are perfectly capable of continuing their work. Certainly there are many who would be happier gainfully employed in one way or another. But to suggest they're being deprived of their rights is nonsense. They knew when they associated with the particular field what the rules of the game were. They received every benefit along the way, predicated on their retirement at some specific age. And when the referee says the game is ended, and they still want to play some more, they should seek a new playing field.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint

Canadian comment by Peter Ward

OTTAWA — (SP) — There's nothing like preparing your self for yet another hike in the price of gasoline and heating oil (mainly, though, the increased bite comes on a one-shot basis and you can always hope that it won't be repeated. No such luck this time. Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie has served notice that Canadians will be paying ever-higher prices for oil and gas for at least the next two years.

We're getting hit with another 3.5 cents per gallon on gasoline every six months for the next two years, and three cents a gallon more for heating oil in the same four-stage price ruse. Ouch, does it ever hurt.

What is not appreciated, though, is that a tremendous amount of the recent increases in oil and gas prices is going straight into either slip a few slivvs into govern ments and both levels for the enormous tax bite"

The one which really bothers me is that 16 cents a gallon surcharge which went onto gasoline nearly two years ago. The surtax was supposed to be used for equalizing the provincial or federal government coffers The figure right now is roughly 40 per cent of the total price on gasoline, and that portion will increase as the price climbs higher

All of this is to prepare the climate for the higher priced energy which will soon be serving us from the north, and from the Athabasca Tar Sands Meanwhile, you'll hear plenty from the New Democratic Party about the oil companies ripping us off with unjustified profits which may or may not be spent on exploration to discover more oil and gas resources.

Why doesn't the NDP also price of oil in Canada, subsidizing the expensive world price oil imported into eastern Canada

But increased Canadian prices have narrowed the gap between the world price and the uniform Canadian price considerably, leaving extra funds in the pot used for equalization payments Have we heard anything about a reduction in the 16 cent surtax? Not bloody likely. The old axiom of government dictates that once a new tax field has been discovered and milked, it is rarely if ever abandoned, because there is no limit to the amount of money governments can manage to spend

It's time for a few well-aimed letters of protest about the continuation of that 16 cent surtax on gasoline, before the government decides to use the proceeds for something like paying for the new bonne union program.

Scientists studying ways to predict forest fires

Federal scientists are in the final stages of research that will result in an almost foolproof system for predicting the occurrence and behavior of forest fires

Dave Kiil, co-ordinator of fire research for the Northern Forest Research Centre in Edmonton, says the research is designed to determine how different types of vegetation will burn under varying weather conditions

When linked to the fire weather index - - the system now used to forecast fire hazard - - this information will provide a scientific basis for predicting wildfires that takes both vegetation and weather into account

The fire weather index summarizes the daily influence of such weather factors as temperature and precipitation on the probability of fires starting, spreading and causing damage These weather conditions are translated on a daily basis to fire danger ratings that range from low to extreme often posted at the entrances of forest areas and national and provincial parks.

Kiil says although the fire weather index has proved to be about 80 per cent accurate it has its limitations Being forest dependent on the weather the index doesn't reflect the flammability of different types of forest.

As a result on a day when the fire danger rating reads high the actual fire potential in a stand of black spruce could be extreme while the fire hazard in aspen might be only low to moderate

To solve this problem fire research scientists have conducted hundreds of field tests during the past 10 years, deliberately setting fire to forested areas under controlled conditions In laboratory tests they've also burned small trees and other vegetation to determine the heat content of various fuels

Kiil says the tests have almost yielded enough information to predict with reasonable accuracy the likelihood of fire, how it will spread and how intensive it will be in different types of vegetation and trees.

We're at the stage now where we have most of the information we need to put together a scheme to identify the fire potential in different forest types, he says

Such a scheme used in conjunction with the fire weather index, would allow provincial forest services to pinpoint areas where dangerous fires might occur This in turn would lead to better prevention and earlier detection of fires

Kui says researchers have already identified areas where conditions are ripe for "disaster" fires - - those that are likely to spread beyond control and consume hundreds of thousands of acres

Examples of such areas are the Swan Hills in northern Alberta and the eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains, a region that burned extensively about 50 years ago

"There are fairly large areas of lodgepole pine in the eastern slopes that have enough fuel to support other large fires Such fires could travel 20 to 30 miles in one day," says Kui

The problem with this area, extending from southern Alberta to the west central portion of the province is that the pines and other conifers continue for miles without interruption

If a fire gets into the crowns, it will continue because there are few, if any, breaks in the fuels," said Kiil

He added that black spruce, covering the northern parts of the prairie provinces, also poses an extreme fire hazard The tree grows in combination with small shrubs and a highly flammable type of moss called reindeer lichens, creating ideal fuel for a fire

"Black spruce is also subject to erratic fire behavior If the wind reverses during a fire, the same stand can burn twice in the same day"

Kiil says information on how different types of forests burn could gradually be built into forest management procedures to eliminate conditions leading to huge fires

For example, a species such as aspen, which doesn't burn well in the summer, could be interspersed with a forest of pines to break up the continuity of the trees and create a natural firebreak

Logging operations can also help reduce the fire hazard by creating gaps in the forest and by scarification, the process of mixing logging slash and debris with the mineral soil

Must take course to get license back

Effective July 1, 1977, a driver having his or her license suspended as a result of conviction of an alcohol related driving offence, must take the responsibility of completing an impaired drivers' program sponsored by AADAC (Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission) in order to regain the license, announces the Alberta Driver Control Board and AADAC

The first of these courses to be held in Camrose will be on Tuesday, Aug. 23rd, in the conference room in the Provincial Building. An all-day program will start at 8 a.m and conclude around 4:30 p.m. The program is an attempt to bring information to suspended drivers as to what has happened to them as a result of their drinking and driving not to give advice Because it is an information session, anyone can attend The next one to be held in Camrose will be on Nov. 22nd

The sequence of events for regaining the privilege of having a driver's license is as follows After conviction of an alcohol-related driving offence and suspension of the driver's license, a letter from the Driver Control Board informs the individual of the suspension and the requirement of completing an Impaired Drivers' Course, locations and times of the courses will be enclosed The individual attends the course and is given a card when the course has been completed The card is forwarded to the Driver Control Board and the driver's license may then be reinstated, subject to the review board's decision

The compulsory Impaired Drivers' Program is not meant as an additional punitive measure after conviction It is a program designed to emphasize the seriousness of the offence and the effects of conviction, as well as to place the driver in a position where he evaluates his lifestyle The expectation of the program is to minimize the reoccurrence of a drinking driving problem with the driver

Further information may be obtained by contacting the Red Deer office of AADAC at 343-5274 Marina Samuel of that office will moderate the first course here

"Modified" tractor

As the tractor-pulling competition comes to the Camrose Fair for it's second year, with it come various innovations in tractors. Owned and built by Bob Roose, the above modified tractor will be entered in the competitions this year to do demonstration pulls, as there are no others entered in the modified class. Presently popular in the United States and Eastern Canada, modified and other classes such as stock, mini, and super classes in tractor racing is only just beginning to catch on here in Western Canada. Mr. Roose's machine is a Massey-Harris 55 with a 292 six-cylinder GMC engine developing close to 300 h.p. and running a four speed transmission behind the motor. He has also hauled the tires for more weight!

R'runners plan tourney

Camrose Roadrunners will be hosting a four-team senior baseball tournament at the Fairgrounds on Sunday.

Taking part in the day-long tournament will be Easyford, Rosalind, Forestburg and the Roadrunners.

The first game will get underway at ten o'clock in the morning and will feature Easyford against Rosalind. The host Roadrunners will then play against Forestburg with this game getting underway at 12.30 p.m.

The losers of the first two games will then meet in the consolation finals starting at three o'clock while the tournament finals will see the winners of the first two games face each other at 5:45 p.m.

Roadrunners travelled over to Easyford on Saturday and blew a game to Smoky Lake when they committed 11 errors and were eliminated from further competition.

Smoky Lake won the contest even though they were held to only five hits by Camrose's pitchers, Fleming, Schoenknecht and G. Skaug.

Roadrunners picked up eight hits off the offerings of Taschuk and Polanski. Roadrunners scored five runs in the 1st inning, added two more in the second and then were blanked the rest of the way as Smoky Lake rebounded to pick up the win.

The annual Powerline Baseball League All Star game will be played this evening (Wednesday) in Ryley.

Ryley Rebels, this year's league champions, will be facing an All Star squad made up of players from the other teams in the league.

The line-up for the all stars are catcher - Art Micklich, pitcher Bob Foshaug, infield - Darryl Bowal, Lionel Williams, Dave Swanson, Ron Foshaug, outfield - Tom Homeniuk, Darren Stang, Al Schoenknecht, alternates - Ken Stauffer, Brent Sawchuk, Ed Weiss, and Barry Swanson.

Brian Micklich, named as the number one centerfielder is unable to play because of a leg injury.

New rival for scrap metal

Old cars and refrigerators will go on being collected and fed into furnaces to emerge as steel for new cars and refrigerators for many years to come. But scrap has a new rival that is likely to increase in importance. The rival is none under the unlikely name of sponge iron, a form of upgraded iron ore that can be fed directly into a mini-mill's electric furnace. Mini mills are relatively small-scale steel making operations based on electric arc furnaces that use scrap as their main production charge. The major steel manufacturers usually have several of these furnaces, but some medium sized companies also rely on electric furnaces. These include Slater Steel, Lake Ontario Steel Co., Interprovincial Steel and Pipe Corp., Sidbec Dosco (owned by the Quebec government) and QSP Ltd., the Quebec based company struggling for financial survival. For the past 10 years, this part of the industry has been looking at "directly reduced" sponge iron pellets as an alternative to scrap in their production charge. These are pellets of iron ore treated, or "beneficiated," to such a high level of iron content that they can be fed directly into the electric furnace without fluctuations in scrap prices and doubts over its future availability have provided the just impetus to a search for an economic means of producing such sponge iron. Less refined pellets have been used in conventional steel making for many years. As high quality sources of iron ore have become exhausted, the impetus to upgrade other forms of iron-bearing minerals has increased. The major breakthrough in upgrading pellets for use in conventional coke oven/blast furnace steel production was made 20 years ago.

Commercial fisheries production in the Northwest Territories received 2.2 million pounds annually at a landed value of about $1.1 million.

Ellen Eaton

Sorry I haven't written any news items the last two weeks. Many folks have been holidaying and your reporter hasn't been able to gather enough for the column. If you wish to have your news column kept going, would you please help your correspondent with your news items when she calls you.

Clarence Phillips and son Lenny of Edmonton were visitors at the home of his cousin Ellen Eaton on Aug. 7th.

Leroy and Shirley Eaton of Fort McMurray arrived at the home of Leroy's mother Ellen Eaton on Aug. 3rd where they were overnight and Thursday visitors. On Friday morning they left for Lavoy taking their son Ronnie and his friend Jim Wagren with them. Jim and Ronnie had spent almost 3 weeks with Ronnie's grandmother on the farm. They visited Shirley's mother, Mrs. Veima Raper on the farm. Another of Lavoy also visited Shirley's sister Brenda and Paul Straly and family at Derwent before returning to Leroy's mother's farm Saturday afternoon where they were overnight guests. All left for their home in Fort McMurray on Aug. 7th.

On Aug. 15 Ellen Eaton was among some 85 or more senior citizens from the County of Beaver that went on a bus tour of the Alberta Game Farm.

Sharon and Heather Rudrichi daughters of Rod and Isabel Rudrichi who had gone to Disneyland returned home on Aug. 8th. They were unfortunate enough to be among those caught in the air controllers walk out and were taken to Great Falls, Montana and brought by bus to Edmonton.

Dan and Brenda Eaton and two young sons of Fort McMurray were Saturday afternoon and evening visitors at the home of Brenda's grandmother Ellen Eaton, on Aug. 13th.

Mr. and Mrs. McAdam of Marwayne were visitors at the home of their son Ron and Gail McAdam from Aug. 12 to 14th.

Rod and Isabel Rudrichi and son David left on Aug. 10th on a motor trip to B.C., where they visited several places. They returned home on Aug. 16th.

Ellen Eaton was an Edmonton visitor on Monday of this week for treatment at the University Hospital. While there, she visited Mrs. Esther Fleming in the University Hospital and Victor Warren in the Colonel Mewburn Hospital Wing. Victor expects to be home this weekend.

On Monday several ladies of the district and a few from Tofield (former district residents) gathered at the home of Mrs. Isabel Rudrichi for a delayed birthday party in honor of Isabel's birthday which was the week before while Isabel was away on holidays.

Ross and Terry Kyle of Edmonton were Monday visitors at the home of Ross's sister, Isabel and Rod Rudrichi.

Several from the district attended the agricultural fair in Tofield on Saturday with their exhibits and horses for the horse show, and were recipients of many top prizes as well as many other awards.

Rain started again on Saturday night and continued to fall most of Sunday before clearing in the evening with temperatures falling to near freezing. Light frosts were noticed in several low lying spots. Monday was bright but quite chilly and thus delaying harvesting and haying for several days.

— Hail report —

August 18, 1977

Most of the storms during the past week have produced rain rather than hail. Two hail-type clouds developed southeast of Nordegg Thursday, August 11th and tracked towards Carstairs by late afternoon. Tops reached 40,000 feet. Six reports of pea size hail were received in the southern area.

The Alberta Hail Project cloud seeding area (Twps. 39 to 47 incl.) has experienced an active seeding season to date but only small amounts of hail has occurred and crop damage is light. We have recorded hail on 52 days to date. The long-time average for the period June 15 to September 10th is 45 days. The total number of hail reports received is 46 percent below the long-time average.

It is also interesting to note that we only have one report of golfball sized hail to date in the project area.

To date hail has been limited to small scattered swaths of a mile or two in width and five to fifteen miles long.

The most severe storm of the season occurred on August 7th in the Stony Plain - Calmar - Wetaskiwin areas. This storm developed near Edmonton, approximately 60 miles outside our target area. Most of the damage from this storm occurred outside of our Project boundaries.

Threshing operations have gotten underway

Cutting and threshing of crops moved into high gear in some areas during the past week while other regions must wait for crops to mature.

Sixty percent of the rapeseed crop around Daysland has been cut while a start has been made on oats and barley. Thirty percent of the rapeseed has already been threshed.

One-half of the rape crop at New Norway has been cut with ten percent of the barley and oats being cut. A start has been made in threshing the rapeseed crop.

Ryley reports that half of its rape crop has been cut with a start having been made on barley. About one-fifth of the crop has been threshed. More sunny weather is needed in this region as some crops are maturing slowly.

Camrose indicates that about thirty percent of the rapeseed harvest has been cut with about ten percent having been threshed. About fifteen percent of the barley has now been cut.

A similiar amount of rapeseed has been cut around Tofield with only a small start having been made in threshing operations while a beginning has been made in cutting the barley crop.

Crops in Round Hill and Holden are slightly behind other areas with cutting operations not yet getting underway.

Although good weather is needed for maturing crops, conditions in Round Hill are reported as generally being good while crops around Holden are almost mature, although about twenty percent of the crop was damaged earlier by drought.

FOLAR COOLER

It's the hottest thing on the frozen scene! Ice cream's long rule as "King of the cones" may be scooped to an end the challenger is the polar cooler, frozen yogurt.

You might think it's yogurt incognito, but basically frozen yogurt is much like the yogurt you buy at the store, except it's frozen. The hard-frozen kind is served just like hard ice cream. The soft-frozen yogurt is made in the same machines that produces soft ice milk, but at a colder temperature.

Frozen yogurt can be served in as many different ways as ice cream. The most popular form so far has been the yogurt cone. Food Advisory Division, Agriculture Canada has come up with a recipe for making a similar product at home. It resembles hard ice cream. The Frozen Raspberry Yogurt comes with a "peachy" variation. If you haven't tried frozen yogurt yet, you have a lot of catching up to do! Here are a few serving suggestions to get your homemade yogurt all dressed up and out on the town. Frozen yogurt in cones, sprinked with nuts, granola, coconut, or drizzled with honey, on crepes, pancakes or waffles topped with fresh, frozen or canned fruit depending on the season; in an attractive glass with creme de menthe parfaited with chocolate shavings; in peach halves, perked up with a garnish. But why not experiment on your own? Use frozen yogurt in sundaes, eggnogs . . . Convinced?

FROZEN RASPBERRY YOGURT

1 8-ounce package frozen sweetened raspberries, thawed
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup plain yogurt
2 egg whites

Pour raspberries in blender or press through sieve. Add sugar and salt and beat thoroughly, but do not boil. Soak gelatin in water. Add to hot raspberry mixture and stir until dissolved. Stir in lemon juice and cool about 10 minutes. Add yogurt. Turn into 8-inch loaf pan and freeze until almost firm (about 1 hour). Allow raspberry mixture to soften slightly. Beat in egg whites until stiff but not fluffy (about 10 minutes). Return to loaf pan and freeze overnight. Makes about 4 cups. Frozen Peach Yogurt: Make as Frozen Raspberry Yogurt, but use 1 19-ounce can peaches, drained in place of the 8-ounce package frozen raspberries. Makes about 4 servings.

Recreation Report

By Colleen Walker

Last Monday, 46 senior citizens enjoyed a one-day trip to the Alberta Game Farm and the Queen Elizabeth Planetarium. We arrived at the Game Farm at 11:30 a.m. and enjoyed a picnic lunch at the grounds. The afternoon was spent touring the farm, featuring a ride on the train. Some enjoyed the train ride so much, that they even went twice despite the flat tire.

After a short drive to Edmonton, a snack supper was eaten at the Ponderosa Restaurant. Birthday celebrations were given to Bill Winsome as his many times repeated 39th birthday.

The evening was spent at the Queen Elizabeth planetarium viewing a star show. After, the day was finished with ice cream at the Dairy Queen and milkshakes at MacDonald's.

Thanks to everyone for turning out!

Kingman Lutheran Parish will get a new minister

At the beginning of next month (September) Kingman Lutheran Parish will have the services of a new minister.

Rev Leonard Segge will assume his responsibilities on September 1st although he won't be officially installed as parish pastor until September 4th, when ceremonies will be conducted by Rev Herb Kyle, assistant to the president of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada.

Rev Segge is not new to the area as he taught at Canadian Lutheran Bible Institute in Camrose from 1956-1965. After leaving Camrose, he went to Fort St John for three years and was a hospital chaplain in Calgary for the past nine years.

Prior to teaching in Camrose, Rev Segge spent five years pastoring in Donalda and three years on a mission project in Edmonton.

While residing in Tofield Rev Segge will be serving three churches, Salem in Kingman, Trondhjem in Round Hill and Bardo in Tofield. The latter church will be the site of the installation ceremony.

Rev Segge is married and he and his wife, Bernice have four children, Nathan, Steven, Kristine, and Douglas.

Holden Fair held

The Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society held another successful fair day on August 17.

Good crowds were on hand to view the displays and take part in or view the other activities.

The agricultural and homemaking displays were somewhat down in number over last year, but there was a good representation none the less.

Beautiful vegetables and flowers, home baking, preserves and sewing, handicrafts, hobbies and crops were entered by local residents and open for viewing throughout the afternoon.

As well as competitive displays, local organizations erected displays also. The Legion Auxiliary handed out brochures advertising the local history book. The senior citizens had a very interesting display of the many articles they produce, from ceramics to crocheted articles.

A good display of books from the town to be reopened public library were available for browsing. The dental unit of the Vegreville Health Unit and the District Agriculturist also had materials on display. A film presentation and pictorial display was offered by the local fieldman.

Alberta Transport Safety brought "The Convincer," a working model which enabled people to experience the effects of a car crash at 5 m p.h. while wearing a seat belt.

Probably the thing which elicited the most comment was the wheel throwing demonstration presented by Marlene Sinclair. Viewers were able to see her shape many varied articles and hear her explain the mechanics of the techniques involved.

The concession helped con everyone down with pop and popsicles.

The afternoon's activities started off with the children's pet parade, with an assortment of animals, including "Rose" the calf. All children were presented with ribbons to show that they had participated in the fair.

The next activity to get underway was the horseshoe tournament. Winners of the inches section were Sharon Helgeland and Kay Anderson, the men's section was won by Cecil Stensrud. This ongoing tournament was interrupted for a few moments so that the tug-of-war could take place.

Two teams consisting of men from north and south of Ryley competed.

After the dust had settled and the grunting ceased, the north emerged as winners. Next came the children's races for all ages and also including sack, three-legged and wheelbarrow races. Many a child went home with ribbons as reminders of the day.

During the afternoon the eighth draw was made on the lottery. Winners of the August draw were Janet Winnes and Clarence Clarehout who share the $500 prize.

Seat belt convincer visits Ryley

The Transportation Safety Branch of Alberta Transportation set up a demonstration of the seat belt Convincer at the Ryley Fair on August 17.

The Convincer is a carefully designed piece of equipment, which simulates the effect of a 5 mph collision on participants while wearing a seat belt. It gives a first-hand feeling of the value of buckling up.

The Convincer is part of an intensive provincial safety awareness education campaign launched last year by Dr. Hugh Horner, deputy premier and minister of transportation. To date more than 35,000 people have participated in the convincer demonstration. Trained Safety representatives man the display and are available to answer questions.

Through such programs Alberta Transportation intends to convince the public of the value of wearing a seat belt, and thus reduce the incidence of death and injury resulting from automobile accidents.

The awareness program has been presented at schools, industries, shopping centres, and interested community groups. It is available free of charge to any organization or [illegible]

HE CARES, HE COMFORTS

by Carole Ten Boom

Corrie ten Boom, a woman who has devoted her entire lifetime to God's service, begins a new outreach — the Jesus is Victor series. God has used the story in her life in a unique way to open up a ministry to millions, now He uses lessons learned from her experiences in that ministry to touch even more people. Corrie has discovered for herself that Jesus can work a glorious transformation in every area of life. This particular book demonstrates His power over sickness and death.

Sprite to preserve flowers

Have you wondered how florists keep cut flowers looking so fresh? You can do the same thing if you follow a few simple steps recommended by Chris Campbell, Horticultural specialist with Alberta Agriculture

She advises cutting your flowers in the late afternoon, and choosing those that are just starting to open. When you bring them into the house, re-cut the stems under water and put them into hot water (43 degree C.) for 12 to 24 hours In the case of flowers with woody stems (e g roses), split the stems three or four inches up from the bottom, and then crush them with a hammer before putting them in hot water. Chrysanthemums, lilies and hollyhocks also benefit from having their stems split and crushed. Plants with a milky or sticky sap (e.g poppies) will usually last longer if the ends of their stems are seared with a flame or immersed for several minutes in boiling water

"Always put your flowers into a container that is free of bacteria and fungi," says Ms Campbell. "Wash it with hot, soapy water and rinse it thoroughly Then fill it with tepid water. Never use cold water or you will considerably reduce the life of your flowers."

Many people use a flower preservative, available from most garden centres, to prolong the life of their flowers Ms Campbell says the soft drink, Sprite, is just about as effective in prolonging the life of cut flowers as a preservative You should use about one part Sprite to five parts of water

Finally, your flowers will last even longer if you change their water every day, re-cut their stems (as woody stems or those with a milky sap), add fresh flower preservative or Sprite and put the flowers in a cool place at night

Disaster shelters available for crisis

by Ronald G. Allen
Executive Director,
Food for the Hungry

Picture an emergency shelter that can be put up in twenty minutes, costs only $50 and houses up to five people. Impossible? Not so! "Hope House," a special fibreboard shelter wrapped in plastic film so it will not leak, answers the description and comes complete with floor, door, and window curtains!

Dr. Larry Ward, President of Food for the Hungry, an assistance and development organization with international headquarters in Oslo, Norway, says, "For twenty years I have prayed for such a disaster shelter inexpensive and easy to erect."

The shelters were first brought to Dr. Ward's attention at the Habitat Forum in Vancouver, B.C. in June, 1976, and several hundred have since been sent to our Ibaguske areas in Indonesia and the Philippines as well as to the flash flood area of La Paz, Mexico.

An important feature of Hope House is that it can be later permutated with thatch, bamboo, plywood, or some other more sophisticated material whatever is available.

Several "houses" were flown across Canada via CP Air recently for display in key shopping centres in Montreal, Toronto (Ottawa Calgary and Vancouver as part of Food For the Hungry appeal for financial support. The "House" costs about one-third of that for a tent, is said to be warmer than being under canvas and, after use in a disaster area, is disposable.

Food for the Hungry will provide as many houses "as concerned donors will make possible. We want to stockpile them around the world for an instant response of help-to-help when disaster strikes."

Ag land prices continue on rise

The average value of Alberta's agricultural real estate transfers last year was $177 per acre compared with $148 per acre in 1976 and $87 per acre in 1971.

This is one of the facts revealed in Alberta Agriculture's report on 1976 agricultural real estate values in the province. The report shows that almost 3 million acres of land, valued at almost $525 million, changed hands in 1976 compared with just over 3 1 million acres, valued at almost $464 million, in 1975.

Last year's land transfer values evidentally increased rapidly until May when they declined. They improved again in September to their June - July level and remained at that level for the rest of the year according to the report. agricultural land values in August 1976 were almost $7 per acre lower than they had been in August of the previous year.

The report also shows that the average transfer value of agricultural land in Alberta, and the number of acres sold, in 1976 peaked in April, when the average value reached $186 per acre, representing a 42 per cent increase over the 1975 level and almost double the annual increase for the whole year.

The author of the report says that future agricultural real estate values are difficult to predict because of the large number of variables that affect land values. These include such things as taxation policies, mortgage financing, inflation and so on. However, if land values continue to increase at the same rate as in the past 5 years an average price for $200 per acre can be reached for this year. It is also possible that some land prices will stabilize or decrease in relation to the rising cost of living and inventory [illegible] 1976 Agricultural Land Values" is available free of charge from the Agriculture Publications Branch of Alberta Agriculture. Copies can be obtained from the Agricultural Information Centre, Agriculture Building, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton, T5K 2C8.

New hail test to seed every storm

Cloud seeding at the Alberta Hail Project in 1977 will be different than for the previous three years. This year all potential hail clouds will be seeded in the whole target area, which is approximately 6 miles north of Calgary to 6 miles north of Wetaskiwin.

In previous years the northern area was randomized, that is, approximately one half of the hail days were seeded. The unseeded days in the northern area have been used as a check so that they can be compared with "the seeded days in an attempt to evaluate the benefits of cloud seeding.

The original program was designed to have a hail used area in the south (Twps 26 to 36 incl.) and a randomized research area in the north (Twps 37 to 38 to ensure that all potential hailstorms were seeded prior to entering the southern area.

Last year the northern seeding area was extended to cover areas of storm development to the Drayton Valley - Edson areas. This extension ensures that storms are seeded prior to crossing the boundary of the northern target area.

Isn't today the day you start getting into shape?

Zook - Stauffer

The wedding of Gwen Stauffer of Edmonton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Stauffer of Ryley to Don Zook of Edmonton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Zook of Tofield, took place on July 16th at Salem Mennonite Church at Ryley with Carl Hanson officiating. The couple is residing in Edmonton.

Solberg families hold big reunion

Nils and Eli Solberg were married in Norway just one hundred years ago this summer.

They emmigrated to Woonsocket, South Dakota in 1887 and moved to the Ryley district in 1902 where they lived out their lives. They were fortunate enough to be married 58 years and to raise 10 children.

On August 14, about 170 members of their family gathered in the Ryley Community Hall to reunite and reminisce.

Family members ranged from great-grandson Travis Giebelhaus, 4 months, to eldest daughter Caroline Davick who at a grand 97 years, maintains excellent health and a keen sense of humour.

Also present from the original family were Martha Hilferud, Ella Skiles, Anna Brucks and Elma Tomlinson, all the other daughters of the marriage, and Nosh Solberg and Ted Gjerde, sons, who revealed that among them they had amassed a remarkable 570 years of marriage.

Their families as well as those of brothers Ole and Eli Solberg were well represented at the gathering, coming from as far as Whitehorse, Yukon in the north to San Diego, California in the south and Owen Sound, Ontario in the east to Port Alberni, B.C. in the west. All greatly enjoyed this wonderful opportunity to catch up on family changes and to review days gone by.

Floral decorations in the hall included a bead table arrangement, gift from family friend Borghild Sundlie, and sweet peas in a crystal vase which was given to mother, Eli, some 70 years ago.

Sunshine Frolics

The past week was "Sports Week". Along with the usual drawing of pictures we made things with clay. Most of the pieces were very original.

We had three special events this week. Wednesday afternoon, we had a birthday party for all the kids at the playground. We played games and had a relay race in which the kids had to eat a piece of licorice, five chips, and drink a glass of water. After all the fun the kids enjoyed Kool-aid and a scrumptious cake.

The 1977 Beaver Summer Games were held in Ryley on Thursday. Playgrounds from Ryley, travelling playground and Viking were present as well as our own. The kids enjoyed swimming in the Ryley pool, playing softball, games, and running races. After having hot-dogs and ice-cream for supper, the children and leaders were entertained by Francis Damberger, Jim Warner, and Michael Warner in the play "Jimmy Juggler's Nose." The play, written by Francis Damberger, had a lot of audience participation and the kids were thrilled by trying to help Jimmy Juggler get rid of his long nose. The entire day was a success and the kids returned home very tired but

Friday morning we took the kids for a tour through the bakery. The kids saw and learned about all of the machinery used there. They even got a chance to decorate and eat their own gingerbread man. We'd like to thank Van Derkley's for letting us tour the bakery.

This week is "Around - the - World Week." Wednesday we made a trip to Fort Edmonton. More about that next week!

Thursday evening we are planning an Ethic supper for the parents and kids. Each family is to bring an Ethnic dish for the supper. All registered kids and their parents are welcome to at

Horst Schmid will open new complex

The Honorable Horst Schmid, Minister of Culture, Recreation and Wildlife, will officially open the new Tofield Museum Arts and Crafts Complex during ceremonies next week.

The opening has been scheduled for Friday, September 9th. That is the day that Historical Society president Harold Schultz, and Arts and Crafts president, Yvonne Brown, have been looking forward to with great anticipation.

The new complex will mark the first time that the museum's will be located in its own home, where all the articles they own may be properly displayed for the public to see.

Previously, the museum had been housed in a small schoolhouse which has gone back into use as a school. The new museum will have a large display area along with a work room and an office.

The arts and crafts club was even worse off that the historical group as they previously not even had a place in which to meet, except in the homes of its members.

The new complex cost in excess of $82,000. A public drive for funds has been held and the favourable response has led officials to hope that there will be a good turnout for the opening ceremonies.

The official opening will commence with a barbeque supper in the Tofield Arena with tickets available from That Place or Dykeman's Confectionery. There will be a limited number of tickets for sale at the door.

A program will be held following the supper with the Honorable Horst Schmidt as guest speaker.

Also taking part in the program will be local M.L.A Walter Buck, Jim Sisgoell of the Department of Culture, Recreation and Wildlife, and Ian Patterson of the Provincial Historical Society. As well, a number of local dignaries will also take part in the program. Entertainment for the occasion will be in the form of a number of musical selections.

Following the program, everyone will gather at the outside doors of the new complex for a ribbon-cutting ceremony, following which the complex will be open for public viewing.

HORST SCHMID

Immediately following the ribbon cutting and the public viewing, Mrs. Martin Sorenson will unveil the mural she painted on the museum.

The evening and official opening will conclude with a dance in the Arena.

Around the town

The Tofield Fire Department has taken possession of its new fire truck Ryley bought the old one from Tofield.

Mrs. J.A.L. Smith, Edith-Mary Smith, and Dr. J.G. Williams spent Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Robinson. The next day, Edith-Mary and Will left for a holiday in Europe. Mrs. Smith also spent Sunday at the home of her parents.

Mrs. Mary Moore spent last week in Edmonton at the home of her son, Glen and Claudia and grandson, Kevin.

Audrey and Pete Pedersen and children from Vancouver are visiting the Moore families in Tofield and Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Beergen attended the 40th wedding anniversary celebration of Jake and Margaret Wiens in Herschell, Sask., and then went on a holiday trip to Banff, Canyon Hot Springs, and to Chilliwack to visit with Katie's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Heiberg and son Gordon have returned home from a six-week visit to Norway to visit relatives. While there, they were joined by daughters, Elsa and Grace, who had left earlier on an European tour.

Kay and Horace McHeffey of "White Rock, B.C., were recent visitors with Ed and Edith Ragsdale.

RCMP kept busy

The Tofield Detachment of the RCMP were occupied with a wide variety of complaints during the past week.

An Edmonton resident is a patient in Vegreville Hospital when he suffered injuries when his one-half ton camper overturned at the junction of Highway 16 and Secondary Road 834. The truck and camper were completely destroyed in the mishap.

In another accident, a tent trailer was damaged when it overturned at the Amisk Campsite on Highway 14.

Elizabeth Erickson of Tofield reported her car stolen on Saturday. It was later recovered with damage on the right side of the vehicle. RCMP are investigating.

Joseph Wideman of the Tofield area reported the loss of three heifers. All are ear tagged and weigh about 300-350 pounds each. Information may be reported to the nearest RCMP Detachment.

A Juvenile girl has been charged with an offence after a television set was reported taken from the home of Maggie Peterson of Tofield on Friday.

Larry Fosbang reported the theft of tools valued at $150. from his swather which had been in a field on his farm, while Wes Ingram reported the loss of gas from his farm.

A Lamont resident had items charged with possession and carrying of a dangerous weapon as the result of an incident during the early morning hours following a dance in Holden on Saturday. Following an incident at Charlie's Place on Thursday, an Edmonton resident has been charged with common assault.

RCMP are continuing their crackdown on drivers as a number of tickets for stunting and speeding were filed last week against drivers from the immediate area.

Tofield Fair proves to be a large success

Doris Brown

Once again the Tofield Agricultural Fair proved a resounding success, the weather co-operated, the number of people who attended was rewarding and the number and calibre of exhibits on display was very impressive.

Many favorable comments were given on the displays featured at the Fair. The livestock, horticulture, churchs, ceramics, the County of Beaver and others; the Fair Committee is grateful to these people for their efforts.

Sucker Punch!

But tell us where

Canadians should help out their own tax position, and their own employment situation, declared J. L. Meschino of Toronto recently, as do other nations.

Mr. Meschino is president of the Machinery and Equipment Manufacturers Association of Canada, and his remedy is relatively simple.

We should all buy Canadian-made goods, in order to reduce the country's huge trade deficit. Though our population is less than a tenth that of the United States or the European Economic Community, our machinery imports are higher in dollar volume than those of the entire U.S., and almost equal to those of the huge E.E.C.

He makes an interesting point when he points out that if we would place orders for $500 million more from our own manufacturers each year, some 60,000 jobs and $2.5 billion in business would be generated.

A good deal of what Mr. Meschino says is no doubt true. And we also feel many Canadians would be just as happy buying products made in Canada if there were something they could buy. Or if they only knew about these products which are produced here, and where to buy them.

There's no way in this day and age that people are going to learn about Canadian products without major campaigns to spread the knowledge . . . . advertising, if you will. Our own industry, printing, is a fairly good case in point. We're literally inundated every month with publications extolling the merits of fascinating new equipment . . . . most of it made in the States, some of it in Europe. And almost never do we learn about such products being turned out in this country. . . . not, at least, until after the foreign product is installed, and some salesman says "I could have supplied that, if only I'd known."

We have no doubt other businesses are the same. And the farm machinery industry supplies countless examples of the ingenuity of Canadian manufacturers in producing new products, superior products, simpler products, which just exactly meet the need.

The problem is to find out about these before some other goods are purchased. And one of the worst problems in this respect is the ease with which we allow the Post Office to transport to us the latest news about other countries' products, countries which actually encourage, with very low postal rates, the export of their technology.

We've heard it all before. Buy Canadian, Buy Albertan, What Alberta Makes Makes Alberta, and so on. And it's all true.

Mr. Meschino is on the right track. But before anyone can buy Canadian, they have to know it's available.

Backfire

Political pot stirrers keep resurrecting the idea that Jack Horner's brother may also switch from the Tories, and seek the nomination in Edson, against Tory leader Joe Clark. Whether they're just keeping the pot boiling, or whether public opinion is being sounded is hard to say, but it seems to us the idea would be disastrous for the Horners.

Such a move, following brother Jack's defection, would give every appearance of a vendetta against Clark, rather than the matter of principle claimed by Jack Horner. As a vendetta, it probably would pall on voters in both constituencies, and in all probability the move would backfire.

Fababeans As A Source Of Nitrogen

Fababeans probably constitute the most effective nitrogen fixing crop being grown in the world today.

This statement was made by Alberta Agriculture's forage crops specialist, Larry Garrow. He points out that the serious effect the energy crisis is having on both the supply and price of nitrogen fertilizers is resulting in widespread interest in crops that require little, or no, nitrogen fertilizer, and which replenish the supply of nitrogen in the soil. In 1972 worldwide production of ammonia was estimated to require the equivalent of about 800,000 barrels of oil per day.

Fababeans is a legume which feeds the rhizobium-type bacteria that use atmospheric nitrogen to produce nodules on the roots of plants. The nodules release ammonia and nitrate nitrogen into the soil for use by the host plants and by the subsequent crop.

Studies carried out by research workers in Western Canada show that the rate at which fababeans fix atmospheric nitrogen can be as high as 300 pounds per acre in one year. "If we get a fababean yield of five tons of dry matter per acre with a protein content of 15 per cent," says Mr. Garrow, "we are getting 1,200 pounds of protein per acre compared with approximately 600 pounds from the average grain crop."

Assuming 6¼ pounds of protein is equal to one pounds of nitrogen, this 1,200 pounds of protein represents about 300 pounds of nitrogen per acre, excluding that contained in the stubble and roots would contain at least 25 per cent of that contained in the harvested crop, the amount of nitrogen left in the soil would be about 60 pounds per acre.

Work carried out by University of Manitoba scientists at Winnipeg, Manitoba, has shown that underlimed wheat crops grown on land that was seeded to fababeans the previous year will produce yields equivalent to those obtained from wheat grown on wheat stubble with an application of 25 pounds of nitrogen fertilizer.

According to Mr. Garrow, about 17,000 acres of fababeans are being grown in Alberta this year, mainly for hay although the green fababean varieties do not mature early enough in this climate to ensure a seed crop. "The main reason that the fababean acreage in the province is not larger," says Mr. Garrow, "is probably because seeding costs are high compared with those for other crops. It requires a seeding rate of at least 150 pounds per acre and many farmers are not prepared to risk this investment. However, this situation could easily change in view of the probably introduction of earlier maturing varieties and the impending nitrogen shortage."

CHURCH CLOSES

It is learned with deep regret by Roman Catholics and Protestants alike, that little St Jude's Church at the hall corner closed its doors last Sunday for the last time. It has been a sentanel on that corner and it is hoped that whatever use that is found for it, will be a most favorable one. Parishoners are to attend church in Tofield, as they are now included in that parish.

A lady by the name of Alice Dyck attended United Church on Sunday. Miss Dyck taught in our neighboring district of Franklin in the early 1930's and took music lessons from Mrs. M. George.

Dance tickets for the harvest time dance are available from either Shirley Rawlicks, Joyce Bowerman, Kay Grummett, and Dolly Reddick.

At the August meeting of the crafts centre on Monday evening a games night was planned for September 26th. Lunch will be served. All are welcome. No admission.

Edna and Glenn Ferguson and Dolly Reddick attended the wedding in Edmonton and reception in Mundare of friends, Vivian and Gene Strzymiska.

Approximately 20 ladies attended the cake decorating demonstration at the craft centre on Tuesday evening. Sharon Jones was the demonstrator. So much enthusiasm was shown that classes will be held at a later date. All interested please notify Sharon Jones or Theresa Regier.

Recreation Report

It's hard to believe that today is the first of September. The summer has already come and gone. This has been my first summer working in recreation and I have certainly enjoyed it. I enjoyed visiting all the very active playgrounds where the kids were having fun. And the senior citizens - what a great group!

After a month's leave of absence, I will be back in October to start the fall programs. I hope everyone will participate in at least one program.

So, until October, have a good fall!

PLAYGROUNDS

Playgrounds officially closed August 26. It was a good summer and the leaders are to be commended for a job well done. It seemed the leaders were always busy planning camp-outs, pet shows, bicycle parades, sing-a-thons, and so on.

At this time, I would like to thank all the leaders for the good work done this summer. Thank you Cindy Josephson, Cheryl Anderson, Susie Stensrud, Wendy Komarnisky, Regina Girard, Robin Solberg, Sherry Wickstrom, Tammy Helgeland, Vanessa Maaren, Donna Friesen, and Lynn Warner. You were all lots of fun on the job and after hours too!

SENIOR CITIZENS

Please let me confirm a rumor that the Seniors are headed south this fall. September 19 - 22, we will be heading for the Medicine Hat and Cypress Hills area. A $55.00 registration fee includes transportation, meals and accommodation for four days. I will only be accepting 44 registrations, so register early!

You can pick up your registration at the following places:

Tofield Dykeman's Confectionary, Ryley Chemist, Tofield Holden Country Inn, Eben Hoper Bruce Hardware, Viking, Sampson Sears

So, pick up your registrations at the following centers, fill out, enclose $55.00, and send to Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department, Box 1, Ryley.

We ran the trip last week and I can see that I wasn't going with you.

Understanding the Main Temperment

It is harder to be a man today than ever before. Expanding technology means a faster pace, a greater specialization of skills, and more pressure on the job. Damagaging morality, throughout society imposes a greater burden on fathers to provide proper leadership and direction at home. Signs of this are: Wife-battering, divorce rates, sudden wealths, rises and dropping increases in mental illness. Tim LaHaye believes the Apperion male has reached the point where he needs to discover who he is and why he acts as he does in order to be effective in life.

The book accomplishes his purpose in two distinct steps. First, he applies he much-heralded principles of the four natural human temperaments in examining the major characteristics of the male personality. Secondly, he explains how God can completely transform your natural personality.

Ellen Eaton

Harold and Esther Bailey and 3 daughters of Edmonton spent 2 weeks in Europe They spent 4 days in Denmark, 10 days in Sweden and the balance in Scotland and northern England They returned home August 22nd and report a very enjoyable three weeks Harold is the son of Ed and Violet Bailey of the McKenzie district.

Thursday visitors at the home of Howard and Ida Ferguson were Howard's sister, Mickey and Charlie Niemetz of Rosa Creek district and Jerry and Kay McCann of Elk Point.

Susan, daughter of Arnold and Deanna Nelson went into the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton August 24th where she underwent surgery on Aug 25th on her elbow Deanna has been staying with her during the day most of the time and expects Susan home this weekend.

Howard and Nellie Malcolm of Rosa Creek district and Emil and Diane Pikula of the north McKenzie district were Sunday evening visitors at the home of Charlie and Mickey Niemetz.

The annual Waterston - Jones get-to-gether and picnic was held at the home of Glen and Theone Jones, again this year with 49 or more family members present Those present were from Camrose, Edmonton, Bruderheim, Tofield and this district The picnic was held on Sunday with the weatherman cooperating to make it a pleasant day for the family get to-gether

Charlie and Mickey Niemetz were visitors at the home of Mickey's sister Emily and Ernie Roberge in Edmonton on Friday

Ellen Eaton was among some 19 senior citizens from Tofield who went on a bus tour to the Ukranian Village celebration on Sunday, taking their lunch along After having visited the many buildings on the grounds, we enjoyed the program at the bandstand during the afternoon, especially the colourful costumes of the Ukranian dancers and singers. One group was the choir from the Ukranian Church in Vegreville The musical numbers were especially good. Altho' all the singing was in Ukranian, the voices were really beautiful. Some of the speakers were members of the government of Alberta who are helping with the financing of the Ukranian Village project on Highway 16 east of 75th Island Park.

Charlie and Mickey Niemetz were Sunday afternoon visitors at the home of their daughter, Patsy and George Dekker and children at Ryley.

On Aug. 13th Ellen Eaton, who went to Edmonton with the Senior Citizens from the County of Beaver, stayed in the city and was an overnight visitor at the home of Jean and Tony Volney On Tuesday afternoon, Tony took Ellen to the Grandview Auxiliary Hospital where she visited her brother, Johnston Campbell.

The district around here looks very green and pleasant compared to large areas of Southern Alberta and most of Saskatchewan, from where I have just returned, after attending the annual conference of the Canadian Nature Federation, held this year in Regina We may not enjoy this changeable weather, but the alternative is painful to observe, with capacity of grazing and now down to one cow per 150 acres in the Medicine Hat region. It was most exciting to see the migrating flocks of cranes feeding on the reserve at Last Mountain Lake, north of Regina, the same sandhill cranes that should very soon be wheeling above us in the sky over Hastings Lake, among them was a solitary adult whooping crane, outstanding in its size and brilliant white plumage Hopefully a record number of its fellows will reach the winter feeding grounds this year Next Au.ust's conference will be in Prince Edward Island

At the Strathcona Pony Club Show at Pullonvale on August 20th the Hastings Lake entrants did very well and we placed in all their classes. Cindy Rabby was second in the Junior and third in English Equitation, first in Western Equitation and second in Jumping; Lori Jurgens came third in the Turnout and fourth in the Western, while Katrina Hokanson received an honorable mention in English Equitation and came third in the Western. Dennis Hokanson won his class in Western Equitation and came third in the English and fifth in the Jumping

Farms larger, farmers younger

. . . census shows

Figures recently released in the 1976 federal census show that there were 57,310 farms in Alberta last year compared with 61,702 in 1971

During the same period, the average acreage per farm increased to 864 acres from 790 acres, and the average number of cropped acres increased to 326 acres from 300 acres

The total wheat acreage for the province increased dramatically over the five-year period to 5,543,574 from 3,443,511 acres Oats and barley stayed about the same as they were in 1971, while the rapeseed acreage dropped to 739,225 from 1,507,625.

The average acreage per farm devoted to pasture increased to 51 acres in 1976 compared with 44 acres five years earlier

Cattle numbers increased to 4,603,056 last year from 2,702,125 in 1971. During the same period, hog numbers decreased to 876,383 from 1,185,539 and sheep numbers decreased to 187,403 from 344,

The number of cars on farms increased to 52,305 in 1976 compared with 51,344 in 1971, the number of trucks increased to 100,894 from 93,471 and the number of tractors increased to 116,316 from 111,206

The census data also indicated that the average age of Alberta farmers may be shifting from one age group to another In 1971, 39.5 per cent of the farmers in this province were over 55 years of age and 16.7 per cent were under 35 In 1976, 39 per cent were over 55 years and 15.6 per cent under 35. This leaves 51.4 percent in the 35 to 55 year bracket, almost the same as it was five years ago

Insurance adjusters in the Prairies have approached Agriculture Canada scientists for help in assessing the effect of hail damage on rapeseed crops

Dr. Ian McGregor, a plant physiologist at Agriculture Canada's Saskatoon, Sask., Research Station says artificial injury experiments on test plots showed that rapeseed plants have a remarkable ability to recover from hail damage The yield of individual plants increased dramatically due to less competition among the surviving plants

He says that with the preliminary information available, both insurance adjusters and farmers will benefit from the more reliable criteria for assessing hail damage

Good harvesting weather needed

The co-operative of the weatherman is rapidly becoming an urgent need for farmers intent on getting their crops harvested.

In most areas during the past week, harvesting operations slowed to a crawl because of wet weather, and came to a complete standstill in other regions.

As the summer comes to an end and the poor weather continues, farmers have something else to worry about, as frost warnings gradually become a regular occurrence and damage to crops could become a reality.

Three-quarters of the rapeseed crop in the Tofield area has been cut while twenty percent of the barley is cut. No other crops have been cut and only ten percent of rape has been threshed.

Operations around New Norway came to a near standstill last week as rapeseed cutting increased to include only sixty percent of the crop while barley cutting rose to only twenty percent and a start was made on wheat and oats. A small start was made in rapeseed threshing.

Farmers in the Ryley region report that 40 percent of the rape crop has been cut while only 10 percent of the barley is cut and a small start has been made in getting wheat cut. Only one-quarter of the rape crop has been threshed.

One-half of the rape crop around Camrose has been cut with only thirty percent of the barley being cut to date with a small start having been made to wheat. About 20 percent of the rape has been threshed and a start has been made with barley.

Slightly less than one-half of rape has been cut around Round Hill while barley cut to date amounts to ten percent and a small start has been made with wheat and oats and only eight percent of the rape has been threshed.

Holden reports that seventy percent of the rye crop has been cut while thirty percent of the rapeseed is cut. A here start has been made on the other crops in the region. Forty percent of the rye has been threshed and a slight start has been made with rape.

Dayaland farmers are having it the toughest row to hoe to date as only thirty percent of the rape has been cut, while oats stands at ten percent with a start having been made to barley and the wheat remains untouched. Fifteen percent of rape has been threshed with a slight start being made to barley and oats.

Expected yields vary in different locations. Wheat has a high estimate of 60 bushels per acre in New Norway to a low of 22 bushels in Holden with most areas expecting between 23-30 bushels per acre.

As far as oats are concerned, New Norway again leads the way expecting a yield of 65 bushels to the acre while Holden and Tofield are estimating 45 bushels.

Barley crops also show a wide range as Dayaland area farmers are expecting to reap about 30 bushels per acre while the Ryley area is expecting a yield of about 30 bushels.

While most areas seem to indicate a crop averaging 30 bushels of rapeseed to the acre, they are wide differences as New Norway expects to lead the way with twenty-five bushels while Holden regional farmers expect only 12 bushels.

Rye was planted in only two areas with Holden expecting a yield of 35 bushels per acre while Dayaland expects 25 bushels.

Two regions saw flax seeded. Camrose farmers expect 14 bushels to the acre while Dayaland expects to get 11 bushels.

Information on harvesting progress was obtained from reports provided by the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — There's an uncomfortable feeling becoming prevalent in the capital that Canada may have missed the pipeline boat. Within a few days President Jimmy Carter must make the U.S. decision on whether or not Canadian territory will be used to pipe Alaskan natural gas down to the southern states, assuming that Canada offers him such an option.

The reports by Mr. Justice Thomas Berger and the National Energy Board make it pretty obvious that the cabinet cannot now offer a Mackenzie Valley route for such a pipeline but a route down the Alaskan Highway is a real possibility.

The trouble is, we've had little time to study the Alcan route, and even less to study what would happen if a spur line is built to the Mackenzie Delta via the Dempster Highway. That spur would be necessary if Canadian natural gas is to use the same pipeline.

There are difficulties over the environment and native rights with the Alcan and Dempster routes which will take time to solve. There are also difficulties in raising the $6 billion or more it will take to build the pipeline.

The result is, many steps up here in that President Carter is likely to decline any offer made by Canada for a pipeline route cut his losses and opt to build a second pipeline across Alaska for natural gas beside the one already carrying crude oil. After all the State of Alaska which owns 18 per cent of the gas from Prudhoe Bay fields, desperately wants the construction development to take place in Alaska.

What it will mean for Canada is that [illegible] than $9 billion in jobs and [illegible]

MONEY SENSE FOR KIDS

It's back to school time Perhaps you are planning an allowance for your children this year Sue McCormack, D.H.E. at Manning wrote the following article on kids and money.

The billions of dollars spent each year emphasizes the need for early money management training Managing money is not just a skill for adults In fact, one reason many adults are in financial trouble today is because they did not receive money management training at an early age

Parents should take the responsibility of introducing their children to the basics of money at an early age of six or seven, when they are able to count It's important that kids understand that people have unlimited wants but one's wants must often be curtailed because of lack of money to fulfill them Kids must learn that once money is spent for one item, there may not be enough for another

Let your children pay part/pate in money matters Young children should be shown the value of different coins Let them count out money to give a sales clerk for a purchase Playing Store' encourages them to understand the exchange value of money Older children can be involved in projects that show the basics of running a business, or how to save To be effective, learning by doing should not overtax your child's abilities and should be related to something they understand Children seem to learn very early that money can get them some of the things they want Unfortunately, however, many children do not learn about saving or limiting their spending Money is a very practical teaching tool That's why giving children an allowance is important Even that dime you give a small child can be used to teach him about basic budgeting

By the time kids are in elementary school they should be getting a weekly allowance and by the time they are in their ... they should receive ... allowance The ... of allowance should ... by both kids an... parents

Family finances and the allowance are given to your child's peers should be considered and talked about. The amount should be reviewed regularly Money should never be doled out on a "need" basis; it only encourages kids to consciously con money from parents.

Allowances should not be connected with routine household chores like doing dishes or making beds, such duties should be expected of family members and do not need to be rewarded Allowances should not be reduced when kids regularly earn extra money Controlling additional funds helps them to become financially independent and increases the buying choices they have to make.

It is not a particularly good idea to cut a kid's allowance as a punishment or to give extra as a reward for good grades or behaviour It is better if children learn to work with an amount they know will be there

Let your kids make their own mistakes it is a good way for them to learn Don't be too willing to help them out when they overspend Instead, arrange an advance on a future allowance, or float a loan to be repaid within a specific time

Teaching kids to save part of their income is vital to money management They should be introduced to saving at a financial institution as soon as they can write their names, and they should have some control over the money in their accounts By placing their money in financial institutions kids have an opportunity to learn about interest, loans, and credit They should be encouraged to set saving goals and watch their money grow

Children need to know money management With the expansion of credit and the development of an electronic financial system, this kind of knowledge is a must to survive

As parents, you should make sure it is a continuous part of their learning experience

On Thursday evening, we had an Ethnic pot-luck supper at the arena Twenty five people attended the delicious supper and participated in the games later in the evening.

Since Friday was our last day, we planned a treasure hunt and a party for the afternoon. The kids ran all over the fairgrounds looking for clues and finally found the treasure, which was a pinata, filled with candies After the pinata was broken and the candy was divided up, the children had cake and soft drinks Gifts were presented to Jackie Pulet and Shelley Drader for being such en

Donna and Lynn, the playground leaders, would like to thank everyone who volunteered their help or attended any of our special events and thank all those people who encouraged and supported us in our efforts This past summer has been a very enjoyable and rewarding one for us, and we hope that the children and their parents have had as much fun as we have

Adventists operate own private school

Seven Day Adventists have opened their own private school in the Village of Ryley

The school opened on Tuesday in the Seven Day Advent Church in Ryley and came as a shock to school officials in the County of Beaver who had no prior warning that such a school would be opening

Eight students, in grades ranging from two through eight, are currently attending the private school and are being taught by Alma Riter who moved here from Yorkton, Sask

Ms Riter is a teacher by profession and is qualified to teach She told The Mercury's representative that no trouble is expected in having a private school operate in the County of Beaver

Representatives of the Seven Day Adventists attended a meeting of the County of Beaver School Committee on Tuesday afternoon to seek busing so that rural pupils could attend their school

On such short notice, school committee members were unable to find out if the private school meets all the requirements of the Department of Education and is therefore a legal school

As a result, officials agreed to continue to bus rural students to Ryley on the understanding that they are going to county operated schools In the meantime, administration is to contact the Department of Education to find out the exact status of the privately-operated school

The move by the Seven Day Adventists is the second such shift away from county operated schools since school terms began this fall as Mennonites in the area around Edberg have started their own school and withdrawn their children from County of Camrose operated schools.

Around the town

A large number of ladies recently gathered for a bridal shower for Lena Schroeder whose marriage to Peter Hauser took place on Saturday Lena had been living in Vancouver in recent years where she was attending university

Out of town guests at the silver wedding anniversary celebrations of Earl and Marge Daloe, on Sunday, were Art and Norma Tiedemann of Falvan, Ivan and Anne Phillips and Nellie Anderson of Edmonton, Bill and Elsie Lanzerak of Grande Prairie, and Tom Kirkness and Landa Butler of Edmonton

Visiting with Mrs Rempel and other family members, this past week, were Mr and Mrs Jacob Rehan of Vancouver and Mrs Elizabeth Wiens of Germany

Doris and Arney Wiens and children of Herschell, Sask were visitors, last week, with Doris' parents, Mr and Mrs. Abe Hiedebrecht

Allan and Michael Warner attended a provincial shoot in Saskatchewan over the holiday weekend, coming home with a number of prizes Michael was first in tomahawk throw and finished in the top three in cartridge rifle and muzzle rifle competitions, while Allan was first in cartridge rifle and stake shoot and 3rd in cartridge

Complex opens Friday

The scene at the museum and cultural complex in Tofield, this week, is being best described as "feverish".

The reason is that everyone connected with the new complex is putting forth every effort to see to it that everything is ready for official opening ceremonies which are scheduled for Friday evening

The Historical Society is arranging a display of pictures for Friday and will be putting out a new guest book to record names of all callers

Arts and crafts people are putting the finishing touches to a paint job and are arranging a complete display of various types of pottery as well as a display of pottery in various stages of development

Representatives of both groups will be on hand on Friday night to explain the background of their displays

Tenants of the new complex are hoping that the public will respond to the invitation to attend the opening ceremonies which have been reasonably priced so that families might be in at tendance

Due to a misunderstanding, The Mercury was told last week that a public appeal for funds to help construct the complex had been held This was not true as no such campaign had been conducted The only public support sought is attendance at Friday's official opening

The evening will get underway at 5 30 p m with a barbeque supper in the Tofield Arena Some tickets are still available at Dykeman's Confectionery and That Place and a limited number will be sold at the door tomorrow (Friday)

The official ribbon cutting ceremony has been scheduled for eight o'clock with the Honorable Horst Schmid, Minister of Culture, Recreation and Wildlife, wielding the scissors and being the guest speaker for the occasion

A large mural has been painted on the wall in the museum, and will be taking part in the opening ceremonies Also taking a role will be Jim Sutphen of the Department of Culture Recreation and Wildlife

Another participant in the opening ceremonies will be Ian Patterson of the Provincial Historical Society As well, a number of local dignitaries will also be participating

Following the ceremonies, all those in attendance will be invited to tour the premises and the evening will be brought to an end with a family dance

The Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society held its annual agricultural Fair in August

The Fair was a success from all viewpoints as there were a considerable number of good entries and good crowds were on hand to view all the exhibits and take part in different activities

In every way, except one, the story was one of success, and the one failure was a terrible mistake made by The Mercury

Unfortunately for everyone concerned, the report of the Fair's success was published in The Mercury under a headline which read "Holden Fair held"

The Mercury extends its apology to the people of the Beaver Heritage and Agriculture Society for this error and congratulates them on holding another highly successful Fair

Unattended vehicle robbed by thieves

It apparently is not safe to leave your car unattended if it happens to be a rural truck

That's what Gordon Graham of Rural found out on Friday, when his car broke down ten miles south of Holden When he returned the next morning, the car's mag wheels, alternator, battery, a can of oil and other items were missing, with the value of the items valued at approximately $400 The Tofield Detachment of the RCMP is investigating

Vandalism is continuing to be a problem in the area A number of juvenile boys have been charged with vandalism at the Tofield Office and Town and Country Decorations while charges are pending against several juvenile girls following damage to a canopy over a picnic table in the Lions Park in Tofield

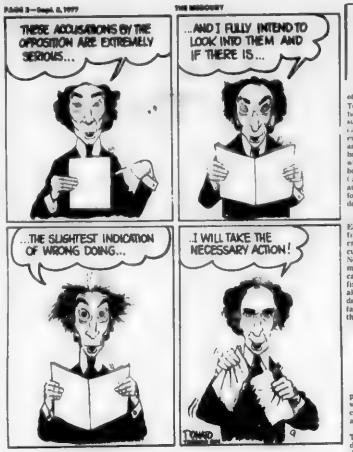
Operators of the Beaverhill Motel were also target of vandals as several windows in the motel were smashed

Shirley Policzky of Poe reported to police that her tenant, Bonnie Henderson was a victim of thieves who stole a twenty-four inch light chandelier and a quantity of purple fuel Total value of the loss was estimated to be $430

On Saturday afternoon, a police car going north on 48 Street in Tofield, was in collision with a vehicle that had been proceeding west on 54 Avenue with damages to both vehicles amounting to $2,700 No one was injured in the mishap

Constance Giles'sabois reported that her car had been struck by a hit and run vehicle while she was shopping at the Tofield Co-op Damage to the vehicle amounted to about $150

During the past week, RCMP received a number of complaints of careless driving in the area of the acreages north of Tofield Investigations into these complaints are continuing



We've been had

Thousands of motorists confronted with the new highway speed signs in the past few days are bitterly unhappy, whether their new car has the double-marked speedometer or their old car is still marked in miles.

It doesn't matter how clear the big Km. marking is, it still gives motorists the feeling they can drive faster than is really legal, with the new big numbers. And as one motorist remarked, even though my speedometer is marked in metric, the odometer (measuring distance covered) is still in miles.

The thing making many motorists really unhappy, though, is all the extra expense involved, for no visible or practical accomplishment.

The whole institution of the metric system was imposed on us to help us compete in international markets, yet it's hard to comprehend how highways in kilometres will make a dime's worth of difference to our international trade. Practically the only thing it could conceivably accomplish would be to keep a large number of men working, and forcing added pressure on an almost superheated labor picture, making us less and less competitive internationally.

We doubt if even the government can ever find out, much less the official opposition, the cost of converting all those highway signs. But wouldn't it be interesting to compute instead, how many covered swimming pools centres like Camrose might have had, or how many public libraries might have been initiated, or upgraded.

But then, of course, swimming pools and libraries don't help out our international trading position, do they.

No insurance, no license

Responsible motorists everywhere will applaud the action of Alberta Solicitor General Roy Farran recently in removing licenses from fourteen cars when their insurance was cancelled. Every appearance indicated the pink card necessary to obtain a license had been obtained only by the purchase of short term insurance on which the second payment had not been made, the intent obviously being to allow the insurance to lapse after the license was issued.

The unsatisfied judgment fund is in dire enough straits without the raids such uninsured motorists could perpetrate on the fund. Either they should obey the laws, follow the rules, or not have the privilege of driving. This seems to be the way the solicitor general views it, and he has the authority to suspend both driving privileges and vehicle registration if he deems the circumstances warrant.

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA – (SF) – The report of the Canadian Radio-Television Telecommunications Commission on the CBC says isn't some of the broadcasting bureaucracy smarting. It was expected that Harry Boyle and his six communities boys would concentrate on whether or not separatism had been promoted by Radio Canada the CBC's French arm but the pundits were fooled. That was not the job being done.

The fact that French and English broadcasting are so firmly separated drew criticism and the CBC was accused of cultural apartheid. Not such that said the committee but our public broadcasting corporation has a fixation with central Canada along the Quebec City to Windsor axis which results in a failure by the CBC to portray the differing regions of Canada as they are to the rest of the country.

That's exactly what you could expect with production facilities for the CBC concentrated in Toronto and Montreal, and with executives of the CBC in both those places working like beavers to remove the last shred of network programming from other centers.

When you have all programming coming from those two major centers what you get on radio and television is a picture of the country as perceived by the production staff in Toronto and Montreal. You want to cover the maritimes? Fine, give them fish, logging and lobster. The prairies? Okay, Indians, ten gallon hats, oil, and wheat. B.C.? Oh visually that means mountains logging and fishing with a couple of Vancouver drug stories thrown in extra. What utter nonsense.

There are other aspects to Eastern and Western Canada facts which can best be portrayed through the eyes of those on the spot reflecting the changing culture of their areas for viewing and listening coast to coast.

The CRTC committee report makes it pretty obvious that CBC needs a major management shake-up before such diversification can be accomplished, and there's no better time to start.

Decentralizing CBC production facilities will be quite a dramatic experience for some of those who have constructed empires in Toronto and Montreal but the CRTC committee is dead right when it says that the centralism which has developed is damaging to national unity.

More programming of regional origin will be an extremely refreshing change.

— Hail report —

It hailed three days in our project area during the past week with the one on Friday covering the largest area of any storm to date.

During the afternoon of Thursday, August 25th, cells developed southwest of Sundre, east of Ramsey, north of Calgary, west of Rocky Mountain House, near Ponoka, Hinkley and Buffalo Lake. At about 4 p.m. a major storm developed northwest of Pigeon Lake and later covered an area from Lacombe to Camrose. Tops reached 40 000 feet. The storm were seeded with 128 logs flares and 151 base flares. Thirteen hail reports were received in the area north of Red Deer and 49 south. Most were pea or shot size with some grape. Very little crop damage was reported.

On Friday, August 26th, about 1:30 in the afternoon a storm developed west of Rumsey, and by 3 p.m. formed a line from Kinsella to Carbiers. This line continued east and dissipated about 4 p.m. near Stettler. Tops reached 36,000 feet and radar reflectivities were as high as 53 dBz. Hail was reported west of Rocky, west of Bentley, and east of Blackfalds and Morningside. These cells were seeded with 220 logs and 115 base flares. 157 hail reports were received in the northern area and 19 in the southern area. Crop damage ranged from 15 per cent to as high as 100 per cent eight miles south of Bentley.

Hail-type clouds occurred along the foothills on Saturday, August 27th. Tops reached 35,000 feet near Rimbey by mid-afternoon. Seven reports of hail were received but no crop damage was reported.

Sunday, the 28th about 9 in the evening cells developed in the Drayton Valley and Torrington areas. Ten base flares were utilized and two reports of pea size hail were received.

Tax relief for travelling students

As most people know, you can get some relief from income taxes for moving expenses incurred when you travel to work at a new location providing, of course all the conditions are met. But what many don't realize is that the same deductions are available to a full-time student who travels to some other location to attend a post secondary educational institution in Canada, or even abroad. At least, it's available to the student with taxable income such as a scholarship, bursary or research grant. It is also available to the student who traveled to take a summer job. The rules, which have been in effect since 1972 have been clarified in a recently revised interpretation bulletin (IT – 178 R) issued by Revenue Canada and available from any district taxation office. As will be explained, at least one item in that bulletin is at variance with a proposed amendment to the Income Tax Act. When that proposal is passed it will overrule that one point in the bulletin. One of the conditions that must be met in order to claim a moving expense deduction is that the move takes you at least 25 miles closer to your job or to your classes than your previous place of residence.

A farmer speaks to the media

Fred Petroff, a farmer from Canora, Saskatchewan, said some important things about farmers and the news media last week. He was not the only spokesman on the subject. In fact, Eugene Whelan, Minister of Agriculture, Honorable Edgar Kaedby mentioned the awesome power of the [illegible] to his remarks.

Mr Petroff said, "We producers, with help from the media, should present the following message. If a consumer wants a plentiful supply of food, then the producer must have the opportunity to make a profit. If the consumers want to have a plentiful supply of cheaper food, then they must be prepared to supply us with cheaper goods and services to produce it with and still show a profit."

He emphasized that agricultural producers must begin to think of themselves as agricultural managers rather than laborers. They must realize that they are really manufacturers subject to the same economic laws as any other business. Decisions can no longer be made on traditional or romantic notions. The real question is: will the decision show a profit? That is what our society understands.

Mr Petroff asked the media present if they realize that all is not well with the presentation of agricultural issues and the agricultural image. Are minor issues pursued to the exclusion of major issues because they are more sensational and sometimes acceptable to the public? He uses as an illustration one particularly disturbing interview on a popular morning TV show when Gordon Parks, a B.C. cattleman, attempted to present the desperate situation of the cow-calf operators. When Mr Parker began to outline the extreme negative economics of the situation, the interviewer interrupted exclaiming, "The prices have gone down, why that is beautiful. This is what the whole fight against inflation is all about." Yet this same man was quite understanding when intervening other segments of society who complained that their wages were not indexed properly to keep up with inflation, or that wage negotiations were being dragged out and they were forced to fight inflation unfairly. "It would seem that to the opinion of some, if it is the agricultural producer, then pain doesn't hurt," concluded farmer Petroff.

FALL INSECT CONTROL

This is the time of year when strawberry root weevils like to [illegible]

Above a quarter of an inch long and wingless, large numbers of these black insects all [illegible] to move into homes for the winter. Although they are harmless, and are not usually around for more than two or three weeks, they can, nevertheless, be quite a nuisance during their migration period.

According to Alberta Agriculture entomologists, the best way to deal with these insects is to fill all the small cracks and holes around windows, doors, etc. so that they cannot get into the house. However, if you find that you cannot live with them for the few weeks they are around, you can use malathion (if the temperature is above 20 C) or chlordane to control them. Spray a two to three-foot area of ground around the foundation of the house and spray three feet up the foundation wall.

Garden Slugs — If garden slugs are still causing problems there are several things you can do to control these greyish-brown, slimy legless creatures that are about half an inch long. You can lay boards on the ground in the area you want to protect. If you check under these boards each morning, you can kill the slugs that have gathered there. You can also use fly screening to protect special plants. Place it around the plant, or plants, and bury the bottom edge in the soil.

If the above suggestions are not practical, you can buy a commercial preparation containing metaldehyde for controlling garden slugs. These preparations are available in bait, pellet and spray form.

Pear Slugs — The pear slug is another garden pest that is common at this time of year. Resembling a tiny, black blob of jelly that is about three-eighths of an inch long, they attack the leaves of cotoneasters, hawthorns, mountain ash, pin cherries and fruit trees. The damaged leaves look as if they have been scorched, and may drop from the tree prematurely.

A stream of water under strong pressure will usually dislodge pear slugs from the leaves of shrubs and trees. However the infestation and the damage are severe, you can spray or dust with rotenone, pyrethrum (if the temperature is above 20 C) or carbaryl.

Archery—a new frontier

There are several reasons why Alberta sportsmen should take a hard look at archery as an alternative to the use of firearms in harvest game. More and more land is being set aside as provincial parks. This is a trend that we hope will continue and even expand, as it provides outdoor recreational needs for future generations. Nothing can be more important. But it does take land away from the hunter. We also have areas of dense population centers where there is a good supply of harvestable game but where firearms would endanger human life, or the lives of valuable farm animals. Game in parks and farm areas could be hunted with bow and arrow with no interference with the priority use. Firearms, and motorized vehicles that accompany them, frighten game away from their natural habitat and preferred food supply. This is unfortunate, as many people like to see game animals and take pictures of them. Archers move silently and invisibly through the hunting terrain, causing no disturbance.

We must agree that the modern high power rifle has become a bit too efficient for the harvesting of big game. Animals can be killed or at least wounded at a distance of up to 500 yards with rifles equipped with telescope sights. We hardly dare to have a season on females for fear of decimating the herds. We are now looking at the possibility of limiting each hunter to one animal, or go entirely to the draw system. These restrictions can be avoided where the bow is the legal weapon. Seasons can be wide open on all species, ages and sexes.

Objections have been raised to the use of the bow for hunting. The bow, it is said, is not effective enough to contain population explosions in game herds. This may be true. However, a short gun season at the end of the bow season would take care of this. Some fear that the bow and arrow will leave many wounded and crippled animals at the end of the season. This I do not feel would be true. The razor sharp barrelhead cuts as cleanly as a surgeon's scalpel. Such wounds heal quickly and painlessly as there is little tissue destruction. Expanding bullets fired from high power rifles is a different matter. Tissue is torn to shreds up to two inches from the bullet itself. I have seen bones fractured into hundreds of chips. Surely, such wounds will never heal, the animals will suffer painful, lingering death. By international law such bullets are banned in human warfare as they would cause too much suffering.

Few sports have a recreational potential equal to that of archery. The prospective hunter will spend hour upon enjoyable hour with his 40 to 60 lb. bow perfecting his stance, precision nocking, draw, anchor, sighting, release, and follow through. He will develop his own system of sighting with a definite chin anchor, nocking point and marks on the bow or regular bow sights for elevation control. He will learn to judge distance to the nearest five yards as the flatness of the trajectory of the arrow leaves much to be desired. When he feels that he has a good chance to hit a grouse at 20 yards, and a deer at 35 yards, he is ready to take to the field on opening day. Believe me, that first rabbit or grouse will be prepared for the pot with the greatest care and according to the best recipes.

MAKING THE MOST OF FERTILIZER

By supplying fertilizer with the seeds, a farmer may end up with only a small increase, or the same yield as if he hadn't fertilized at all, as a result of seed damage caused by fertilizer. Some seeds - especially rapeseed, flax and mustard - are extremely sensitive to direct contact with fertilizer, says Harry Ukrainetz, a soil fertility specialist at Agriculture Canada's Saskatoon, Sask., Research Station.

Federal research scientists at Saskatoon, Swift Current Sask., and Brandon, Man. have been working on commercial seed drill designs that will place the fertilizer below, and to one side of the seed. The plants will benefit from the added nutrients without risk of damage during germination.

Good straw for feed

If you are planning to feed straw as the main constituent of your beef cow rations this winter, here are some suggestions on how to maximize its quality from Ken Wesenburger, regional livestock specialist with Alberta Agriculture.

First of all, he says, oat straw usually makes better feed than barley straw, and both oat and barley straw make better feed than wheat straw. He recommends cutting crops from which the straw is going to be used for feed as soon as is practical from the point of view of grain production. "Don't wait", he says "until the grain is dead ripe. Early cutting increases the amount of leafy material which can be saved.

Since leaves are much higher in digestible energy and protein than stems, the feed value will be considerably higher in straw which has retained some of its leaves. Also, the stem portion of the straw will make better feed if it is cut on the green side. This is especially true of oat straw.

If you think you will not need all your straw for feed, Mr. Wesenburger suggests that you use the straw from the lower, greener areas of your fields. In this way, you will save the best straw for feed, and, at the same time, leave straw on those parts of the fields which need it for added fibre.

Since chaff usually makes better feed than straw, you may find it worth your while to use a commercial chaff gathering machine both on your combine. You can also save a considerable portion of the chaff and leafy material that clings to the stems of the straw as it leaves the combine if you bale as long (the straw as soon as possible after it has been combined. Machine has nutritious material in the straw settles out to the bottom of the bale as it cools. This material can be lost by ... [illegible]

Laboratory in Edmonton for an analysis. "It is more important," says Mr. Wesenburger, "to know the quality of the straw you will be feeding than it is to know the quality of the supplemental grain you will be feeding.

Jolly Green Thumb

By Mary Furey Clymen

After that first, fine feasting on fresh-from-the-garden greenery, you're bound to hit a time when the kids groan "gee, Mom, not lettuce again," and old Dad just mutters noises like a rabbit. It's time to replant anyway, so how about some different greens from garden to table?

Per openers, there are those that you might be tossing away as you pick produce from the plot. Carrot tops, for instance, can be cooked right along with tiny, fresh carrots. They can also be steamed separately, if you have what the Southern cooks call "gracious plenty." Beet tops are equally good, alone or combined with their ruby red roots. Don't forget cooking with lettuce, either. The French steam peas in a bed of the green stuff, then mix and enjoy. If you're anywhere but in the concrete jungle, you needn't check around for wild, edible greens you might be passing up as weeds. These are poke, the chicories, the sometimes wild sorrel (mmmmmmm!). If you don't recognize the table types, perhaps a friendly native will point them out to you. Back to greens replacing. Have you checked the amazing varieties of spunach? Spinaches? Anyway, seed catalogs list them, with two that are standouts for taste and hardiness. These are New Zealand and Malabar, both good producers in 10 to 12 weeks. Then, there's Orach, the mountain spanach, also called French spinach or butter leaves. It's great eating, but from young, tender leaves only. Locate seeds in catalogs or at garden centers that carry the assortment. Look at collards, endive, and the delicate Oriental greens - tampala, edible burdock, Chinese parsley, and on and on. Think fabulous main dishes and hint-of-the-East salads. Let us put an end to the idea that garden greenery is lettuce-period, and get into emerald adventures in the garden. '76 poultry marketing

Canadians increased their consumption of poultry meat in 1976, eating about 45 pounds per person as compared with 43 pounds the year before.

The increase was mainly in chicken consumption with slight increases in ducks, geese and turkey consumption last year was down slightly from 1975.

The amount of poultry marketed by Canadian producers last year rose correspondingly with the hicher consumption. Production figures released by Agra ulture Canada's market information service show that farmers marketed about 76 million birds in 1976 for a total poultry meat output of 107 million pounds.

Meet the Smiths:

Community minded family. Thieves? A public menace?

The Smiths are basically a good family. They care about their community and their future; they support local events and charities and enjoy their sport . . . they could be any Albertan family. Occasionally, one of the family collects a sign for a room wall. It's not stealing, you understand, just a bit of 'fun', and nobody in the family really minds.

That 'fun' isn't fun at all and somebody in the family should mind. It's stealing, plain and simple. And because that STOP sign isn't there anymore, someone could be killed or seriously injured. The Smith's are liable to a fine of up to $1,000.00 or a jail term . . . and that's not 'fun' either.

If someone in your family wants a 'STOP' sign here's an easy way to get one at the cost of a letter. Just mail this coupon to Alberta Transportation marked 'STOP Sign Poster' and we'll send you one. That way, you get your STOP sign and the road signs stay put.

Minimum and zero tillage

Increased crop yields over the past two decades have been achieved at the expense of a considerably increased energy input in the production process.

Keith Price, weed control specialist with Alberta Agriculture, reports that recent data from Europe indicate that wheat yields in that part of the world increased by 50 per cent between 1950 and 1971 and that the energy input required to produce this increase went up by 250 per cent. Perhaps it is figures like these, combined with the increased concern about our depleting energy reserves, that are responsible for the current interest in reduced, or even zero, tillage systems.

The minimum and zero tillage systems of cropping are not completely new. Both British and American farmers have been using them for at least 10 years and have found, as with other cropping systems, that there are advantages and disadvantages.

Mr. Price thinks that minimum and zero tillage should be called concepts rather than systems because there is no one system that will suit all conditions. He also believes that farmers are going to have to change their basic attitude towards cultivation before they will be able to accept these concepts. Cultivation is not inherently good for the soil as many people believe. In fact, it is actually harmful to the soil. Only when this fact has been accepted will farmers be ready to consider alternative methods of crop planting and weed control and to cut out unnecessary tillage operations.

Soil scientists recognize that tillage destroys the soil structure and the organic matter in the soil. Long-term effects can include a lower water infiltration rate, increased water run-off, lower moisture holding capacity and reduced fertility. The basic effect on the soil shows up as increased wind and water erosion, then poor crop stands and a tendency for the soil to bake and crack. Many farmers automatically work up soil which has formed a crust, and so the vicious circle continues. In essence, the more the soil is tilled, the more it will have to be tilled.

Since minimum and zero tillage entails replacing tillage operations, wherever possible, with alternative practices, specially designed seed drills have been built which seed directly into the stubble. They eliminate seed bed preparation and post seeding harrowing. Nitrogen is provided for the crop by an application of manure, compost or chemical fertilizer rather than by oxidation of the organic matter in the soil.

Weed control in minimum and zero tillage systems is achieved with herbicides and is aided under zero tillage by the nature of the weeds themselves. Since annual weeds prefer to grow in disturbed soil, tillage actually creates ideal conditions for them. Tillage also places their seeds deep in the soil and can induce dormancy. In subsequent years these seeds can be brought to the surface through tillage and produce a new crop of weeds.

Because perennial weeds usually increase under minimum and zero tillage systems, they must be controlled with herbicides. It is the new herbicides that have been developed to control perennial weeds (they leave no soil residue) that have made minimum and zero tillage feasible.

Mr. Price stresses that because minimum and zero tillage will not solve problems associated with poor soils, they should be tried first in the best and cleanest fields. He also advises anyone considering minimum or zero tillage to first obtain a no-till planter with a fertilizer banding attachment, a straw chopper and a good weed sprayer and to be prepared to devote at least three years to the trial. "It will take at least that long for the structure, fertility and weed population to stabilize," he says.

Camping family style

By Angela and Ford Bothwell

A camper can plan each trip with care and always take along the right gear, but whenever he heads out he deals with one unknown he can't plan — the weather.

Wherever he goes the camper usually hears weather sayings from the natives to which he should pay heed because many old weather maxims are based on solid reasoning. A camper should learn which of them are accurate much of the time and remember them. One to remember is the old saw "red sky at night, sailor's delight, red sky at morning, sailors take warning," which is based on the fact that moisture in the atmosphere causes variations in the color of the sky, which indicate where the next rain will fall.

More important to the camper when storms are threatening are regular weather reports. But he can also become an amateur forecaster himself by using a good book on weather, by studying it and learning the weather vanes that nature provides. Here are a few to start with.

You can look for it to rain if

Puffs clouds start forming up vertically.

Feathery clouds high up begin to thicken and clouds start to form underneath.

Hail-like clouds form in the west and the sky begins to darken. The winds from the south increase and the cloud start moving from the west.

A north wind starts shifting to the west and then to the south.

The barometer begins falling steadily.

There's a ring around the moon or a halo around the sun.

It very likely will clear if

The barometer suddenly begins to rise rapidly.

An east wind starts shifting around to the west.

The bases of clouds begin a slight rise.

Fair weather will probably remain that way if

The barometer holds steady or begins a gradual rise.

A gentle wind is blowing from the west or southwest.

Early morning fog burns off by noon.

Puffy clouds float across a sunny sky.

All of the above are solid weather facts any camper can learn with a little study. There's no reason the weather should ever catch you completely by surprise.

STUDENT SERVICES

Dr. Marvin Lee has been appointed Director of Student Services. In addition to gaining a Ph.D. in English, he is a former professional football player and has been on the rosters of the Montreal Alouettes, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, and the Edmonton Eskimos.

As director of student services, Dr. Lee will be in charge of the counselling program, student activities, resident life and health services. He succeeds Lorne Becker who served as acting dean of students last year.

In addition to his duties as Dean of Student Services, Dr. Lee will serve as a part-time English instructor.

Susan ("Sam") Macintyre joins the college staff in the newly created position of Director of Residence Life.

A native of Ontario, Miss Macintyre attended Valparaiso University between 1966 and 1970, earning her B.A. at that institution. She was involved for some time in the Youth Leadership Program, training people in all aspects of youth work, including youth counselling, drop-in centres, probation counselling, and adolescent crisis.

As an interning youth worker she spent time in Fort McMurray, working for Trinity Lutheran Church and the Town of Fort McMurray. Other work experience includes three years as a Child Care Worker at Lutherwood Village for Youth (Waterloo, Ontario) - a residential treatment centre for emotionally disturbed youth, one year as Dean of Residence at Alberta Vocational Centre in Fort McMurray, and some time as Church Secretary at Grace Lutheran Church in Kitchener. In the meantime, Miss Macintyre spent a year at Queen's University completing a Bachelor of Education Degree with majors in Elementary Education and Dramatic Arts.

CHAPLAINCY

Rev. James Rasmussen has been appointed as the College's first full time chaplain. Rev. Karel Lunde, who previously served as both Chaplain and Religious Studies Instructor, now becomes a full-time instructor in religious studies.

Mr. Rasmussen obtained his degree in divinity from Wartburg Seminary, Iowa, in 1963. Tofield citizens proudly open cultural complex

The new Tofield Museum and Cultural Complex was paid tribute as "a work of the heart from all of you" by Hon Horst Schmid, minister of culture, recreation, and wildlife, at official ceremonies of the complex on Friday night attended by an estimated 300 people

Ad guest speaker for the evening, Mr Schmid praised the arts and crafts centre and the museum as "an example to all of Alberta" and stressed the importance of providing long lasting benefits to future generations in the community. He went on to say that Tofield is a prime example of people in the community coming themselves and their future generations making their children better citizens, and urged them to keep up the good work in providing a place that their children may always reside in or come home to with pride

Ribbon shearing

Wielding a 150-year-old pair of sheep shears, Hon Horst Schmid, minister of culture, recreation, and wildlife, cut the ribbon to officially open the new museum and arts and crafts centre in Tofield on Friday evening. Holding the ends of the ribbon are, left, Harold Schultz, president of the Tofield Historical Society, and right, Andy Hesberg, president of the Tofield Agricultural Society. Standing second from left is Mrs. Yvonne Brown, president of the Tofield Arts and Crafts Club

Harold Schultz, president of the Tofield Historical Society, in thanking all those who helped in organizing the museum, said they were "the best kind of people", and added that the society members will be spending many happy hours this winter, working to put the museum displays in better shape by next spring

Councillor for division 7 in the County of Beaver, Charlie Sears, said he was proud of all their recent progress, citing achievements such as the swimming pool, and said he felt very fortunate to be part of one of the "better off" counties in the province. M.L.A. for Clover Bar, Walter Buck, lauded Tofield as one of the best towns in Alberta for people getting together and getting things done for their community, and he congratulated them for that

Mrs Yvonne Brown, president of the Arts and Crafts Club, told the audience that as a club they trued for seven years to get arts and crafts activities going in Tofield, using church basements and the lobby of the arena complex, and added that they were thrilled and proud of their new permanent facilities. She hoped that everyone can now enjoy what they are doing as a club.

There are still many people around here who are still living that history which we are trying to preserve, said Ian Patterson of the Provincial Historical Society, and because we still remember, it tends to become commonplace. He emphasized that we must not forget that much must be preserved for future generations.

A number of awards were made in recognition of work done towards the realization of the cultural centre. Harold Schultz was presented with a framed copy of the minutes of the first meeting of the Historical Society held in January, 1973. Andy Hesberg, as president of the Agricultural Society, made the presentation. Jim Singbeil of Vegreville, who has worked in close association with the Tofield organizations as an employee of the department of culture, recreation, and wildlife, was given a gift in appreciation

Mr Hesberg was presented with a gift, a set of cufflinks with the provincial insignia, by Mr Schmid and Mr Buck in recognition of his work in furthering cultural and recreational progress in the community, besides heading the Agricultural Society, he chaired the building committee for the new complex, working with Homer Schmidt and Bob Wyllie

A gift, a piece of local craft work, was given to Mr Schmid by Mrs Hazel Patterson as a gesture of thanks for his attendance at the official opening, and Mr Schmid in turn presented Mrs Patterson and her husband Conrad with "Alberta" lapel pins. Mrs Patterson was secretary of the committee arranging the official opening and is active in the Arts and Crafts Club while Mr Patterson did the painting and much finishing work in the complex. Also on the opening committee were Mr Hesberg, Mr Schultz, Doris Brown, and Yvonne Brown.

To perform the official ribbon-cutting duty at the door to the cultural centre, Mr Schmid was given a pair of sheep shears, 150 years old, from the museum to use. The huge crowd then squeezed into the complex to witness the unveiling of two paintings done by a local artist, on view in the museum. Both were painted by Mrs Cora Severtson, who unveiled one depicting the pioneers Reed Francis of Ardrosan unveiled the other painting, a picture of the old Francis farm, homesteaded by his grandfather

After preliminary groundwork, such as obtaining government funding and planning the complex, the project itself was started about a year ago, with construction beginning last October. A grant of $47,864.50 was received for building the complex, and an additional $27,300 grant was given to pay off the old debt on the arena. The total debt remaining on the entire complex — arena and cultural centre — is now $28,800, reports Mr Hesberg, which will be taken care of through a three mill assessment to county and town ratepayers

During the opening program, greetings were also brought by Dr. W. H. Prescott, mayor of Tofield, and George Baker, mayor of Ryley and director of County of Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department. Other government representatives present were Jeff Arnold and Jim McKee of St. Paul, regional consultants with the department of culture, and Robert White of Edmonton, representing the visual arts division with the provincial government. Mr Hesberg was master of ceremonies for the evening.

Ask us about our Time-Plan Personal Financing Program. It could be just what you're looking for.
Flexibility is one of the most desirable features of personal financing plans. Because flexibility enables a lender to tailor the terms of your loan to you and your budget — rather than the other way around. That's why we've tried to make our Time-Plan Personal Loan Program as simple, flexible and economical as possible. And we'd like to show you how Time-Plan could be applied to your personal financing requirements, and perhaps improve your current and future budgeting situation. Why not drop in and get the facts from me or my staff. And please ask us for our booklet on Saving and Budgeting money. It's got lots of tips in it and some might work for you.

Regent rapeseed may alter crops

A new variety of quality, high-yield rapeseed called Regent is being shipped from the University of Manitoba's Plant Science Department to selected seed growers on the Prairies. Regent, low in erucic acid and glucosinolate and developed by the university's Dr. Baldur R. Stefansson, was licensed on March 2nd could replace all other rapeseed varieties now grown in Canada. The new strain has all the attributes researchers have been striving for, for more than a decade, plus offering the farmer the promise of high yields, writes Susan Hoeschen from Winnipeg. Rapeseed is now Canada's third largest crop after wheat and barley. This year, Canadian farmers intend to plant about three million acres of rapeseed and with world prices up around $6 a bushel, exports could be worth $180 million. Another new rapeseed variety recently licensed is Candle, also low erucic acid and low glucosinolate but slightly lower yielding than Regent.

Developed by Dr. Keith Downey, of Agriculture Canada in Saskatoon, it is intended to be grown in the northern areas of Western Canada where early maturity is required. [illegible] variety [illegible] ch has indicated, could be detrimental to animal health if consumed in substantial amounts.

Behind the Seams
BY PEGGY BENDEL

Fabrics for the home are on sale right now so it's a good time to start a project. A little decorator sewing, as sewing for the home has been dubbed, can make a big difference. Start with a pillow cover or two. This is the quickest and easiest way to give a tired room some [illegible].

To cover cushions or pillows you already own, use the old decorative cover as a pattern. Or, take the length and width measurements and add one inch to each.

The trick to making a pillow cover look right is a snug fit. Foam pillows, for example, take covers about one half inch smaller on all dimensions. This gives you a neat, smooth pillow cover. The foam inner form needs to be slightly squashed to fill out the cover properly.

Although you could omit it, piping gives a pillow cover a polished look. Use purchased piping, which is cord covered with fabric, or make your own. To do it yourself, use fabric cut on the bias and stitch with a zipper foot on your machine in order to get really close to the cord. Machine baste the piping in place along the seamline, again using the zipper foot, before stitching the seam itself. Where necessary, and especially at corners, clip into the piping seam allowance so it sets flat.

For easy care, include some kind of opening in your pillow cover. The most unconspicuous is an invisible zipper inserted in a seam. As a shortcut, you could also create a seam down the center of the pillow back for the zipper insertion, but the cushion would not be reversible. An overlapping closing, like that used on a pillow sham, is the quickest of all to fashion. It is ideal when only the top of the cover is meant to be on view, such as a needlepoint or embroidery top. For large pillow covers, such as for floor cushions, look for the heavy-duty zippers meant for slipcovers.

When you want decorative pillows in odd shapes or sizes, you can count on making your own inner forms for the pillows. Slabs of foam rubber can be cut into novelty shapes with a serrated knife and rubber cement will bond foam pieces if you must piece two or more sections.

Shredded foam or polyester fiberfill are good fillers for inner covers made from muslin or sheeting. The foam shreds will give you a bouncy, resilient pillow while the fiberfill is lighter, fluffier and softer.

Be sure to make any form slightly larger than the decorative cover for that store bought look.

A LIVING SAVIOUR

Galatians 2:20 "I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, yet not I but Christ liveth in me"

Real christianity is not really a religion in the sense that you think of other religions. Most all of them depend on the teachings of their founder, who though he may be death, yet he is revered and respected

Christianity on the other hand operates on an altogether different premise it revolves around a Living, Risen Saviour who lives and reigns in the hearts of those who believe in Him.

A high ranking Hindu Student in a large University in the land of India was asked, "In your studies what difference have you found between Christianity and other religions." He replied, "Many of the things that are found in christianity I find also in other religions, but there is one thing that christianity has that no other religion shares A LIVING SAVIOUR

Grain Harvesting And Drying Simulation Programs

Did you know that Alberta Agriculture has two computerized planning programs that you can use, free of charge, to help you decide whether you should have a grain dryer for optimum efficiency in your harvesting operations, and, if so, the type of dryer that would be most suitable for your specific conditions?

GRAIN DRYER SIMULATION PROGRAM

The grain dryer program simulates the mechanical drying of grain and calculates dryer performance and drying costs. It may be used to estimate the bushel per hour capacity of most types of dryers on the market today and the associated costs of drying grain.

It may also be used to estimate the size of dryer that would be required for a particular combine capacity, and to determine the best way of operating the dryer to keep costs to a minimum. The computer program gives a detailed description of changes in grain temperature and grain moisture content within the layers of grain. It will also give fuel efficiencies if these are required.

Grain dryer performance results obtained from the program include the drying rate, the amount of water removed, the shrinkage losses and the fuel use rate. The cost of housing the dryer, insurance, investment, labor, fuel and tax benefits are all taken into account to arrive at an overall cost of operating a specific dryer in cents per bushel

The input data that must be provided include, type of grain, initial moisture content, moisture content desired, type of dryer, its specifications, outside temperature and relative humidity

Grain Harvesting And Drying Simulation

This program simulates the total grain harvesting system and performs a cost-and-benefit analysis so that grain harvesting and drying alternative can be compared. It is designed to evaluate various grain harvesting and drying alternatives on the basis of total performance and cost, and makes use of daily weather data and actual machine and crop characteristics to simulate harvesting and drying in a real life situation. In addition the program has the ability to duplicate identical weather and grain conditions when comparing different combines so that the effects of different sizes and numbers of machines on the total harvesting system can be compared

The output from this simulation program includes a machinery performance summary, a financial summary and a weather summary. The items which can be compared with the data on two or more alternative harvesting systems are: fixed costs, variable costs, penalty costs of grain losses, completion loss, losses due to mechanical causes and natural losses, total harvesting costs, total days of harvesting, fall with days available after combining has been completed and per cent of crop shatter and/or combined. Comparisons can be made for each alternative thereby providing an indication of whether or not the simulated changed would make any improvement in the harvesting operation during both favorable and unfavorable weather conditions

The program can be used for swathing and combining or straight combining systems, and can handle most types of crops. It can be used to simulate conditions in most locations in the province. In other words it can simulate and evaluate a variety of machine combinations and farming strategies

The input data required for this program is fairly extensive. Assistance in filling in the input forms for this program and the grain dryer simulation program and in interpreting the results can be obtained from Alberta Agriculture engineers. At the present time it takes about a week to get results back

If you are interested in using either of these programs, you should contact your regional agricultural engineer, your agricultural engineering specialist or the Systems Engineering Branch, Agriculture Building, 9718 - 107 st. Edmonton, Alberta.

The Hometown Paper

It's like a smiling, friendly face,
He like a voice you long have known.
You see it in some distant place
And wish to claim it for your own

The paper from your old hometown
Has bridged the long dreary miles;
And with it you can settle down
Among familiar tears and smiles.

It speaks of every friend you know,
It tells of scenes you yearn to see
It brings back joys of long ago
And tells of joy's that are to be

And as you run it's columns o'er,
Your yesterday's came trooping back;
You fancy you're at home once more,
And golden seem the letters black

It's speech is one you understand,
It tells of grief that you can share;
It brings you, in the distant land
Glad messages to banish care.

There, among scenes and faces strange,
The Old Home Paper seems to be
The faithful friend that doesn't change
A friend that you are glad to see

The sun shone on the Community Association for its 25th anniversary, the refreshments were ready for use, and best wishes out of the fathouse pit in mouth-watering condition

Speeches were short and appropriate for the occasion and everyone listened with interest and enjoyment to the account of the history of the Association, written (in rhyming verse) and read by one of the founder members, Ralph Denham We now have a curious snippets of the earlier history of the Community, as recalled by Mrs Muir, going back to the erection of the building, which was then a schoolhouse, in 1917 Alphonse Fontaine told of his incredibly long Eastern tour, covering eight thousand miles and extending to the coast of New Brunswick The next twenty-five years begins with the next general meeting, at the hall, on Monday at 8.00 p m

Grain Harvesting And Drying Simulation Programs

Did you know that Alberta Agriculture has two computerized simulating programs that you can use, free of charge, to help you decide whether you should have a grain dryer for optimum efficiency in your harvesting operations, and, if so, the type of dryer that would be most suitable for your specific conditions?

GRAIN DRYER SIMULATION

The grain dryer program simulates the mechanical drying of grain and calculates dryer performance and drying costs. It may be used to estimate the heated per hour capacity of most types of dryers on the market today and the associated costs of drying grain.

It may also be used to estimate the size of dryer that would be required for a particular combine capacity, and to determine the best way of operating the dryer to keep costs to a minimum. The computer program gives a detailed description of changes in grain temperature and grain moisture content within the layers of grain. It will also give fuel efficiencies if these are required.

Grain dryer performance results obtained from the program include the drying rate, the amount of water removed, the shrinkage losses and the fuel use rate. The cost of heating the dryer, insurance, investment, labor, fuel and tax benefits are all taken into account to arrive at an overall cost of operating a specific dryer in cents per bushel.

The input data that must be provided include, type of grain, initial moisture content, moisture content desired, type of dryer, its specifications, outside temperature and relative humidity.

Grain Harvesting And Drying Simulation

This program simulates the total grain harvesting system and performs a cost-and benefit analysis so that grain harvesting and drying alternative can be compared. It is designed to evaluate various grain harvesting and drying alternatives on the basis of total performance and cost, and makes use of daily weather data and actual machine and crop characteristics to simulate harvesting and drying in a real life situation. In addition, the program has the ability to duplicate identical weather and grain conditions when comparing different combines so that the effects of different sizes and numbers of machines on the total harvesting system can be compared.

The output from this simulation program includes a machinery performance summary a financial summary and a weather summary. The items which can be compared with the data on two or more alternative harvesting systems are fixed costs variable costs, penalty costs (or grade losses completion loss losses mechanical losses and natural losses) total harvesting costs total days of harvesting, fall work days available after combining has been completed and per cent of crop swather and or combined Comparisons can be made for each alternative, thereby providing an indication of whether or not the simulated changed would make any improvement in the harvesting operation during both favorable and unfavorable weather conditions.

The program can be used for swathing and combining or straight combining systems, and can handle most types of crops. It can be used to simulate conditions in most locations in the province. In other words it can simulate and evaluate a variety of machine combinations and farming strategies.

The input data required for this program is fairly extensive Assistance in filling in the input forms for this program and the grain dryer simulation program and in interpreting the results can be obtained from Alberta Agriculture engineers At the present time it takes about a week to get results back

If you are interested in using either of these programs, you should contact your regional agricultural engineer, your agricultural engineering specialist or the Systems Engineering Branch, Agriculture Building, 9718 - 107 st. Edmonton, Alberta.

Local visitors as well as some from Ontario enjoyed with the Lodge guests, the coffee and cookies, supplied by the cooking staff, in the spacious lounge. The manager, John B. Baergen, hopes this trend will continue. Visitors are more than welcome at any time at the Lodge.

Mr. Baergen has lived in Tofield almost all of his life. He went to school in Tofield. His work experience included farm work and work in a garage. The latter, he says, makes it possible for him to be on better terms with his car.

For twenty years he has been manager of the Tofield Co-op Store, a job which he enjoyed and had reservations about leaving. However he is intrigued by the challenge of his new job and is enjoying it very much.

During his years with the Co-op, Mr. Baergen took courses, and obtained diplomas, in merchandizing and management. The knowledge there gained will be of inestimable value in managing the Lodge, Mr. Baergen feels.

In preparation for the change of jobs, Mr. Baergen visited several other Lodges, so that he could incorporate the best features of each into the Tofield Lodge. He cited hope for the Lodge is that it have a cheerful, homey, atmosphere.

Mr. Baergen and his wife, Lena, have seven children. Elma, Mrs. Kirk of Edmonton is a nurse, her husband a draftsman, and they have two sons, Wendy, Mrs. Alan Bradley, is a secretary in Edmonton, France and Bonnie are both at school in Carenport, Saskatchewan, at Bible School and in grade twelve, respectively. Rodney is a manager in the Hardware Dept. of the Co-op in Regina, Cameron is working in the Co-op Service Centre in Saskatoon. Evan is a grade nine student in the Tofield School.

The Baergens have been active in the affairs of the Tofield Mennonite Church. Mr. Baergen has been involved in coaching teams in minor sports in Tofield, and was president of the Tofield Community League.

Jim Warner wins the Melnyk Award

By Grace Phillips

Jim Warner was the 1977 winner of the Melnyk Award in the Tofield junior high school. This award is the highest honor that a grade nine student can win. It is given annually in memory of Michael Melnyk, a member of the Tofield teaching staff who was killed in a train-car accident early in 1981. The award is given to the grade nine student who, in the opinion of the junior high students, ranks highest in academic achievement, sports ability, sportsmanship, leadership and participation in student activities, and behaviour.

Jim was this year's winner by a substantial majority of the votes of the students.

JIM WARNER

Jim is the youngest member of the family of Alan and Jean Warner. He is an excellent student who enjoys reading and music, especially playing the drums. He is also an enthusiastic participant in sports, particularly in hockey and basketball.

Jim was the 1976-77 president of the Big 3 of the Tofield junior high school and presided at the annual grade nine graduation banquet. He also won third prize in a 200-entry essay contest sponsored by the Battle River Tourist Association. His winning essay has already been printed in The Mercury.

As winner of the Melnyk Award, Jim will receive a small plaque, a miniature of the larger plaque on which his name will be added to the list of previous winners.

When he has completed high school Jim plans to enter the radio and television field for which he will take training at NAIT or SAIT.

Air charters for Canada

Provincial ministers of tourism met recently with the Hon. Jean Chretien to discuss the possibility of instituting Advance Booking Charters on air flights within Canada similar to those operated by airlines to Europe and other areas. Strong arguments were presented by the provinces for amendments to pricing structures of the airlines, and they should certainly be heeded by Ottawa

Not only that, but it seems to us Ottawa should go one step further and even subsidize holiday flights within this country.

Even the most distant part of Canada, at the extreme of Newfoundland, is only about two thirds of the flying distance to England or the Scandinavian countries. Yet instead of the fare being less, as would seem sensible, it actually runs about a third higher To fly a shorter distance. The fare to Britain, for instance, will only get you about as far as Montreal in this country.

And on top of higher fares to some of the beauty spots in this country at a considerable distance, Canadian travellers know they face far higher accommodation costs in this country than they would elsewhere. Partly this is only logical, for the hostelry catering to Canadian holidayers can count on only about a ninety day tourist season to cover his overhead for an entire year, as contrasted with much longer seasons elsewhere

All the same, Canada needs the fillup increased tourism would create for us It's estimated we could create about 5,000 new jobs, and generate a billion dollars in new business supply by making it economic and practical to holiday at home

What's Ottawa waiting for?

Clogging the courts

Ontario's new Chief Justice commented following his swearing in on Monday that lawmakers should give considerable thought to whether or not all the new laws they pass are really necessary for the good of society. Many laws, he suggested, simply have the faculty of clogging the courts, without producing great benefits for society

It's a point worth noting in a country where both federal and provincial governments are constantly extending the lengths of sittings in order to have time for all the legislation facing them

Ignorance of the law is no excuse for members of the general public but it's mighty tough for them to keep up when things are changing so fast that even the legislators don't always manage to keep abreast of changes.

Naturally, the world is changing rapidly, but more laws mean more loopholes, and more loopholes mean more laws plugging loopholes. So it goes, and as the new Chief Justice worried, the courts become clogged and the system breaks down

OTTAWA — (SF) — There's a new photographic star emerging on Parliament Hill. Well, the star isn't new, but the fact that he's gone deep into photography is

Last month former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker was in rare form when he spoke to assembled Tories out in Nova Scotia. He burned the tail of the Liberals in such a fashion that more than one listener was heard to wish whimsically that the old Chief was 20 years younger again, ready to drive the rascals out with fire and brimstone

They liked Dief so much that they gave him one of those instant cameras which produces pictures seconds after they've been snapped. Click, flash, whurr — and there's your picture

Dief started playing with the thing immediately, and by the time he arrived back in his Parliamentary office, he had the procedure down pat The staff was sent scurrying out within a few hours of the initial test run to buy more film and flash bulbs, while the new master photographer tested out his gift

Everyone who walked into the office was dazzled by an exploding bulb and the wicked glint in those Diefenbaker blue eyes as the photographer expressed satisfaction at the surprise of his victim Once the colors had come up and the picture - developed, - ie Chief would autograph the image for his visitor, then get down to discuss the business which had brought the guest to Dief's office

September 18 is Dief's 82nd birthday, and although he's slowed down, there are still few who can match his style when he stands to speak in the House of Commons The things which are happening today in Canada worry the old lion of the Tories greatly, and despite his years, we can expect to find John George Diefenbaker out there stumping in the old fashioned way more often

His speaking style is unique and his ability to play an audience still unmatched His sense of righteous indignation comes across in a crowd like the anger of the tables of the money changers being over turned

These days Dief has his bad days – days when his war horse frame won't do what his mind wants it to do, and days when the mind itself seems to hanker for some rest – but the spirit and ego of the man, his continuing interest in new things, keeps everything functioning

So now Dief has become a photographer And don't be surprised a some day soon a popular magazine offers him a deal to run some of the hundreds of pictures he will have taken by the time this is read Who says you can't teach an old dog new tricks — particularly when he has a thirst to learn

They may bite, but bugs serve a purpose

The scourges of the northern summer has to be the biting insects which will soon be taking over the countryside As LC Chamberlin of the Toronto District office of the Ministry of Natural Resources explains on the following press release, even though the bugs can bug you, they serve an important and useful purpose in nature's master plan

The season is fast approaching when the insect life will be out in full force The mosquitoes and black flies will be having a field day on any bare flesh available

Fishermen will alternate between fishing and swatting, often much to the detriment of their angling success. Nature lovers hiking along bush trails will be plagued by swarms of black flies, deer flies and bee flies, making what should be a pleasant interesting and fulfilling experience into a form of medieval torture

It could be chaos from this [illegible]. Fly country, and I think that probably [illegible] all of us, that insects of the black[illegible] mosquito, sandfly, deer fly and horse fly variety are a nuisance and could quite easily - and happily - be lived without

One solution - probably the most effective and dramatic one, would be to wipe out these insect pests using any safe means at hand Alas, the ultimate solution everyone says, gleefully rubbing their hands together let's do it But hold on a minute what will happen to everything else that depends on these pests for their very survival

Certainly the moose deer and bear and most small mammals would be almost as happy as we if the flies disappeared But what of the bats, frogs, birds, spiders dragon flies and many other organisms that depend on these flies as their major source of food supply what would happen to them.

Perhaps in wiping out one of the major sources of our discomfort during the summer we would also be, indirectly, wiping out many of the sources of our enjoyment of the season - the gently and joyful song of the birds, the croaking of the frogs and the beautiful symmetry of the spider's web glistening with morning dew

Another solution, completely undramatic but probably much more productive in the long run, is to learn to live with these pests by learning how to avoid them Numerous means of avoidance are presently readily available on the shelf of your local store in the form of sprays-on, liquid or cream insect repellents and suntan lotions

For those who don't like the inconvenience or smell of these products, vitamin B tablets or shots have been found to be very effective in repelling insects

In addition, the use of light-coloured clothing, while not guaranteed to repel insects, will tend to at least not attract them And of course, living and sleeping quarters can be protected from a majority of these insects by the use of fine mesh-wire netting over every opening When used properly all these means will permit you to enjoy the outdoors and all that does with it - birds, nature, frogs croaking, spiders spinning - yes, and even insects humming without the annoyance of fly bites

CLC sets new high enrolment

Again the grade 12 program is responsible for the increase, [illegible] have been turned away during the summer months. The full time university enrolment shows an increase of 44 students over last year's registration figures and the part time university enrolment has more than doubled from 22 students last year to within year

The following table gives comparative figures for this year's and last year's enrolment

2nd Yr University	89	90

Students enrolled in the Faculty of Education continue considerably the largest proportion of the total with slightly over a fifth at 104 Next is Liberal Arts with 71 while Commerce Science and Physical Education and Recreation Administration are closely grouped with 42, 38 and 36 respectively The groups listed comprise more than two thirds of the university level students

— Hail report —

September 15, 1977

The 1977 seeding operations ended on September 10th Hail was reported on 67 days during the summer which is much higher than the long time 20 year average of 45 days per season We actually seeded on 46 days compared to 38 last year and 45 in 1975. The number of hail reports per day for 1977 was 37 compared to a 30 year average of 25 per hail day

This year we only received 88 reports of walnut or larger hail This is only 4 percent of the total reports for the summer compared to the 20 year average of 316 reports of walnut or larger or about 12 percent of the total reports In other words the amount of walnut or larger hail was extremely low This is about one third of average In total the number of hail reports this year is approximately 15 per cent below average

This year we flew 360 flights compared to 410 last year but the total flying hours was 980 compared to 973 a year ago This year we used 4505 top flares compared to 6864 last year and 3105 base flares compared to 1562 a year ago

Since our last report we had two storms on September 9th We utilized 129 top flares and 69 base flares We received 14 hail reports but no crop damage was reported

Acts 27 35 (Paul) Took bread and gave thanks to God in presence of them all - he began to eat

The Apostle Paul set a good example for us when he gave thanks unto God for his food in the presence of a group of unsaved people If Christians would follow the Biblical practice in public as they do at home they would not only please the Lord, but would be a witness to unbelievers In an Atlanta coffee shop more than 30 people were seated at a counter giving the waiter their orders In the group were college students, a somber looking man with a briefcase a sullen teenager two young nurses and a couple with their young daughter each began eating the moment he was served, all except the little girl In a high-pitched voice that everyone could hear she exclaimed, "Mommy don't we ask a blessing here like we do at home?" The proprietor stopped wiping the already spotless counter and before the mother could reply he said "Sure we do youngster you say it." As she bowed her head, he glanced firmly at his customers and then bowed his head too Up and down, the row first one and then another followed his example The child's sweet voice rang out loud and clear. "God is great, God is good, let us thank Him for our food By His hand we all are fed Give us Lord our daily bread "Amen" As the people resumed eating somehow the entire atmosphere was changed By silent public prayer we not only worship God, we witness to men"

BATS

If you were bothered by bats that took up residence on your premises last spring, now is the time to do something about them.

By September most of the bats will have left their summer roosts and you can block the entrances they used so that they will not return next spring. Bats usually use several entrances and they are most often located in the eaves and around chimneys. If you are not sure which holes the bats have been using, you can often tell — as can those with brown stain around them. These should be blocked carefully because bats can wedge themselves through surprisingly small area.

Since bats defend themselves vigorously when captured, they should never be handled without gloves or some other form of protection. Although few people in Alberta get bitten, a bat bite is always a potential rabies hazard.

John Gunson and David Schowalter, biologists with the Alberta Fish and Wildlife Division, have been carrying out research on bats in Alberta since 1971. They say the bats that inhabit Alberta can be divided into two groups — those that form colonies and those that do not.

The little brown bat and the big brown bat are the most common colonial bats found here. The little brown bat often forms colonies of several hundred or more and other species. Surveys have shown that a maximum of 10 to 15 percent of the farm houses in this province have little brown bat colonies — and that's an even higher number than those with other buildings around lakes harbor bats.

The population of the little brown bat, the most abundant bat species in Alberta, is estimated to be about one million. Although colonies occur throughout the province, the highest concentration is in the parkland belt.

Little brown bat colonies consist mainly of pregnant and nursing females and their offspring, of which there are usually one per female. The intense heat in attics during the summer months is believed to accelerate the growth of the young, which are capable of flying at three weeks of age and are usually independent by the time they are a month old. Dry females and males roost in cool, dark areas like open sheds and behind shelters and doors. Most little brown bat colonies break up in early August, but, for some unknown reason a few remain into September.

During the time the colonies are dispersing it is usual to see bats in the day time hanging in sheds and on the outside of buildings. In fact a careful search in early September will invariably reveal a few of these bats in down town Edmonton. When there is a cold spell in the early fall they will often band in a torpid state for days.

The migration and fall breeding of little brown bats are combined in a spectacular swarming activity. This is the explanation behind the rare sightings of hundreds of milling bats, which appear one night and are gone the next. Except for a few bats that are found in caves in the eastern Rocky Mountains, the wintering site of Alberta's little brown bats is still unknown. It is known, however, that they require a moist, cool environment such as that found in caves and abandoned mines.

The big brown bat is less commonly found in attics than the little brown species. Apart from size, the big brown bat differs from his smaller cousin in that his colonies are usually smaller, and he prefers very old buildings. Female big brown bats usually give birth to one or two offspring.

This species usually travels a relatively short distance to hibernate, and it is not unusual to find these bats active in large buildings in Edmonton in mid winter. This is especially true of buildings that are being remodelled or demolished.

The hoary and silver-haired bats are typical of bats that lead a solitary existance and dwell in trees. Both species migrate in the fall to the southern United States and beyond. Because of their strong and enduring flight, the hoary bat is one of the most widely distributed mammals in the Americas. It can be found in the boreal forest of Canada, in Central America, and in Chile and Argentina in South America. In fact, these bats are the only mammals to have reached the Hawaiian Islands, and to have established themselves there without the aid of man.

AUTUMN

With the weather the way it is thinking about snowboots for children seems perfectly logical It feels like we could have snow any day Our clothing and textile specialist provided the following in formation on choosing winter footwear

Winter boots for children are an essential purchase and one which can involve con siderable choice and in decision Snowboots come in overshoe and pull-on over the socks styles

The best choice this year can be a different choice than was a good choice when the child was younger Very con fusing!

Toddlers

Toddlers are just getting their footings, and have enough problems man oeuvering without the ad ded bulk of snowboots! However, since most toddlers get outdoors in winter and spring, snowboots are a necessity

Most snowboots are water proof, whether they are made from rubber, vinyl or nylon Most are lined with acrylic pile or cotton fleece

For little ones, the rubber overshoes with adjustable straps, and cotton fleece lining are a good choice The pile trim around the top helps keep snow out They are relatively low priced and are readily available The child's shoes provide stability and support for little feet An added benefit is that the child wears the shoes rather than having to carry them

This style is available up to size 3, which fits about an 8 year old

Attractive and warm pull-on styles are also available for little children, but you do have to carry shoes along

Young Children

From about children's size 4, there are very few overshoe styles

Skidoo boots - nylon and rub ber outer with separate felt liners, are popular and prac tical for children through to adults They are for wearing over socks, and the felt liner does provide warmth They are quite water repellent too, for wet spring snow

"Moon Boots" are a current "fashion" They resemble the bulky boots worn by astronauts on the moon They are made of vinyl and nylon with fleece lining, and have real or fake laces They, too, are pull on styles, and come in sizes from around 11 to adult They are also quite warm and water repellant

Pull ons in dresser styles for girls are made of vinyl or leather with fleece lining Leather is warmer and more expensive but not waterproof They begin at about size 5 to fit about an 8 year old

Long haired pull-on boots are very fashionable, but fairly expensive, and not too durable They have a vinyl or rubber sole, long synthetic "hair" on the outside and fleece lining The long pile becomes matted and soiled and is not easily cleaned

Preschoolers are usually not too difficult to fit in practical, warm, waterproof snowboots This situation usually changes around school age, to the child wanting the same type of snowboots as his friends Practicality and mother's choice may not rule!"

Two escape death as vehicles burn

Two people escaped serious injury or death recently when the vehicle in which they were driving overturned and burned.

The accident occurred on Secondary Road 855, about four km south of Holden, on [illegible] 8A.

The accident is reported to have occurred when two vehicles were allegedly racing. One of the vehicles went out of control, overturned twice in the ditch and burst into flames, and was completely destroyed by the fire.

The twenty year old driver and his sixteen year old female passenger were both thrown from the vehicle before it burst into flames. Both were taken to hospital in Tofield with the man then being transferred to an Edmonton hospital.

The driver suffered a broken arm and head injuries while the passenger suffered [illegible] injuries.

RCMP are investigating and charges are pending.

Two break-ins occurred in Tofield while another took place near Shorta.

In Tofield, Country Girl Beauty Salon was entered and a small amount of cash was taken while nothing appeared to be missing after the Tofield Sport Shop was entered. Equipment valued at over $200 was taken from a CNR shed near Shorta.

RCMP are receiving complaints from farmers about hunters trespassing on their land.

RCMP are urging farmers to obtain the license numbers of vehicles [illegible] the trespassers, and are suggesting that farmers receive permission from the [illegible] before [illegible] land.

Another [illegible] has been urged to [illegible] failing to stop for a pause of [illegible].

The driver had been clocked at 80 km/h, which was 40km over the speed limit. He was chased by the RCMP but, after the chase left the highway, the RCMP withdrew after obtaining his license number, so as not to endanger the lives of any of the people in the [illegible].

A Ryley man has filed a complaint of assault against three men, who are reported to have assaulted him on the dance floor of the Ryley Hotel. Suspects are being interviewed by the RCMP.

Don Lien of Ryley, RR 1, checked out, with the Tofield RCMP, the possibility of a man misrepresenting himself as a police officer.

Mr. Lien was stopped by an unmarked car and a man showed him I.D. which he did not get a proper look at. Investigation proved that the man was a migratory bird officer and was accompanied by an RCMP officer from Camrose. Police advise that persons stopped by unmarked vehicles should always examine I.D.'s.

RCMP are investigating a complaint from a Holden resident that someone had removed the valve stems out of the tires of his vehicle.

Moving in

John Stauffer carries some of his property into the just opened senior citizens' home in Tofield. Mr. Stauffer, a former Tofield resident, moved to Tofield from Viking. He is a retired farmer and retired as the Mennonite Minister at Dodds in 1962. At the tender age of 88, Mr. Stauffer is still active and drives his own car.

—The Mercury Newsphoto

A farmer speaks to the media

Fred Petroff, a farmer from Canora, Saskatchewan, said some important things about farmers and the news media last week. He was not the only spokesman on the subject. In fact, Saskatchewan Minister of Agriculture, Honorable Edgar Kaeding, mentioned the awesome power of the media in his remarks.

Mr. Petroff said, "We producers, with help from the media, should present the following message. If a consumer wants a plentiful supply of food, then the producer must have the opportunity to make a profit. If the consumers want to have a plentiful supply of cheaper food, then they must be prepared to supply us with cheaper goods and services to produce it with and still show a profit."

He emphasized that agricultural producers must begin to think of themselves as agricultural managers rather than laborers. They must realize that they are really manufacturers subject to the same economic laws as any other business. Decisions can no longer be made on tradition or romantic notions. The real question is "will the decision show a profit?" That is what our society understands.

Mr. Petroff asked the media present if they realize that all is not well with the presentation of agricultural issues and the agricultural image. Are many issues pursued to the exclusion of major issues because they are more sensational and sometimes acceptable to the public? He uses as an illustration one particularly disturbing interview on a popular morning T.V. show when Gordon Parke, a B.C. cattleman, attempted to present the desperate situation of the cow-calf operators. When Mr. Parke began to outline the extreme negative economics of the situation, the interviewer interrupted exclaiming, "the prices have gone down, why that is beautiful, this is what the whole fight against inflation is all about." Yet this same man was quite understanding when interviewing other segments of society who complained that their wages were not indexed properly to keep up with inflation, or that wage negotiations were being dragged out and they were forced to fight inflation unfairly. "It would seem that in the opinion of some, if it is the agricultural producer, then pain doesn't hurt," concluded [illegible].

The Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund

Digest of the 1976-77 Annual Report

Purpose and Objectives of the Fund

Substantial revenues are presently being received by the Government of Alberta from the sale of non-renewable resources owned by the people of Alberta. However, it is expected that by the mid 1980's conventional oil and gas will have passed its peak both as a source of revenue and as a job-creating part of our economy. The Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund was established in order to ensure that Albertans in the future will continue to benefit as a result of these revenues.

More specifically, the objectives of the Heritage Fund are:

1. To strengthen and diversify the economy of Alberta so that meaningful jobs are created and high incomes maintained for Albertans in future years.
2. To improve the present and future quality of life in Alberta by doing some special things which would not have been done otherwise.
3. To provide a potential future source of financing for provincial government services as revenue from non-renewable resources declines.

Sources of Funds

The sources of funds for the Heritage Fund during 1976-77 were as follows:

1. The transfer of $1.5 billion in cash and other financial assets from the General Revenue Fund of the Province on August 30, 1976.
2. 30% of non-renewable resource revenues received by the Province – $660 million. The remaining 70% of non-renewable resource revenue remained in the General Revenue Fund and was applied to general government programmes.
3. Income earned by investments of the Heritage Fund – $88 million.

Outlook for 1977-78

Non-renewable resource revenue contributions and investment earnings are expected to total nearly $1 billion in 1977-78, causing the Heritage Fund to reach a level of approximately $3.7 billion by March 31, 1978.

It is estimated that during 1977-78, investments of $462 million will be made pursuant to approvals already given by the Investment Committee and the Legislature. These investment approvals include a further $186 million in housing, $141 million in the Syncrude Project related investments, $42 million in special health care facilities, $34 million in oil sands research, $31 million in special recreational parks, $29 million in irrigation and agriculture resources improvement, and $10 million in cancer and heart disease research.

Tofield to get shopping plaza

It would appear that the Town of Tofield is going to have a shopping plaza

Leonard and Arthur Schlender of Calmar have just purchased the property next door to the Treasury Branch property, on the east side of Main Street, south of the hotel.

Purchase of the two lots gives the Schlenders possession of a total of eleven lots on which they purpose to construct a shopping plaza

Details of the plaza are not known as sign and elevation plans have not yet been submitted to town council for approval

In another major development Tofield Tire and Battery have received a building permit for construction of a new workshop and showroom on 52 Avenue, west of Main Street, on the site of the old town shop property Value of the permit is said to be $60,000

Not following the script!

Royal American Shows

Any doubts people have over the ability of bureaucracy to run away with justice should be disspelled as they follow the unravelling of the investigation into the police raid some time ago on Royal American Shows. After carefully and methodically tracking and developing a case against the shows, as they moved across the country, police from several areas made an early morning sweep, taking into custody large amounts of classified information as to the financial dealings of the firm.

But even before any use could be made of the information gathered, the whole collection was seized by an officer of the federal Department of Revenue, probably acting without sufficient authority, but who was intent on protecting information about a secret "deal" between Income Tax and RCMP as to the treatment of evidence.

The situation is rapidly becoming one which is unjustifiable and intolerable in a free society. Mr. Justice Layerall is thwarted in his efforts to discover the truth. As the federal agent declines to introduce to the court the evidence taken, there is growing concern that the material has already been confused in sorting, and once again ordinary justice is being seen to be denied.

It seems strange there has not been an outraged cry of protest from every police force in the country, every legal association, and every attorney general.

It's impossible to see us sliding backward into the realms of Star Courts, secret proceedings, and private justice

Smooth conversion, but why?

Minister of transportation for Alberta, Hon Dr Hugh Horner last week commented "It's been a smooth conversion to metric measurement on Alberta highways, following the first week when motorists experienced kilometres in distance and speed instead of miles."

The question still arises, why convert?

The change has been made, and we won't be going back, so we're obviously flogging a dead horse when we belabor the point, but it rankles that the public has been sold a bill of goods, and a mighty expensive one, on the dubious claim that it will help in our international trade, and the even more dubious claim that we're simply getting in step with most of the rest of the world

Recently when conversing with an Australian physician we learned that laboratories in his medical range in Australia frequently buy large quantities of supplies from both Russia and China. And it came as something of a shock to learn that in neither case, he says, are the supplies measured in metric. He doesn't really know what the system of measurement is, except that it's not Imperial, nor is it metric. Further, he claims more errors are being made under the metric system than under the pints, quarts, gallons basis.

So much for the myth that most of the rest of the world are metric. If Russia, China, and the U.S. aren't metric, we must have been in pretty good company. And look at all the money we could have saved!

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SF) — Perpetual bellyaching about the fact that the RCMP keeps files on leading Canadian politicians has long ago reached the ridiculous stage, and yet it seems there is no end in sight

Of course the RCMP keeps files on politicians, civil servants, labor leaders and newsmen. The security section of the mounties would be badly derelict on duty if it didn't. What is so sinister about files? If you've got a credit card, or if you've bought anything on credit, there's a file on you, too — kept by a department store, an oil company, or a finance agency. Such organizations even share information and contribute to compiling personal credit ratings

The danger in Canada is that security files kept by the RCMP are moving far too close to the political field, and there is something wrong with government politicians having access to personal files of members of the opposition

Two years ago the system had a different character and it was much safer. The commissioner of the RCMP has direct access to the Solicitor General, the Justice Minister, and the Prime Minister. If anything worrisome was to be reported on any individual, the commissioner would bring those facts to the attention of security

Shortly after the FLQ crisis in Quebec, Jean Pierre Goyer became Solicitor General and he opened a security cose donation section in his office. That organization still exists, and there are hints that its role has expanded. No the appropriate minister, no serve the interests of national security question that security information on individuals has now moved much closer to the political arena and government politicians can call up the files of opposition members without drawing attention to their actions

It's one thing to have a security service in the interests of national security, it's quite another thing for the private lives of opposition politicians to be laid bare to cabinet ministers on demand. That's one small step away from the society of Big Brother, and it's dangerous in the extreme

Canada's security system badly needs an overhaul to protect both individual rights and the national safety. The difficulty is that the present government has not demonstrated it can be trusted to perform the task

Tourism zone buys promotion printing

The September meeting of the Battle River Tourist Association turned out to be a "spend money night" as members approved expenditures of almost $14 000 00

These included author ization for the purchase of 25 000 new copies of a $1 50 to $2 00 zone map for $7 000 00, 25 000 post cards for $800 00, 50 more brochure racks for individual members at about $600 00, a higher class of license for the association van, about $12 00, and a pair of winter tires for the van for about $120 00

The meeting was held in Donalda on September 15, and was attended by about 42 people coming from Chauvin, Wainwright, Irma, Ledue, Camrose, Bashaw, Stettler Castor, Forestburg, Provost Killam, Red Willow and a goodly number from Donalda The evening commenced with a dinner sponsored by the village proceeded through a business meeting and concluded with a program of slides depicting the scenery of the B R T A area

Mayor Garry Clement was on hand to greet the visitors to the Village of Donalda and extended best wishes for continued success

Leon D Albert Jansen of Wainwright reported that no statistics had been sent to the zone member printing and publishing companies within the zone to render on the production of 25 000 tour guides Only one The Provost News had responded Members were told that the first consideration was the contract to them The same companies got the nod to produce 25 000 zone maps

Lyseng Studio Ltd of Camrose got the order for 25 000 post cards

Further on post cards an evening meeting approved the 1500 set of 14 different post cards with a set of four that is to be available through the association Bill Fowler of Camrose reported the three suggestions which had come to him were a picture of a wild rose in bloom a harvest scene and a representative picture of the Badlands A vote was taken and the Badlands suggestion was favored by a large majority

In other business, it was reported that a delegation of six people from Wainwright, Provost, Killam, Lecbe and Camrose had visited Dr Hugh Horner, Minister of Alberta Transportation on September 9 in regard to the matter of erecting welcome signs on major highways entering zone Dr Horner had approved the idea as a zone project and had confirmed this by letter A committee headed by Bill Fowler of Camrose was directed to proceed to obtain the approval of a design and cost estimates

The association was advised by the Camrose Chamber of Commerce that it is studying the matter of perpetuating a Heritage Day Annual Event encompassing participation of native people on Dried Meat Hill

After approving the purchase of the 25 000 tour guides the members approved the advertising rates in the book These ranged form $20 for a two line listing to $960 of a member bought the entire back page Members will be advised of details about this in the near future

Bob Rutton of Provost reminded members of the bargain priced glove mats that are available to members at $7 a pair thousand of the 1500 originally available 900 have been sold and only 43 sets are left to be picked up Normally these are priced at $10 00 to $18 00 per thousand

Dear Sir

The record of the incumbents seeking re-election in Holden's Village Elections appears to be rather dismal Population loss, poor maintenance of equipment and facilities like the ambulance and community hall, as well as a deterioration in water quality and other services indicates poor management

Interest is high in that seven new citizens are seeking office Each appears to be convinced that Holden deserves better service and that this can be attained with a new set of councillors dedicated to fulfilling that goal

Let us hope that Holdenites study the candidates and the issues Perhaps a new and refreshing council may be the result

Progressive Farming

PURCHASE GRAIN DRYERS WITH CARE

Harvest season is so short that going through a long, long process obtaining farm machinery parts is something no farmer needs For that reason "Alberta farmers should only purchase grain dryers from licensed dealers within the province" says Bob McFadyen, Administrator of the Alberta Farm Implement Act

This fall has been a tense time for most Alberta farmers Weather conditions have been unpredictable, and so many areas grain that has been swathed or is ready to swath is being constantly exposed to excessive moisture, low temperatures, frost, wind, insects and birds

"If inclement weather persists it may be necessary to make wide use of grain dryers to assist with the harvest," says Paul Barisel, head of Alberta Agriculture's systems engineering branch "Each time these weather conditions prevail Alberta farmers try to get the cheapest buy, importing new and used dryers from the United States But, this cheapest dryer may not be like best buy even in the short run, much less the long," he added

Many foreign dryers are designed for drying corn, many are unable to operate and many lack the proper controls for drying cereal grains and oilseeds A major problem with imported dryers is they may have no marketing or service dealers in Alberta The result is predictable says Mr Barisel "They break down and there is no service or parts supply available on the short notice required"

Licensed Alberta dealers are looking for your business says Mr McFadyen, and they're willing to advise farmers on the best model for their particular requirements

Grain dryers come in many sizes and types There are bin dryers, batch dryers and continuous flow dryers Some units are stationary, others are portable They can run on electricity, natural gas, propane or tractor power

The chance depends on individual conditions If fields are widespread, a portable dryer with a propane fuel supply is recommended by most experts, but for close-knit farms a central handling system such as an in bin or continuous flow system might be more suited These last two systems also lend themselves to more automatic controls which free operator time for attention to other chores

Like so many things dryer costs have also continued to rise At present, most dryers suitable for Alberta farms require an initial outlay of $6,500 - $10,000 Operating costs also vary For those needing to withdraw only a minor amount of moisture, such as one or two points, the costs could be as low as 3-5 cents a bushel for labor, fuel and repairs However, most operators would find costs range from 5-12 cents per bushel, and in cases where extreme amounts of moisture must be removed costs could be as high as 20 cents per bushel

Other important considerations when purchasing a dryer are its ability to handle different crops and the ease with which it can be cleaned Farmers considering purchase of portable dryers should also contact their local propane dealer to ensure supply, determine cost, and inquire on the hook up required and whether any county or provincial permit is needed

There are several makes of grain dryers now sold domestically They should always be certified with one of the following nationally recognized testing agencies the Canadian Standards Association, the Canadian Gas Association, or the Underwriters Laboratories in Canada

"Investigate before purchasing any major equipment," says Mr. Barisel "It's a lot of money to have tied up for something which may not work when you really need it"

OTTAWA and Small Business

Foreign Intrigue

by JIM SMITH

The Senate, according to popular belief, is the burying-ground of the almost-dead politician Which makes it difficult to understand the widespread lack of enthusiasm for this institution After all, most Canadians seem to feel that the only good politician is a dead politician

However, some politicians appointed to the Upper House refuse to bow out quietly Certainly the members of the Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs seem determined to contribute some useful direction to the Canadian scene

The Committee meets regularly to mull over vital international issues. Currently, the topic is Canada-U.S. trade relations. And as Senate committees tend to do, its members have spent most of their time listening to representatives of big business explain why bigness is goodness.

But this Committee turns out to be rather different. Although big business spokesmen have been through, making their pitches about the value of concentrated commerce to Canadian life, the Committee also invited the Canadian Federation of Independent Business to appear.

The Federation, given the opportunity to intervene, proceeded to tear down the false economic idols of big business We do not need, it emphasized, more corporations of so-called world scale in order to compete in international markets

Japan, the Federation pointed out, is the world's most successful international trader. Yet it depends on small, independent business for 40 per cent of its exports. And this is from the nation which also has the world's most highly developed big business. The lesson is self-evident.

Then the Federation turned its attention to statistics supplied by big business to demonstrate that small business is inefficient. Here, too, the most efficient small Canadian firms are very involved in sub-contracting with bigger companies, the efficiencies of these firms show up in favour of the big business when the statisticians go to work, however. And, of course, the small businesses are very innovative and operate in creative ways, it just isn't possible to measure their productivity in the usual ways.

The Federation had much more to say. A great deal of ground can be covered in three hours. And the Federation itself that time to build an impressive case for more small business.

The senators listened They questioned They argued And, ultimately, they agreed with the Federation Senator Deschatelets called the Federation's suggestions "some of the most imaginative projects to deal with the problem of unemployment that I have seen for many years."

The senators acted, all told, like men for removed from the grave The Senate, in fact, may be more active than the House of Commons. Don't buy any liars for your favourite senator yet

Harvesting nearly stops

With almost no sunshine last week, harvesting operations were at a virtual standstill in most areas as the need for dry weather is rapidly becoming urgent if farmers are to harvest the 1977 crop

While some cutting occurred in most areas last week, very little threshing was done and the total crop harvested climbed only two percent with just a bit over twenty-two percent of the crop being reaped to date

Cutting operations fared a bit better as farmers in the Daysland area became the first to complete cutting of all crops Overall, cutting is now three-quarters completed, a gain of fifteen percent during the past week

While Daysland farmers managed to complete cutting, threshing operations came to a complete stop last week Three-quarters of the rape crop has been threshed while barley is 20 percent done, and oats and wheat are each only 10 percent completed Farmers in the Camrose area also managed to get some cutting done, but again, no threshing occurred

All of the rapeseed has now been cut Barley and flax are 60 percent cut while oats and wheat are 80 percent cut Rapeseed is 60 percent threshed with barley at 35 percent, oats and wheat are 20 percent and flax is 10 percent threshed Holden was another area in which no cutting occurred although some threshing took place with the rye crop now completely harvested with a yield of fifty bushels to the acre

Rapeseed is now 30 percent completed while oats is twenty percent, barley is 15 percent and wheat is only five percent done

Farmers in the Hay Lakes region managed to get some cutting done although they did not do any threshing

Ninety-five percent of the rape has been cut, 90 of wheat, and 80 percent of the oats and barley are cut Threshing stands at barley 20 percent done, oats and rape are 10 percent, while wheat is only three percent completed.

Round Hill farmers managed to get a little cutting done although they were not able to do any threshing

Rapeseed is 30 percent cut, barley is 70 percent, wheat is one-half while oats is 25 percent cut. Rapeseed is 25 percent threshed while oats and barley are only 10 percent completed and wheat has only five percent finished

Ryley farmers also managed to do a bit of cutting although they too were unable to do any threshing.

No report was available from the Tofield area. The last report showed 50 percent of rape, wheat and barley at eighty percent, and oats at 30 percent cut Threshing was 70 percent done to ragweed oats and barley were five percent and a start had not been made on wheat

Reports on crop conditions are received weekly from the Alberta Wheat Pool

STROKE

The signs of a stroke differ depending on which part of the brain is affected Numbness or paralysis of the face or extremities, confusion or dizziness, convulsions, and decreased levels of consciousness are common signs. Spy chief moves to NATO post

This month, a senior Canadian general takes over one of Nato's key positions He will be in charge of Intelligence, keeping a close watch on what is going on around the world and, more important, assessing sometimes conflicting reports for the Nato chiefs Yet, if he does his job well, the Canadian public won't hear a thing about him in his three years in the role The new head of Nato Intelligence is Major General Reginald Weeks Since Sept 1, he has been in charge of a team of intelligence officers from the Nato countries Theirs is the job of taking all the intelligence information they can get from the different member-countries, then sorting this out to give the best possible balanced view "The information-gathering system," Weeks explains, "is on the heads of the different Nato governments What we have to do from their reports is give the Nato commanders the best possible overall assessment of the other words, the networks of spies technical information gathering systems or anything else that provides basic intelligence isn't actually in Weeks hands That is the business of the various individual member governments The Intelligence unit is one of the most [illegible] Nato positions, even in a Canadian Although enough this first Canadian [illegible] has general to be [illegible] Until now it has been a senior European

Travel wardrobe

By Marilyn Hemsing
Clothing and Textile Specialist
Alberta Agriculture

Vacation time starts us thinking about our wardrobe. What will I pack, what will I wear, what new items do I need?

If you are the type to back-pack into the wilderness, or cruise the country on a motor bike a pair of jeans a couple of warm shirts and a warm waterproof jacket will complete your ensemble. But most of us want more variety in activities and therefore require different types of clothing.

Fabrics

Knit fabrics are your best choice for comfort and easy care. Jerseys, warp knits, and double knits pack easily because they don't wrinkle or crease and they maintain a good appearance during wear.

Woven fabrics wrinkle and will probably require at least touch up ironing. A travel iron would be an asset and doesn't take up much space. Consider the type of laundering facilities you are likely to have.

Try to anticipate the varied activities you may encounter and take only one outfit for the activities on the 'maybe list'. Plan to coordinate these 'maybe' items with the clothes you know you will use.

Select suitable garments for all temperatures and weather conditions. Rainy, cool days seem to find their way into nearly everyone's vacation but, hopefully, warm sunny days will take precedence! A coat – preferably water resistent or a warm sweater are essential.

Coordinates

Coordinates are invaluable in a travel wardrobe for folks of any age! If a jacket can be worn with a skirt, pants, shorts or a dress in addition to it's matching garments take it! Then coordinate other pieces to wear with more of the garments. With a limited number of garments, you can appear to have a varied and extensive wardrobe.

But beware! If you will be in contact with the same people for several days, you may quickly tire of wearing the same few clothes mixed and matched. It would be a pleasant change to see a different color occasionally.

Coordinates, of course, are not necessarily centred around traditionally basic colors navy, brown, grey and black.

Select any outfit you like that can be worn with at least one other article in your wardrobe. You may be surprised how many articles you have that can be mixed and matched. Perhaps only a new shirt blouse or pair of slacks are needed to tie it all together.

Accessories

Don't forget accessories – jewellery, scarves, etc. They don't take up much space, and can brighten up even a "tired" wardrobe at the end of a vacation. Shoes take up space so try to select one color to go with most outfits plus comfortable walking shoes, and a pair of slippers or beach sandals.

Planning and Packing

It's wise to lay out all the items you think you will need along with all the accessories to accompany each outfit. This way, you won't forget important items, you can count the number of different ensembles you have and you can see how much you have to pack.

Before any item is packed give it a critical eye. Is it really necessary? Is it clean and in good repair? Where would it be most useful to you in your suitcase overnight case or purse?

First, pack odd shaped items such as shoes, camera, makeup case, curlers, blow drier, curling iron, razor, hair spray, clock. Fill in the spaces with lingerie and crush proof clothing. Place the heavy items at the side opposite the hinges.

Next, layer garments, beginning with the least used or least crushable. Fold each garment smoothly with as few folds as possible. Include tissue paper in the folds of garments which wrinkle.

By layering the clothes, the top layer can be removed down to the articles you want, without disturbing anything.

Small jar of detergent for hand laundry, soap and facecloth; shampoo and curlers, sanitary supplies, razor, deodorant, camera, spot remover; aspirins, prescription drugs, alarm clock, sewing kit with needle, thread, pins, masking tape, a few hangers for emergencies.

Shoes and Shoes

Spread all the things out that you plan to take. Pack half the clothes and take twice the money, and you should come out about right!

Around the town

Mrs. J.A.C. Smith gave a shower on Tuesday night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O.W. Robinson. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Newport left on Monday for a trip to the Maritimes. They will be visiting friends in Halifax, Dartmouth and Moncton.

Mrs. Betty Brown of Toronto is visiting in Tofield on Saturday for a visit with her mother Mrs. J.E. Stimson and her sister Shirley.

Senior citizens take a Cypress Hills tour

Sixty senior citizens, three drivers and guide, enjoyed four wonderful days while visiting the Cypress Hills area.

The weather co-operated well with sunshine, light cloud and a touch of rain. No hay vesting was in progress along the entire route as fields of standing grain and swaths were seen as far south as Medicine Hat.

Wildlife sighted on the tour included mule deer, buffalo, antelope, and even a moose in the Cypress Hills.

The friendly hospitality extended by those met was fantastic. In Hanna members of the Hannah Historical Society served coffee and tea along with bag lunches. Mrs. Stratton's daughters in Brooks arranged lunch and a very friendly visit at the local Drop-in Centre. Mrs. Sangster, program director, and Mr. Weiss, supervisor of the Veiner Centre in Medicine Hat worked overtime to ensure that all were well fed and entertained.

The Drumheller seniors have just relocated to a much larger 'drop-in Centre'. Our group was the first to be entertained there. A small local orchestra provided music and many enjoyed the old-time dances. Lunch and coffee was served to all. Thursday's lunch was also eaten in the shelter of the Centre.

Perhaps the highlight of the tour was the day-long trip from Medicine Hat, via Maple Creek, to the Cypress Park across the top and over the serpentine trail westward to Ft. Walsh, in Saskatchewan. The autumn colours of the trees nestled on the hillsides and in the coulees were a beauty to behold. The views from the Look Out points were awe-inspiring, indeed. Onward to the Cypress Hills Park – Elkwater.

Here a slight provocation almost upset the apple-cart. However all finally arrived at the Raschenes Hotel, safe and sound.

Visits were made to the Alberta Glass Factory and Historical Museum in Medicine Hat, and to the Medalta Potteries in Redcliff.

Orchard run no juicy profit

Consumer groups and others who believe farm organizations and marketing boards are playing a major role in the ever rising cost of food will be interested to learn what is actually happening regarding the manufacture and pricing of apple juice.

I was curious about the subject and especially about the share of the retail price that goes to the apple grower. To find out I went straight to the horse's mouth — Sun Rype Ltd., the grower owned company that manufactures apple juice, and the Oliver-Osoyoos Co-operative Growers' Association, one of the grower owned apple packing plants that sorts and grades the growers' apples and supplies Sun Rype Ltd with apples for juicing.

First apple juice is manufactured from apples that do not measure up to the standard required for the fresh fruit market. Efficient and up-to-date equipment is used for extracting juice from the apples, filtering, pasteurizing and canning the product. No slow, antiquated and wasteful methods used here. Stainless steel tanks, fillers, tubing, and pasteurizers and continual testing assure the production of a high quality product. Up-to-date machinery for rapid and efficient handling make for maximum returns to the producer of the apples, the orchardists who own the whole operation and the only persons to share in the profits, if such a term is appropriate.

At the end of the financial year all money after paying expenses is paid out to the growers according to the tonnage of apples each grower supplied the juicing plant.

Having very briefly outlined the general structure of the apple juicing operation, let us take a look at what the grower gets out of a ton of apples processed for juice.

In communicating with a Sun Rype official a few days ago I was told they were supplying a apple juice at a price of 87 4/5 per case of twelve 48 ounce cans.

"But," I protested after a quick calculation, "that's 85 and three quarter cents a can."

The same can sometimes retails for 99 cents as listed in advertising."

"At that price it's a loss leader" was the reply. The normal retail price is 75 to 80 cents.

Further discussion with the Sun Rype official revealed the information that the empty can costs Sun Rype 20 cents, and the carton for the 12 cans costs 19 cents.

Sun Rype gets 134 to 140 gallons of juice from a ton of apples. My table of measurements shows there are 160 fluid ounces in one imperial gallon (we are not using the metric system in this discussion), so taking an average of 137 gallons of juice per ton of apples works out to 21,920 fluid ounces. That's enough to fill 457 cans of 48 ounces each.

What does the grower get from a ton of apples manufactured into juice? When I found out I was surprised. Here are the facts:

Growers who deliverred their fruit to the Oliver Osoyoos Co-op packing house, the most up-to-date in the Okanagan Valley and one of the most efficient, were paid $6.10 a ton for juicing apples. 1975 crop, the latest year for which figures have been compiled. Apples from the 1976 crop are still being processed and it will be some time before all figures are in.

Hived you, Sun Rype paid the packing house a whole lot more than $6.10 a ton. However, the general overhead cost in the operation of this particular packing house was $94 per ton of apples, not including packaging, etc.

The purpose of the packing house is to sort and grade fruit for sale on the fresh fruit market. Apples that fail to measure up to the required standard are a by product of the operation and are sold to the juicing plant to salvage their share of the general overhead. There is also a little money left over for the grower which in the case of the 1975 crop was $6.10 a ton.

There are approximately 10 boxes in a ton of apples, so the return to the grower was 12 cents a box. That's not enough to pay a worker for picking the apples off the trees.

Looking over our figures again we see that a ton of apples yields 457 cans of juice, 48 ounce size, and for this the grower was paid $6.10, or one and one-tenth of a cent per can. He could receive nothing at all and it would have virtually no effect on the price the consumer pays.

As for the farm income insurance scheme operated through the provincial government, it does not cover low grade apples used for apple juice manufacture. The insurance program applies only to extra fancy and fancy grades.

Under the insurance scheme the amount of money collected, together with the actual market returns still leaves the grower short of his cost of production.

All the figures I have used are correct and can be substantiated by any Doukhobor Thomasons who care to write to Sun Rype Ltd., Kelowna, and the Oliver-Osoyoos Co-operative Growers Association, Oliver.

A CALM AND HAPPY CHRISTIAN LIFE

1 Timothy 3:2 "That we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty."

There is no better way to honor and glorify your God and serve your fellowmen than by a calm, quiet, happy christian life.

Let the people round about you see that you have a good Master and Lord That you are content and happy to serve Him at all times and under all circumstances

If you are in trouble, your heart is breaking with nerves and grief, do not let the rest of the world see your tears or even that frown on your face Let them observe that you have a sound, secure faith in God, a confidence that cannot be shaken, though all the world seems to be against you

Your God will sustain and strengthen you in the good days as well as in the evil ones That is what overcoming faith is all about

You must keep your fears to yourself and share your faith and courage with everyone else

Cry of the Human Heart — Juan Carlos Ortiz

The colorful Third World author of "Disciple" follows up his first success with the challenge to a new and dynamic way of life. Even more exciting than his previous book! "Cry of the Human Heart" leads the reader to look afresh at the possibilities open to him and his church in our day.

Most Christians think they are living in the New Covenant made possible by the cross. But they are not. Instead, they have made it the New Testament as a set of rules and they are trying to fulfill these laws in the flesh. The macon option accounts for much of the spiritual defeat Christians experience. They are frustrated, discouraged with themselves because they can not fulfill that deepest cry of their hearts: to please God. What is the way out of the dilemma? That's what this book is all about.

Japan slows down

Just as their oil-documented successes in international trade start to pay real dividends, the Japanese are getting jittery. The reason at the same time as Japan is piling up huge trade surpluses, the world economic downturn continues, increasing unemployment in industrialized countries. As a result, Japan's remarkable export performance is threatened by increasing protectionism among its major trading partners, including Canada, the U.S. and the European Community. Already, the nation of 113 million people, living mainly on four islands with next to nothing in the way of resources, has been forced to place "voluntary" quotas on some of its major products. But it's not difficult to understand why some of Japan's trading partners are upset: in fiscal year ended March 31 the country's export receipts increased a phenomenal 24 percent vs 1975, to US $80.7 billion. At the same time, a sluggish domestic economy restricted the rise in Japanese imports to US $38.1 billion, or a 16 percent increase. This gave the Japanese a record trade surplus of US $11.2 billion figures looked at longingly by the U.S. and the EC which have big trade deficits and high unemployment.

Deer for sale

New Zealand's farmers, already blessed with record sales for wool, meat and dairy products overseas, are discovering deer farming is a promising additional source of income. Deer farming has yielded above-average profits and almost certain demand from West Germany in particular, writes Wolfgang Klesse from Auckland.

It has gained steadily since the early 1970's, and, on a conservative estimate, the country has herds of more than 20,000 farmed deer - and the population is growing rapidly. Breeding herds were selling in excess of NZ $300 (C $287) each late last year are now commanding about NZ $600. The price of antler velvet is approaching NZ $40 to 50 per kilogram and the price for stags is rising, too. According to agricultural experts, deer farming could be two to three times as profitable as sheep farming despite the need for higher capital investment. New Zealand's exports of venison could be expanded without affecting prices. But at present it is almost impossible to buy venison locally at retail level, not surprising with excellent prices paid by overseas buyers.

Last rites are held for a Bardo pioneer

Peter Ole, Lerbekmo was born in Bardo, Norway on Nov. 28, 1888. In 1888, he immigrated to Bardo Canada with his mother, to join his father who had immigrated two years previously.

He took his public education in the Anderson School and was confirmed in the Bardo Lutheran Church.

On Nov. 14, 1917 he was married to Loolah Hilla who had come from Iowa two years previously. Loolah is well known as a school teacher for 25 years in the Bardo district.

Together they farmed for two years in the Grande Prairie district. In 1919 they returned to Bardo. Peter worked in the garage business from 1919 until 1935, when he became a grain buyer for the pool elevator. In 1947 Mr and Mrs. Lerbekmo moved to Bruce, B.C., where they farmed for 16 years.

In 1963, they retired at Cooking Lake.

Peter passed away suddenly on Sept. 14th at the age of 88 years.

He leaves his wife Loolah of South Cooking Lake one son, Dr. John F. Lerbekmo of Edmonton, four grandchildren, Craig Janice Todd and Mona one brother, Julius of Edmonton, one sister brother Robert of Tofield two sisters Jenny Hakkstad of Camrose and Gertie Yoder of Kitchener Ontario as well as numerous nieces and nephews.

Friends were invited to the Bardo Community Centre for lunch following the graveside service.

Wounded trees – help them

An unsightly or hazardous tree does not just happen it is usually the result of improper care or neglect

The time to begin caring for a tree is while it is still healthy long before it becomes unsightly or hazardous. A publication entitled "Rx for Wounded Trees" explains what happens inside a tree that has been wounded and describes how to recognize, prevent and to minimize the decay that so often sets in

Compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture's forest service, the publication contains 71 colored illustrations which show examples of common tree problems and how to correct them

Herman Oosterhuis, in charge of Alberta Agriculture's shelterbelt tree planting program, highly recommends "Rx for Wounded Trees" to parks maintenance personnel and to anyone else who is concerned about keeping his trees healthy and prolonging their lives

"Rx for Wounded Trees" AIB-307) can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington D.C., 20402, for a $1.35 money order

(Other books in the U.S. forest service include "Your Trees Trouble May Be You" ($1.20) and "A Tree Hurts Too" (30 cents).

Ryley School honours '77 graduating class

On Saturday, a ceremony honouring the 1977 graduating class of Ryley School was held.

The evening began with a banquet supper at the Ryley Community Hall, prepared by Ryley Legion Ladies Auxiliary and the actual graduation exercises took place in the Ryley School gymnasium.

A lush came over the standing room-only audience as Harold Parsons played the processional and the 19 graduates filed up onto the stage.

Andre Nimchuk acted as master of ceremonies. Having taught the graduating class, Mr Nimchuk was able to interject many humorous remarks about individual students throughout the evening.

After welcoming the graduates, Mr Nimchuk introduced George Baker, Mayor of Ryley, who brought best wishes from the Village of Ryley. Joseph Voegtlin then gave the invocation.

An amusing time was enjoyed by all as Miss Shirley Kenst read a humorous history of each graduate. Many a blush came from the stage as long forgotten events came to light.

Playing his own accompaniment on the piano, Wolfgang Oeste sang beautiful renditions of "Both Sides Now" and "Bridge Over Troubled Waters".

A very pretty and poised Marlene Magneson gave the Valedictory. In her address, Miss Magneson viewed the past with its influence on the present and future of the graduates.

"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" was the theme chosen for this year's graduation.

Lois Ellsworth, who had been principal of Ryley School during the graduates' final two years, had many thought provoking comments to make to the graduates. During his speech, Mr Ellsworth advised that one gets out of life only what one puts into it. He suggested that people are too complacent with their lives and are often selling themselves short.

James Clarke and Miss Faye Strilchuk then presented the graduates with their high school diplomas and pins.

Receiving their diplomas were Rose Banack, Mark Ewert, Lorraine Helgeland, Candy Hlisabeck, Michael Hisey, Janice Jeffrey, Heil Jensen, Vanda Johnson, Susan Kast, Randy Lindstrand, Charles Litchfield, Marlene Magneson, Wylde Magneson, Gene Murakalat, Tanya Nordby, Darcy Romaniuk, Eugene Strilchuk, Sherry Wickstrom, and Arnold Weiss.

Special awards, also presented during the evening were Academic Awards, Highest Standing in Grade 12 - Marlene Magneson. A cash award presented by Andre Nimchuk for the Alberta Teachers Association.

Second Highest Standing in Grade 12 - Sherry Wickstrom and Michael Hisey, cash awards presented by the Senior High Students Union.

Highest Standing in Grade 9 - Margaret Warkentin, presented by Michael Krupalnicki for the Junior High Students Union.

Second Highest Standing in Grade 9 - Robin Solberg, presented by Mrs. Crump for the Cavell Rebekah Lodge.

Proficiency in English, Grade 9 - Darlene Lauber, presented by Mrs. Agnes Hisey for the Catholic Women's League.

Citizenship Awards, High School - The J.D. McDonald Trophy - Tanya Nordby, presented by J. Clarke for the Ryley School staff.

Elementary - The Gladys Anselm Memorial Trophy - Kenneth Masterson, presented by Mrs. Crump for the Cavell Rebekah Lodge.

Athletic Trophies. Most deserving male - Arnold Weiss, most deserving female - Tanya Nordby, presented by Ken Fleming for the Senior High Students Union.

County of Beaver Award to Ryley School honoring the graduating class of 1977, was received by Marlene Magneson on behalf of the graduating class from Fred Reinholt, superintendent of schools.

James Clarke, present principal of Ryley School, concluded the graduation exercises with a benediction.

In his speech, Mr Clarke commented on how every student has his own meaning for a high school diploma. To Mr. Clarke a high school diploma was evidence that a person who started something twelve long years ago had seen it through to its conclusion.

The evening ended with a rollicking dance.

Ryley saves pumping costs

The Village of Ryley will not have to pay the costs of pumping water into the village reservoir during the past summer and spring dry spell.

That was the news council received at a recent meeting in a letter received from the Honorable Dave Russell, Minister of Environment, who told council that his department was picking up the tab for emergency pumping of water in various towns and villages in the province.

Cost of pumping water in Ryley during the dry spell was $2,258.50. Secretary treasurer Ray Howland was instructed to write a letter to Mr Russell, conveying the thanks of the village for this service.

Three readings were given to a by-law which amended the existing zoning by-law, after councillors were told that no objections had been received at a public meeting.

Council determined that the interconnecting pipe between the existing water reservoir and the new one must be tested by the contractor, the maintenance period would be for a two-year period, that a holdback of $500 be retained during that period, and the village would waive testing on a portion of the pipe.

It was agreed that written quotations should be obtained from Mrs. Randy Ness for the renovations to the exterior of the village office.

Councillors agreed to install a fire hydrant on the corner of 55 Avenue and 50 Street, and also agreed to paint the interior of the village shop.

The village administrator was instructed to draft a new traffic by-law for consideration at a future meeting.

The town foreman was instructed to attend a solid waste managers' seminar which is to be held in Camrose on November 16th.

Councillor Brown gave a complete report on his attendance at the AUMA convention which had been held in Edmonton.

A Mr. McEachren was named as the village's assessor.

The next council meeting was changed to October 11th, a Tuesday, as the Monday of that week is a holiday.

Future water supply discussed in Tofield

The future of a water supply for residents in the Town of Tofield will be on the agenda of the next meeting of town council.

That was the decision of councillors after having discussed the necessity of pumping water and removing beaver dams in order to bring supplies in the reservoir to its fullest capacity.

Five representatives from the County of Beaver School Committee attended the most recent meeting of council to discuss a number of items relating to school property, busing, drainage on school property, playground equipment and other related matters of interest to both parties.

Council agreed that a by-law should be prepared which would allow for the rezoning of portion of one block which would allow the operation, by a resident, of a small engine repair business.

Council accepted a quotation from Artistic Landscaping for work to be done in the North Park and two other areas in the town. The quote of $6,000 was accepted if it is noted the trees involved are 8-10 feet high.

Barclay Johnson of the Edmonton firm of Frohlich, Rand Martinson and Johnson was named as the town's solicitor.

Town foreman, A.G. Clark was authorized to obtain quotations on prices for the repair of a transmission for the engine in the garbage truck. Mr Clark was told to arrange for the draining of the North Park sprinkler system prior to freeze-up.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a meeting held on September 26th with Deputy Mayor Jack Lampitt in the chair.

Talent sought

The Holden and District Agricultural Society are busy finalizing plans for the fall carnival to be held November 25th and 26th.

A committee of four has been set up to arrange entertainment for the carnival.

Members of this committee are Mrs Louise Lukaweski, Mrs Mary Ogrodnick, Mrs June Cooper and Clay Schaning.

They have promised an outstanding show, part of which will be in the form of a "Gong Show".

They are now seeking the assistance of the public in finding talent. So if you know of an unusual act or wish to be part of the entertainment, please contact Mrs. Mary Ogrodnick at 662-3940.

Voters in the Town of Tofield will have an opportunity to hear the policies of candidates seeking seats on Town Council.

The Tofield Fire Department will be hosting a "Meet Your Councillors Night" next week.

The public forum will be held in the Community Hall on Thursday, October 13th, starting at eight o'clock. Refreshments will be served.

Battling for the mayor's chair will be incumbent Dr. W.H. Freebury and councillor Robert Tessier.

Seeking seats on council are incumbents Jack Lampitt, Henry Nachtigal, Raymond Peirel and Warren Watson, along with newcomers Leonard Baker, Eleanor McNeill, Jake Neufeld, Ed Regehr, Ed Trode, Stan Vollner, Laurie Weatherill, and Marie Worton.

Correction

The buttons for a wedding picture, run in last week's Mercury contained an error.

The picture was of the Warkentin - Pouliquard wedding.

Part of the wording should have read "Jonathan William Warkentin, son of Mrs. Effie Paulsen".

The Mercury regrets that this mistake occurred and apologizes to the people involved.

Promoting Alberta

We commented in this column a few weeks ago on the general lack of information about Canadian manufactured goods available for purchase here, as compared with the veritable avalanche of information about imported products, mostly those from the United States. And we quoted the comment of the president of the Canadian Manufacturing Association, to the effect that at least a thousand new jobs could be created for Canadians, with increases in gross national product reaching into the multi-millions of dollars, with corresponding improvement in our international balance of trade.

On this basis, we were highly impressed when a few days later Business Development and Tourism's Camrose representative, Jeff Motherwell, presented us with a hundred-page catalogue illustrating and briefly describing a wide range of farm implements manufactured right here in Alberta.

The list, of course, may not be complete, but it's interesting that it comprises at least 42 firms, in communities all across Alberta, ranging from the major cities to communities as small as Killam, Kinsella, and Consort.

And the range of products manufactured here is highly impressive, too, all the way from a simple vise to a complete sugar beet harvester.

As might be expected, there are a number of specialty items in such equipment as truck boxes and hoists, trailers and transports, front end loaders and similar attachments, earth moving equipment, grain, hay and livestock handling equipment, as well as soil preparation, seeding and a variety of miscellaneous equipment.

Prices aren't even mentioned, nor are dealers, but there are several coupons in each catalogue which will obtain further information from the Business Development department.

Interestingly enough, the catalogue is the first such effort published by the government, and the foreword is over the signature of the Hon Bob Dowling, native of Ohaton, who points with pride to the government's emphasis on promoting the province's farm implement industry.

The catalogue, he says, is to give manufacturers broader exposure for their products, and at the same time to act as information aid to farm equipment users.

We're delighted to know this sort of publication exists, and we hope it carries over into other fields. Equipment produced in the province is usually designed around some specific need peculiar to this region, and can usually be counted on to be superior in its field. But it can't be sold, or bought, if no-one knows anything about it.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — At last month's conference of provincial premiers in New Brunswick, the subject of Canada's economic health was submerged by the national unity teaser which found René Levesque pitted against the other nine premiers.

He tried to divide and conquer. He failed.

Levesque's tactic of offering to make individual agreements with each of the other provinces, guaranteeing English language education for Canadians moving into Quebec in return for guarantees by such provinces for French language education, might have done severe damage to the federalist cause.

Of course French language education should be provided for French speaking minorities outside Quebec where the concentration of French speaking population warrants, but that's a right which should be in the constitution, and any time Levesque wants to agree to such a constitutional change, it will go through.

Alberta's Premier Peter Lougheed fingered the reasons behind Levesque's tactics when he said after the conference that provincial governments dealing with Quebec could give the impression that an independent Quebec could expect some sort of association statehood with the rest of the country.

No sir, if Quebec separates, it should be made perfectly plain that there are no deals, and yes, there are hard feelings. Anything else lower's a group bent on breaking up the country would be unmanly.

Recent Gallup polls have shown that there is a slight decline in the number of Quebec residents favoring separation, and a hefty increase in those opposed, with less people undecided. Any polls taken always show that the number who would go along with Quebec independence is larger if some sort of economic association can be guaranteed. Let's not have any truck with "association" if Quebec decides to separate.

Neither should there be any consideration of letting Quebec think the more hardnosed provinces would be included if the Levesque tactics succeed. Northern Quebec native people have rights, and they clearly want no part of separation. The same can be said about other large sections of Quebec.

It should be made extremely clear to Levesque and company that Canada wants Quebec to stay within confederation, and will go a considerable distance to make the union more comfortable for French-speaking Canadians.

But in the unlikely event that separation comes, it's not going to be any amicable picnic.

Harvest halt

Harvesting operations came to an almost complete standstill during the last week as the weather continued to show a complete lack of cooperation.

A few farmers managed to get out into the fields for a short period of time to do some cutting of crops, but, no threshing operations were underway.

About a week of warm weather is needed to dry the crops already cut before harvesting operations may resume. Heavy frost at night is causing a few problems with the biggest problem that is developing coming from a second growth which is coming up amid the already cut crops.

In the entire area, only about twenty-two percent of the crop has been harvested while just under three quarters has been cut.

Farmers in Holden didn't get anything done last week. All of the rye has been cut and threshed. Rapeseed and oats are 70 percent cut while wheat and barley is one-half cut. Thirty percent of the rapeseed has been threshed, while oats is 30 percent done, barley is 15 percent and wheat is only five percent completed.

Daysland was another area in which nothing was accomplished. All crops, except flax, have been cut. Three quarters of the rape crop has been taken off the fields while barley is 50 percent done, oats is 15 percent and only 10 percent of the wheat has been harvested.

Ha-Ha Lakers farmers were about a standstill. Ninety five percent of the rape crop has been cut, 90 percent of wheat is cut while 80 percent of oats and barley has been cut. Twenty percent of the barley has been threshed with only five percent of oats and barley having been done with a start. Barely having been made to the wheat crop.

Tofield farmers managed to get a lot of cutting done. Rapeseed is now 85 percent cut barley is 85 percent, wheat is 81 percent and oats is 61 percent. Seventy percent of the rape crop has been harvested while oats and barley are five percent done and a bare start has been made to wheat.

Some cutting o ourred in the Camrose area as wheat and barley has been completely cut, while oats, barley and flax are 80 percent done. Threshing is 60 percent completed for rapeseed, 25 percent of barley is done while wheat and oats are 20 percent completed and flax is ten percent done.

Ryley farmers were unable to hit a longer last week. Rape is 95 percent cut, wheat is one-half done while oats and barley are 25 percent cut. One half of the rapeseed has been threshed with a start made to other crops.

Metric Quiz

Here's a quiz to test your skill at metric at the super market. If your score is low, then it's time you became a sharper eyed shopper.

True or False - If you used to buy the half gallon container of ice cream you would now switch over to the one litre size.

False. One litre is just under a quart. Therefore 2 litres are just under a quarter over half gallon. The litre size provides liberal and appreciated savings. Those for a family of seven or more.

True or False - You get more milk in a litre bag than 1 kg of jam at $1.50.

False. Metric makes comparison shopping easy because there is no converting of pounds to ounces. If 300 g jam cost $1.50 then 1000 g (1kg) cost (1000/300 x $1.50 equal $2.00. Therefore the 1 kg jam at $1.50 is a better buy.

True or False - Eggs are now sold by the ten rather than by the dozen.

If you said True, then you're mistaken. There's been no compulsory switching of size. We'll continue to buy eggs by the dozen for a long time to come.

In answer to a letter published in the Mail bag and signed Ron Bondarenko, I would like to clarify things.

Making road improvements or any kind takes paper work, and this is for future ratepayers. Just recently the pro-rating sign we have replaced the water filters in the treatment plant. Also, installed a new gas chlorination equipment made extensive repair to the sedimentation equipment, installed a new automatic shut off valve at the from the upper reservoir, renewed the pumping equipment and purchased new mains.

We have also dug out the lower reservoir so it will hold an extra ten million gallons of water and purchased an eight in pump so we can pump water from the creek

As [illegible] received the sewer [illegible] phone number and [illegible] now garage and mailbox. We have built a new road [illegible] we want to take [illegible] from behind zone. We have calculated sewers and water [illegible] two blocks of new residential property and [illegible] with full duty for future development.

We have several new residences in town and several new trailer homes.

We have negotiated a plan with the senior citizens club for a drop in centre. We are in the process of negotiating a land swap so can build a new large park. We have built new sidewalks both ways from the community hall and also to our recreation park and childrens playground. We have done all this on a debenture borrowing of $40 000.00.

Is that poor management? On Oct 19, be careful how you vote, but, please vote.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news items

Ellen Exten

I have not been able to get any news for the column lately but, hope after the fall rush is be able to get a little to keep the column going.

On Sunday, over forty relatives and friends of T D Ferguson gathered at the home of his sister, Mickey and Charlie Niemetz to honor T.D. on his 80th birthday, and enjoy a pot-luck dinner. The beautiful birthday cake was brought by his sister, Mrs Emily Roberge of Edmonton.

Ellen Exten was among the senior citizens from the County of Beaver on tour to Medicine Hat, Maple Creek, Nash , Cypress Hills and Drumheller. They spent 2 nights at the motel in Medicine Hat and went sight seeing from there.

Donna and Floyd Edwards and children of Whitewater spent Sunday with Donna's parents, Howard and Mae Ferguson and all attended the birthday party in honor of Howard's brother, T D Ferguson.

Mrs Ed (Nola) Ferguson expects to be hosting the Tofield Women of Unifarm on Tuesday at her home. Mrs Mabel Ferguson will be giving a talk on her recent trip to England and Scotland. Mabel and Russel Ferguson had visited England and Scotland where Mabel also visited relatives and only returned recently reporting enjoying the trip very much.

Wanda Weir hosted the United Church young people on Sunday evening at the home of her grandparents, Howard and Mae Ferguson, with Mae serving lunch to the guests after the meeting.

Ellen Exten was among a number of senior citizens of Tofield and district that went to Edmonton on the bus on Monday evening to attend the show "Don't Shoot the Teacher", at the Westmount A Theatre.

The weather has turned much colder with freezing temperatures the last few days and Monday night was a let colder with sleet ending with a light snow during the evening.

Confronting Your Faith

This week Curtis Johnson pastor of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Ryley has written an article on Thanksgiving for the readers of The Mercury

This is the first of a series of articles to be prepared by members of the Tofield Ministerial Association which includes ministers from the Ryley and Holden areas.

The column which will be entitled "Confronting Your Faith" will vary in content Sometimes it will be devotional or meditational in tone, and sometimes will be focused on the churches

Whatever the theme, the column should be of interest to all members of all local churches

In a world torn by war, rebellion, violent unrest and crime of every nature, is there room left for thanksgiving? As the buying power of the dollar shrinks and the price paid expands, is there room for thanksgiving? As the eye and ear are bombarded by the media with a volume of half truths and untruths innuendo brilliantly arrayed, is there room for thanksgiving? As national leaders proclaim terrible shortages of raw material and the population explodes, is there room for thanksgiving? With the giant nations using the small and the weak in the intricate game of political chess, is there room left for thanksgiving? YES, a thousand times yes Let us thank God for what we have - life and hope and time Time in which to anchor our hope and faith and life in the blessed promise of a soon coming Saviour Hope in a God who knows, and hears, and cares, for God is love

Strangely enough, it seems that man has forgotten who sits above, working out the dictates of His own purpose If all the bad news is a result of mans quest for power, how destitute he has become No, a sane man cannot imagine that mankind has purposely planned this mess in order to gain wealth Then there must be a third party involved one looking for the destruction of man The scripture tells us that "the devil as a roaring lion walketh about, seeking whom he may devour 1 Peter 5 8.

With the enemy the devil unmasked let us praise God for time, time to set our accounts with heaven straight But few believe that we have a heaven to gain and a hell to shun There is a storm creeping upon the earth unbelievable in its fury Thank God we have yet time to prepare to meet it

We are beautifully fed, our homes are warm war is far off, good friends are near to encourage and strengthen Oh yes we have much to thank God for We have too few fingers upon which to count our blessings Thanksgiving is a special time for praising God for the bounties of life But let us not forget that which really counts A loving heavenly Father who gave His own Son that all men might escape the tempters snare Seek ye the lord while He may be found, Isa 55 6, it is not yet too late How much we have to thank God for as He cares for our every need Hope and strength, faith and health and an everlasting tomorrow if we only ask of Him, our saviour and redeemer Jesus Christ

District nurses will hold session in city

Nurses from all over North Central Alberta will gather in Camrose tomorrow (Thursday) for a District meeting.

Bliss will mark only the second occasion that a District meeting has been held outside the City of Edmonton. The first move out of Edmonton occurred last month when nurses met in Red Deer.

When nurses decided that more of their members might attend meetings if they were not always held in Edmonton, Camrose's representative, Sharon Ramstad, extended an invitation to meet in Camrose and the invitation was accepted.

The day-long session to be held in the cafeteria at Rosshaven.

Alberta is divided into five districts which each district being divided into wards. Camrose is in Ward 16 of the North Central Alberta District with their representative being Mrs Ramstad.

The District extends from the British Columbus border at Jasper up to Grand Cache and on for north as Fort Mc-

Murray and south to Lesyton Valley, and all the way down Highway 12 to the Saskatchewan border.

There are eleven wards in this particular district with Ward 16 going from west of Camrose to Breton and up to Sherwood Park.

Elected meetings are open to any nurses within the district, and those attending may participate in any discussions or debates, although voting rights belong only to the representatives.

Introducing Fairmont
Fuel efficient, space efficient, cost efficient.

Now Ford brings you a new car design for today and the years ahead: The new Ford Fairmont. In 2-door, 4-door and Station Wagon models.

Fairmont is fuel efficient.
Its mileage ratings are close to some little economy cars. But Fairmont is not a little economy car.

Fairmont is space efficient.
It has almost 90% of the room of cars like the new Chevrolet Impala. It holds five 6-footers comfortably, with exceptional all-around visibility. The Station Wagon handles nearly 90% of what most new full-size wagons hold. Fairmont also has a new ride system patterned after European luxury cars.

Fairmont is cost efficient.
To help meet the challenge of rising prices, suggested retail prices are remarkably low – especially when you consider the equipment that is standard on Fairmont: rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, unique coil strut front suspension and front bucket seats, to mention a few. Plus the Ford of Canada DURAGUARD System, which is backed by a no-extra-charge 36-month unlimited distance warranty against rust perforation. See your dealer for full details.

LAND LEASING ARRANGEMENTS

In view of current developments in the grain sector (depressed prices and continually rising costs), farmers who are renting land should review their old land leases and study alternative types of arrangements to determine the best for their particular circumstance In the long run "the best" is also "the fairest", and the fairest method of land leasing is to use the relative contributions of each party as a basis for calculating the amount of rent to be paid in cash or in crop share

Crop Share Lease

Traditionally with a crop share lease the landowner supplies the land and buildings while the tenant supplies the labor and machinery and pays operating expenses However, since there are many varieties, it is important to examine the relative cash and noncash contributions of each party (A one-third, two-thirds split between landlord and tenant may be fair, but to satisfy both parties, the facts and figures should be down on paper)

The landlord and tenant share the risk and uncertainty of grain prices and yields

The tenant has a further incentive to use good farming practices if the landlord pays a share of the cost of seed, fertilizer and chemical

The landlord may be willing to sign a longer-term share lease than cash lease, there-by increasing the renter's security of tenure and time horizon for planning major machinery investments

The landlord ad tenant may disagree on major management decisions such as the optimum amount and type of fertilizer and chemical to use, cultural practices and amount of summerfallowing to be done

Gains from superior farming ability or losses from inferior ability are shared with the landowner

The landowner has no short-term guarantee of covering his investment costs

Cash Lease

The most common form of cash lease is one in which the tenant receives all of the income and pays all of the expenses, except taxes and building insurance, in return for a fixed cash settlement Since the tenant is bearing all of the risk of poor crop yields, the landlord's contributions should be adjusted downward to compensate For example, his share should be reduced by 10 percent, if, in the long run, one year in 10 is a reasonable estimate of the frequency of crop failures for the area To establish a fair cash rent, the expected gross returns per cultivated acre are calculated using average yields and average prices This gross return figure is multiplied by the landlord's adjusted share of contributions to determine the cash rent that should be paid

Share Leases

The landlord receives a guaranteed return on his investment because the tenant must pay the fixed rent even if less grows and prices decrease

Many potential areas of disagreement are eliminated since the tenant has more flexibility in production and management decisions

The tenant receives all the benefits of good production and management practices as long as he is renting the land Because of wide fluctuations in grain prices, cash lease agreements are usually short term Hence the tenant has less incentive to use improved cultural practices the benefits of which will accrue in the long run and not necessarily during the term of the lease

A "fair" rent now may be "unfair" before the term of the lease has expired because of the uncertainty of prices and yields

Flexible Cash Lease

The advantage of a flexible cash lease over an ordinary cash lease is that price rise is distributed between landlord and tenant As with cash lease agreements, the contributions approach is used as an adjustment for yield risk made to determine an equitable contributions raise

The next step is to calculate the base annual rent in bushels per cultivated acre Then reduce the average yield of a crop commonly grown in the area by the percentage of rented land to be summerfallowed Multiply this base annual rent by the total realized price to arrive at cash rent per cultivated acre

Since the flexibility of the agreement centers around price determination, it is very important to specify in the agreement the way in which price is calculated For example, if Canadian Wheat Board prices are to be used, the type of grain, grade and delivery point must be specified Alternately, if feed grain prices are used, an average price for 30 days prior to the rent payment is made It is also important to specify when payment of rent will be made since if wheat board prices are used, the final payment will not be known for some time

Fixed Rent Lease

A well-thought-out flexible cash lease may facilitate longer-term leasing arrangements

Both the landlord and tenant share in some of their risk and uncertainty of variations in prices and yields

With the flexibility of the agreement based on price, considerable time may elapse before final payments are known However, with open market feed grain marketing numerous alternatives are available

A flexible cash agreement which is too complicated provides for misunderstanding Adjustments for actual price and yield variations are best obtained by using the crop share method of leasing

More detailed information on land leasing is contained in the publication, "Agricultural Leasing", available from your district agriculturist or the publications office, Alberta Agriculture, 9718 - 107 St., Edmonton, Alberta, T5K 2C3

MOM AND DAD DO NOT HAVE TO AGREE

This column is another in the series by Nadine Venter, Family Living Specialist, Alberta Agriculture.

A question that is raised repeatedly in parent training classes is "Should I expect my spouse to back up my discipline?". There has long been the idea that mothers and fathers must agree on every aspect of child rearing to show a "united front". If they do not, the kid can "work both ends against the middle".

Let us look at this question in relation to a couple of goals most of us have for our children. First, we want an honest child. Second, we want a child who can cope with reality in the real world. people do not all think alike, nor do they have the same feelings at the same time. A father who has had a bad day at work is going to have a different level of tolerance to noise than a mother who has had a good day. Is a child learning honesty when he gets a scolding about noise from a mother who at the moment is not bothered by his noise but who is "doing something about that kid" for the father?

A useful question to ask in any conflict of needs situation is "whose problem is it?". If it is the one who is bugged then the problem is his. How does this relate to coping with reality? The child learns that people have different thoughts and feelings that being different is OK, and that expressing and that having feelings is OK, too.

"But you say father has a right to expect some support from mother". Yes, he does have. He has a right to expect that she will not deny his feelings and that she will not say "your dad is such a grouch ignore him". She can support him by saying "dad has had a rough day and is tired your noise bothers him, perhaps you could play more here or try minding her own business while he handles the situation. Notice though that when mother handles it in this way, she does not say anything she does not mean. She sees no need to feel the same way as father and she respects his feelings. The child is not "working both ends" and, though not disagreeing, the parents are not having to agree.

Horner wins national FCC

Headquarters of the Farm Credit Corporation will be moving to Camrose in the next few years, according to word from Jack Horner, this week Member of Parliament for Crowfoot, and recently named Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce. Mr Horner said the decision was made by the Liberal Cabinet on Friday, when it was agreed to move several more departments out of Ottawa.

The move is part of the government's ongoing decentralization program, which has already seen decisions announced in a couple of instances. It is expected that in the years from 1977 to 1982 a total of 38 such departments will be moved.

The headquarters unit, which will be moving to Camrose, employs about 150 of the corporation's total staff, with an annual payroll of about $2.7 million. While some of the staff would obviously be moved from Ottawa, Mr Horner said he expects the new unit will generate a substantial number of local employment opportunities as well.

In total, the corporation employs a staff of 720, but the largest part of this group is already scattered in many parts of the country.

Mr Horner's field assistant in Camrose, Doyle Kunitz, reported this week no decision has yet been made about accommodation for the office. It is expected the government will be searching for a site about next spring, he said, and if the decision is made to build new premises, construction would probably start in the fall. If the decision is made to rent, the head office unit could be moving in much sooner.

The FCC is a crown agency which provides long-range mortgage credit to Canadian farmers and loans to groups or syndicates of farmers. The Minister felt the move to Western Canada was logical in that some two-thirds of its business is conducted in the West. He expressed satisfaction that the province of Alberta will be sharing in the government's national program of decentralizing the ever growing concentration of government employees from the national capital.

The move is also seen as a highly logical decision in view of the presence here of the head office of the Alberta Agricultural Development Corporation being located here, since both organizations are operating in associated program of decentralization has been undertaken with the purpose of identifying units of the public service which could, without loss of effectiveness, be transferred to smaller communities

Its objectives are to create a greater feeling of participation in the federal process throughout the country and to further government policies concerning regional economic development and balanced urban growth.

Since the current program began in 1975 the Federal Government has as of today announced its intentions to move 29 units to 24 communities in all ten provinces between 1977 and 1982.

What's that you say?

Anyone looking at the picture above might wonder whether the Hon Jack Horner and Mayor Rudy Swanson were really discussing the marvellous view from the upper deck of the new Viking Cultural Centre, or if, by chance, a stray word passed about located the Farm Credit Corporation office in Camrose. Only a couple of weeks ago, his visit was immediately prior to his appointment as Minister of Industry Trade and Commerce

The Minister noted that with regard to linguistic and educational rights of the employees of these units the Government has announced that any relocation of a unit of the federal public service in solving a significant number of its official language minority position to the destination will only be made until through permanent arrangement with the receiving province it can be assured that the children of federal employees can be educated in the official language they are accustomed to using.

This requirement could pose a problem in the department's relocation in that provinces [illegible] these units must [illegible] the Government [illegible] the federal government to offset it.

Solar heat will keep the Ness family warm

Solar heat will be used to keep the Ness family warm when they move into their new home on a farm south of Ryley.

When Randy and Fern Ness decided to build their new home, one of the major items they investigated closely was the cost of heating. Gas lines do not go to the farm and the cost of bringing in lines would be high. Added to that is the fact that all fuels are soaring.

Looking at it, it was an easy decision. Use solar heat.

A graduate in architecture from NAIT, Fern did all the designs and drawings necessary for construction after she and Randy had talked it over and decided exactly what they wanted.

Upon completion, the house will be A-shaped, three stories high with dimensions of forty feet by sixty-eight feet. The house will be held up by nine gigantic cedar poles brought in from northern British Columbia. Laminated beams from an Edmonton firm will provide the skeleton of the building.

Randy and Fern are building the house themselves. The basement was started in May and work progressed at a good rate during the summer months. Construction has slowed down now that Randy has returned to teaching school in Ryley.

According to Fern, it will be a year and one-half before they move into their new home and they are quite excited about the prospect.

When they move in, the house will not be completely heated by solar heat. That will come a couple of years down the road.

In the beginning, solar heat will be collected by large windows which will transfer the heat to a rock pile in the basement where it is stored. A large open fireplace in the living room may also be used for heating purposes and as the heat from this source rises, it is collected in the cathedral-like ceiling and transferred to the basement for storage and re-use. As well, if it gets really cold, electric heat will be available.

The house will be completely turned over to solar heating two or three years down the road after solar panels are added to the roof to collect more solar heat. At that time, all of the family's heating needs will be supplied by solar heat.

Randy and Fern have two children. Steven started kindergarten this fall while Lisa (four years of age) stays home to help her mom.

Peace In The Midst Of Turmoil

Philippians 4:7 "The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

There are a number of things that you can do in order to share this kind of confidence and peace in the midst of all the turmoil and difficulty that surround you. Here are some suggestions:

1. Set aside a few moments everyday to be alone with, and talk to your God the Father. Talk to Him simply, naturally as you would to a friend. Tell Him the things that are on your mind ... the things that trouble you.

2. Never lose the confidence that God has promised to be with you, every moment and every hour of the day.

3. Be willing and open to accept the things that God allows for your life, without murmuring or complaining.

4. Begin to get concerned about the welfare of others, even those who have treated you badly. Pray for them and help them to overcome.

5. Always be thankful ... you have so much to be thankful for. This will not in motion the peace of God in your life.

Collision Course, by Del Story
A rugged construction worker Del Story spent most of his life running from God's call to preach. When he finally responded, setting aside the wreckage of a mismanaged life, he emerged as a powerful witness to the grace and mercy of the hound of heaven.

Captured, by Carolyn Petree Miller
A book that pulses with all the drama of a novel, yet is the true story of real people caught in the crossfire of war and revolution. An intensely personal story of a young wife and mother struggling to preserve her family and her faith under the extreme circumstances as prisoners of the Vietcong.

A Tough Assignment!

Legacy of life

We somehow missed the fact that September had been designated kidney month in the Edmonton area, but so long as attention is drawn to the work and the need, we feel the Kidney Foundation may forgive our tardiness.

Almost everyone knows about, and is deathly afraid, of heart disease and cancer. Yet few know that even today, despite miraculous advances, kidney disease is the nation's fourth largest killer, even though it lags far behind the first two in the number of people affected.

Fortunately, the disease can be treated, and in the last twenty years amazing strides have been taken. People with less than five percent remaining kidney can now be treated by the artificial kidney machine, or they may receive a kidney transplant.

It is this last feature which is one of the important endeavors these days of the Kidney Foundation, which reports that at present the need for kidney transplants is acute. Only a small percentage of patients who want and need kidney transplants are able to receive them, yet it is in the power of every one of us to bequeath, on our own death, the gift of continued life to one or more fellow human beings.

The Canadian is glad to reproduce below the donor form used by the Foundation, which, when signed and witnessed, is a legal document willing specific organs for the purpose of transplantation. It should be carried in a wallet, with a driver's license, or some such place, where it could quickly be found in the event of death, permitting immediate removal of the organs willed.

Loss of one or more such organs doesn't interfere with customary funeral or burial arrangements, and in any case, it can be revoked at any time, simply by tearing it up. Without it, however, or some such similar arrangement, the gift of life cannot be passed on, because permission has not been granted.

It takes only a moment, but can last a lifetime.

HOW BIG ARE CLASSES?

The Editor

It would be very interesting to know how many classes in our school have over 25 students in them. Published pupil teacher ratio figures are very misleading as they include people who spend most of their time in non teaching [illegible]

In classes of over 25 to 28 pupils to a teacher, the cherished individual attention is lost and the teacher becomes a lecturer or simply one who passes out information sheets! The problem with this is that most young people don't have the attention span of a university academic and thus learn little under this system. There needs to be exchange, and participation, in class or the student doesn't learn.

Dr. Gulbrand Lokes of the University of Calgary education faculty works on the whole problem of teacher supply and demand, and he has found that the student population is actually on the increase in this province. I am sure this is especially evident in Tofield with its new subdivisions, its planned subdivisions and its being well a commuting distance of Edmonton.

I am confident there are others who would like to know the enrollment number of each class in our school be it grade 2a, grade 3b, grade 9 math, or grade 11 social studies.

It would be convenient to see these figures published before the local elections. If there exists crowded conditions right now, then it would be interesting to know if those who are running in this election would support land banking for future school use.

Thank you for whatever you can accomplish in this regard.

Yours truly,
Robin Russell

CRITICISM ANSWERED

To The Editor

In answer to criticisms in the village during the village of Holden election.

Regarding the property within the town limits on the eastern side of Holden.

Until the property owners make an application to the town planning department of the Provincial government for sub-division, they cannot issue a certificate of title to any lot or parcel of the land. The village council has no jurisdiction over these matters whatever.

The village council has done very little street improvement this year as we considered the adequate supply of water and the treatment thereof our first priority.

The provincial government have indicated their intention of providing a new five-year street improvement program at the next sitting of the legislature, so council deemed it unwise to spend money on streets and roads for the work again next year.

Yours truly

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (SF) — When Eskimos in Northern Quebec revolted in a non-violent way against the Levesque government over the closure passage of the new language law there was a broad sense of sympathy for the Eskimos expressed in southern Canada.

Levesque was hamstrung in the extreme in sending those two 25-man squads of riot police to northern Eskimo communities, and it was only thanks to much more sensible heads in the Eskimo community that there was no violence.

Northern natives were convinced they could not trust the Levesque government's intentions about language usage in the north and who could blame them. The shame was that the Eskimos received no federal support for their case in the crisis crunch, although the rights of native people are squarely a federal responsibility.

The Inuit of Northern Quebec have made it plain that they want nothing to do with being part of a Quebec separate from Canada and they intend to set up their own, quasi-autonomous state. Has made matters worse, of Quebec and Government? If Quebec has the right to separate from Canada, what would the right of Eskimos northern Quebec which [illegible] to remain part of Canada?

The immediate [illegible] Eskimos in the north and the harsh angry words which such sentiments produced from Quebec City sounded like threats of a declaration of war. If Levesque can be so tough towards those of his citizens who oppose his separatism goals, why can't Ottawa demonstrate some support for those who don't go along with the Parti Quebecois' aims?

Not only does the language law transgress on Canadian constitutional rights, but so does the Quebec plan to limit freedom of expression during any debate on a referendum. Yet we did not hear a peep from the federal government when those manipulative voting plans were disclosed. It was left to outside groups to complain while the federal cabinet waffled in silence.

When one examines the action of the Quebec government during the past 11 months, and checks the federal responses to those actions one begins to wonder about the sincerity of Quebec separatist plans through default of the federal government.

Prime Minister Trudeau was elected in 1968 because Canadians saw him as a charismatic leader who could hold the country together. Ask yourself what has happened in Canada during these last nine years in the field of economics, social cohesion and national unity. The answer is pretty shocking.

Harvesting resumes

Farmers may finally be getting a break from the weather mess with the possibility now existing that harvesting operations could resume on a full scale this week.

A need for warm drying weather over a period of three to six days has been needed to dry crops and in this regard, conditions have generally been good throughout the area for the past few days.

Grade of crops are expected to be quite a bit lower than normal because of the extended wet period and many farmers will experience some difficulty in taking their crops off the fields because of grain beginning to sprout.

About three-quarters of the total crop has been cut to date although less than one-quarter of the crop has been taken from the fields.

Absolutely nothing happened on the Dayspool area during the past week as operations came to a complete standstill.

No flax has been cut as yet, although all other crops have been cut. Three-quarters of the rape crop has been harvested, with 20 percent of barley having been threshed and 10 percent of wheat and oats has been threshed to date.

Some cutting occurred in the Round Hill region and farmers managed to get some rapeseed harvested.

All of the rapeseed now has been cut, with 85 percent of wheat and barley cut and 80 percent of oats cut. One-half of the rape crop has been threshed while wheat is 30 percent done, and oats and barley are 15 percent harvested.

Rapeseed has been completely cut while wheat is 95 percent done, oats and barley are 90 percent cut. Only twenty percent of the oats and barley have been threshed. Rapeseed is 10 percent harvested and wheat is only three percent completed.

Holden area farmers managed to get some cutting and threshing operations completed during the past week.

All of the rye crop has been harvested. Rapeseed is 90 percent cut, oats is 80 percent cut while wheat and barley are 10 percent cut. One-half of the rapeseed has been harvested while oats is 20 percent done barley is 15 percent completed and wheat is only five percent threshed.

Although no threshing operations were carried out, farmers around Tofield did get some cutting done.

Ninety nine percent of rape has been cut. 92 percent of barley is cut, while 80 percent of the wheat is down, and 75 percent of the oats has been cut. Seventy percent of the rape crop has been harvested while oats and barley stand at five percent and a bare start was made in wheat.

No reports were received from either Camrose or Ryley.

Lamrose's last report showed that all wheat and barley had been cut while oats rapeseed and flax were ten percent cut. Oats percent of rapeseed had been threshed, barley was 15 percent done, wheat and oats were 20 percent threshed and flax was 30 percent complete.

Holden reported that the majority of the rapeseed crop had been harvested, and that wheat and barley were 80 percent cut.

CLC students win $20,000

Nearly 100 students at Camrose Lutheran College were honored last Wednesday evening, when an official bursaries award program dinner [illegible] held.

Nearly $20,000 in bursary awards were presented to students at Camrose Lutheran College last Wednesday evening, when an official bursary presentation dinner was held.

83 students received bursaries in this particular program, while several others were acknowledged during the evening for their success in winning scholarships or bursaries from other sources.

Most of the awards were for $220, although a few were for figures as high as $500, and a few were lesser amounts.

The background to the impressive array of awards was explained by Bill Fowler, chairman of the selection committee, who recalled that a few years ago a number of local businessmen were concerned over the situation faced by Camrose Lutheran College, which occasionally found itself in difficulty enrolling students when other institutions were able to offer bursaries on a fairly lavish scale. A number of businessmen met to work to remedy this situation, explained Mr Fowler, individually agreeing to contribute $250 each on an annual basis.

Mr Fowler went on to explain a highly interesting aspect of the whole scholarship program lay in the fact that ten percent of each of these donations was invested in a permanent fund, with only the interest to be used for further scholarships.

Almost amazingly, said the chairman, this fund has now grown to the point where it represents more than $18,000, and the proceeds each year contribute from six to seven scholarships over and above the annual donations.

Chairing the program for the evening was Kurt Hartvikson while Murray Lauber handled the introductions of students and the sponsors of those scholarships.

Senior among the scholarships in the John and Jury Spokeli Memorial, presented by Mrs I. E. Hills in memory of her parents Mrs. Hills, the former Signe Spokeli, was the first teacher at Camrose. Unable to be present herself to make the award, Mrs Hills asked her daughter, Mrs S. Bonanom, to make the presentation, the winner being David Riske of Bruderheim, who is enrolled in Chemistry.

Other major awards included the H. M. Kantz and Associates awards to two freshmen students on campus, while interest from the foundation funds provided two further awards to the late Mrs Luther Olson presented the E. M. Bergh Memorial in memory of her family, in the amount of $450, while Homefid presented a similar amount.

A neglect by many Canadians to maintain high standards of immunization has resulted in this months

Immunization Action promotion by Alberta s gover nment department of Social Services and Community

Graduate

Bonnie Anklam daughter of Mr and Mrs Edwin Schoenknecht of Hay Lakes, graduated from the Royal Alexandra Hospital on June 10th as a Registered Medical Laboratory Technician She is presently employed at the Medical Arts Building in Ed monton

Primarily aimed at mature citizens the program is mainly a preventive measure since according to Camrose Health Unit nurse Helen Gullacher no real problem currently exists with the

Although a little premature to say Ms Gullacher en dorsed various programs to be implemented this month on the local level in reminder to adults of the need for im munization Additional adult immunization clinics aside from the regular Friday clinics for children are being considered by the Camrose Health Unit, to give these per sons with no past health record an opportunity to re new their tetanus and polio booster shots Also, recent newcomers to Camrose are encouraged to obtain their out standing medical records and have them maintained by the local health unit A campaign bulletin to be placed in the downtown Camrose laun dromat will be among efforts of the Camrose Health Unit to keep the public informed

Since this months im munization program is at the health units regular service no supplementary attention will be paid to students, ac cording to Gullacher, as this area is the responsibility of parents until the child graduation from grade 12

As explanation for the timing of the promotion, the local nurse said this month is the tenth anniversary of the last promotional campaign which took place in October 1967 These are the intervals at which regular booster shots are required for tetnus and

Although uncertain of the actual justification of the campaign at this time Stettler medical officer Dr J C MacKay, expounded on nurse Gullachers' previous statements mentioning in particular the older generation at which the cam paign is aimed

On the basis of weekly reports submitted by district health units, Dr MacKay said "we're noticing a gradual decrease" in those being im munized

He stressed the need for im munization in light of today's rapid forms of transportation which carry people and sub sequently, diseases, from many areas of the world where control is exercised to a lesser degree than here in Canada

Although Dr MacKay felt assured of little concern in Camrose or surrounding district, "Canadians as a whole" he said, are neglecting their immunization

Trees still need water for winter

Are you wondering whether you need to give your or namental trees and shrubs a good soaking this year before freeze-up? The answer is yes

Herman Oosterhuis in charge of Alberta Agriculture's tree planting programs, says that soil moisture reserves are still depleted in northern and cen tral parts of the province par ticularly western areas, despite the above normal precipitation that has fallen since May The reason for the low soil moisture level in these areas is the small amount of snow that has fallen during the last three years The melting snow in the spring is one of the main sources of subsoil moisture in Alberta

Watering ornamental trees and shrubs before freeze-up is even more important in the south-eastern part of the province where the ab normally low subsoil problem has been compounded by the very low rate of precipitation received last summer Mr Oosterhuis says

He explains that a plentiful supply of water in the fall is needed to enable trees and shrubs in this province to withstand the drying winds and variations in temperature that occur during the winter months Since trees and shrubs have only limited ability to take up and tran sport moisture when the ground is frozen and they are relatively dormant they must have an abundant supply of moisture to prevent desic cation Evergreens like pines spruce and junipers are even more vulnerable to winter desiccation than trees which lose their leaves in the fall because evergreen lose moisture through their needles

Birch trees are another species that should be well watered just before freeze up Their shallow root system prevents them from having access to the deep subsoil moisture

Mr Oosterhuis also points out that regardless of the rain that falls during the summer the soil, near the surface and legal soles of a large part of Alberta is always very dry because of its in the rain shadow Also the season the southbound jetstream goes up and moisture rapidly because of the heat of summer This moisture is gained by cooling

Producer joins association

A Camrose cattle producing company has joined an in ternational organization

It was announced earlier this month that Smokey Hill Cattle Company Limited has joined the American Maine Anjou Association The association s head office is located in Kansas City

At the present time over 1,700 members, owning more than 60,000 head of cattle be long to the association, with members located both in Canada and the United States as the breed continues to grow in popularity

Bashaw man to supervise cereal crops

Dave Jantze, head of Alberta Agriculture's field crops branch, has announced the appointment of Bob Nelson to the position of supervisor of cereal crops. He replaces Sherman Yelland who retired early because of poor health.

Mr Nelson will be located at the regional agricultural office in Red Deer until the Lacombe office is completed next spring. His work will involve promotion, production, marketing and the utilization of cereal crops through policies and programs as well as supervising the government's seed cleaning plant program. The position also involves liaison work with research and industry personnel connected with cereal crops and the promotion and production of pedigreed seed.

Mr Nelson was born and raised on a mixed farm in the Bashaw area. He obtained his B.Sc (agriculture) from the University of Alberta in 1962, having specialized in soils. Two years later he obtained his M.Sc (agriculture) from the same university. His field of specialization was soil fertility.

From 1964 to 1965, Mr. Nelson worked as a technical representative for the agricultural department of Federated Co-op. The following year he was an instructor at Fairview College. From 1966 to 1976 he was Alberta Agricuture's regional plant industry supervisor in the Peace River region. From 1970 until his present appointment, he has been regional plant supervisor for central Alberta. With headquarters in Red Deer, his work involved crop production, seed cleaning plants and farmstead landscaping.

Super curling

Zone 11 men will hold an important curling meeting at the Rose City Curling Club in Camrose on Sunday afternoon.

Plans for the 1977-78 playoff season will be drafted, including decisions as to when and where the different playoffs will be held.

An important item on Sunday's agenda will be the possible formation of a Super Curling League.

A number of centers in the Zone have already expressed interest in playing in such a league, and it has been reported that Camrose alone might be entering a total of six teams.

One of the main reasons behind the formation of a Super Curling League would be to provide more competition for curlers so that they might be able to do better beyond the Zone level in provincial playoff competitions.

Sunday's meeting will start at three o'clock.

Fertilizer storage tank may serve Bashaw farms

Installation of a 30,000 U.S. gallon Anhydrous Ammonia storage tank may be carried out this fall near the Town of Bashaw, pending approval of two government departments involved.

At their regular meeting of October 7, Camrose County Council members were the first of three authorities requested to ratify an application for installation of the facility by the Winnipeg based Pioneer Grain Company Limited, manufacturers of fertilizers.

According to a letter of application received by the County October 3, the proposed facility would serve farmers in the Bashaw and New Norway districts where there is presently no other Anhydrous Ammonia installation within economical service distance.

R.C. Moffat, Associate Director of the Agricultural Department of the Pioneer Grain Company, stated in the letter that his company "would be in a position to supply and apply approximately 1,500 tons of Anhydrous Ammonia during the spring and fall season in this portion of the Camrose County. At the 50 pound nitrogen per acre rate, this would provide nitrogen fertiliser for about 30,000 acres."

A site has been located adjacent to the Bashaw town refuse disposal site, about 250 feet from Provincial highway 853. Although concern was expressed by one councillor, Steve Gregorwich, of the possible danger of deadly gases from the storage tank, it was explained by Bashaw Council representative Arlen Adams, that prevailing north-west winds would ensure the safety of the town, located to the south-west of the proposed tank site.

The Pioneer Grain Company feels resident of a several date early next spring if, subsequent approval to that granted by the County of Camrose October 7 is for

Zoning requirements next concern at Cooking Lake

Recommendations stemming from the recent completion of several years of Provincial government study and public participation in the Cooking Lake area met with mixed emotions at two public meetings last month.

Key recommendations of a Planning Report released early in August by the Provincial government department of Environment outline a system of zoning controls for various land uses. An environmental management plan for two large zones within the study area was also proposed, including 380 square miles in the Cooking Lake moraine and 90 square miles around Beaverhill Lake.

Following public acceptance of zoning implementation by local authorities, it is further recommended that levels of the major lakes be stabilized by a water importation pipeline from the North Saskatchewan River, and that the government purchase environmentally sensitive land, like watersheds and land corridors to link crown-owned natural areas.

A committment by the provincial government to conduct two public meetings was met through the second week of September, the first at South Cooking Lake Community Hall September 13, and a follow-up in Edmonton Sept. 15.

The objectives of the meetings, to explain the recommendations of the report, were met according to Carl Primus of the Planning Division of the Department of Environment, although some opposition was expressed by over 300 representatives of the area at each meeting, especially with respect to the pricing of land as offered by the Provincial government.

A maximum of four parcels per quarter section was one objective set down by the Planning Committee, at a rate of $500 to $1,500 per acre, although these figures quoted to farm owners were simply to get a price range, according to Primus, who assured in the event land was purchased, the government would always take the approach of fair market value.

Further meetings remain to be held with local councils, whose acceptance of necessary restrictions on further subdivisions in the area is essential before any zoning by-law can be adopted by the Provincial government.

In the event the restrictions are accepted, the Planning Act stipulates at least three public meetings must be conducted prior to the adoption of any zoning by-law.

Local CAC features consumerism display

Using the theme "Consumers be Conservers", the Camrose branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada will set up a promotional display in Duggan Mall during the week of Oct 27 to 29. Members of the local group will be on hand to discuss aspects of the associations' work, backed up with printed material.

Taking part in the three day display will be Northwestern Utilities, Calgary Power and Turbo Resources.

Across Canada, the CAC is mounting an effort to secure first hand experiences of difficulty in obtaining information held by government departments and agencies. The presentation which will be built up from this follows the Green Paper published some time ago by the federal government on access to government information. The CAC has for some time mounted an effort to secure greater access, for the public, to information which is collected and available to the government, but often withheld from the public.

$1,000 fine for stealing road signs

Fines up to $1000 will be levied against persons found guilty of stealing or defacing road signs, deputy premier and minister of transportation, Dr. Hugh M. Horner announced last week.

The jump to a maximum fine of $1000 is "more realistic in view of the seriousness of the offence" he said and expects the higher fines to be a deterrent to pranksters who vandalise signs "for the fun of it."

Serious accidents and deaths have been caused as a result of sign vandalism and concerned citizens and municipal authorities throughout Alberta have been requesting stricter penalties for persons found guilty of stealing signs and for identification markings to prove signs are stolen property.

As part of the campaign to curb road sign vandalism, individual communities will in future brand their road signs with serial numbers and their particular identification decals.

Holmes at CLC Homecoming

One of the more popular faculty members of recent years is returning to Camrose Lutheran College as a guest speaker during Homecoming celebrations.

Dr. Art Holmes will give the featured address during the alumni banquet which will be held on the second day of the annual three-day event.

During his stay at CLC, Dr. Holmes had been Dean of Students, and prior to that, had been the college's Development Officer. Extremely popular with the student body, Dr. Holmes is likely to attract a lot of former students to this year's celebration. At the present time, Dr. Holmes is executive director of the Edmonton City Centre Church Corporation, working chiefly in the area of social services.

This year's CLC Homecoming has been scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 28, 29, and 30.

Alumni members to be honoured this year will be graduates from the years 1917, 1927, 1937, 1947, 1957, 1967 and 1976.

Homecoming will commence on the Friday night when the CLC Vikings meet their traditional rivals, Red Deer College Kings, in an ACAC hockey game.

Alumni members may register on Saturday morning and will be taken on guided tours of the campus. This will be followed by lunch in the cafeteria.

A busy afternoon has been planned beginning with two exhibition basketball games as the present Vikettes and Vikings will face alumni teams of past years. The president's tea will be held in the South Dorm Lounge and the M Club (composed of fund-raising members) will meet in the Teaching Theatre.

Under the direction of Milt Gilbertson, a choir rehearsal has been scheduled for the late afternoon.

The highlight of Saturday's activities will come early in the evening as the annual alumni banquet will be held. It is at this banquet that Dr. Holmes will speak. Alumni members will hold a brief general meeting following the banquet and officers for the 1977-78 term will be elected.

Sunday's activities will commence with a chapel service at 9.30 a.m., to be followed by the dedication of the new building on campus.

Rev. Walter Ritter of the CLC faculty will be the guest speaker at Homecoming Worship Service at Messiah Lutheran Church at 11:00 a.m. and Homecoming will come to an end with an exhibition hockey game in the afternoon between the present Vikings and the team from the 1976-77 season. The latter team is the one that went all the way and won a Canadian championship.

Arrangements for this year's Homecoming activities are being arranged by Joanne Robertson, a '74 graduate from Camrose. Miss Robertson is the first vice-president of CLC Alumni and is currently teaching in Edmonton.

Hay Lakes notes

Mrs A. Arnston

Notice of the Hay Lakes Village election has been posted for Oct 19th from 10 00 a.m. to 8.00 p.m. in the Cultural centre. Village voters are asked to please use the west door. The three positions on Village council are being contested by John Groeller, Dennis Leicht, Mike Sych, Terry Olson and Henk Werkman. Mrs. Fay Leicht and Mrs Bernice Leicht are seeking the position of Village School Representative. Residents are urged to please exercise their right to vote.

A number of people attended the Hay Lakes and District Recreation meeting last Monday evening to support the proposed playground for youngsters. A spokesman is to look into the cost of such a project and report back at the next meeting.

Tickets for the Halloween costume dance Oct. 28 are now available at the Hay Lakes Hardware and Arnston Insurance Office. Admission is by advance tickets only.

At an afternoon ceremony held in Our Savior Lutheran Church on Oct. 1st, Cindy Metzker and Theodore Hansen pledged their marriage vows. Pastor O. Pederson officiated. During the signing of the register a selection was played on the violin by Wendy Johnson, accompanied by Annette Bateman at the organ.

The radiant bride was escorted down the aisle by her mother and father, Margaret and Waldemar Metzker. The bride's veil and floor length white gown was sewn by an aunt of the groom, Aslaug Hansen of Edmonton. Beautiful beadwork enhanced the bodice of the gown. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Terry, as maid of honor and three bridesmaids, Lorraine These, Colleen Maruschak and Diane Budd. They all were similar gowns of pale blue with capes of blue floral sheer, and carried bouquets of blue tinted carnations and white mums. The groom's nieces and nephew, Gina and Dale Tomaszewski were flower girl and ring-bearer.

A banquet for 150 guests was held at the Hay Lakes Community Centre. Art Rinkleman acted as master of ceremonies. This was followed by a dance and reception for 300 guests.

Open house was held at the home of the bride's parents on Sunday afternoon. The young couple are making their home in the Hay Lakes district.

Visitors at the Waldemar Metzker home while here for Cindy's wedding were Mrs Metzker's sister and five brothers, Mr and Mrs. W. Christiansen and family of Innisfail, Mr and Mrs. Russell Budd and Diane of Calgary, Mr and Mrs. Clifford Budd and family of Rimbey, Mr and Mrs. Ralph Budd and family of Red Deer, Martin Budd of Edmonton and Gordon Budd of Bittern Lake.

Correction. The Canadian inadvertently combined two news items last week resulting in a wrong report. Following is the correction. Mr and Mrs. Duncan Slater and Mr and Mrs. Dick Reimer of Vancouver were recent visitors at the Reuss Mittelstadt home. Mrs. Slater and Mrs. Mittelstadt are sisters.

Mr and Mrs. Clem Tober of Secanssa, B.C., were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr and Mrs. Carl Nordin.

Mrs. Martha Nordin, Mrs. Wanda Grahn and Mrs. Margaret Arnston represented the Hay Lakes Municipal Library at a seminar held in the Camrose Public Library on Wednesday evening. The seminar was sponsored by the Northern Alberta Library Development Services with librarian, Rudy Kerkhoven as the main speaker. Joe Forsyth of Alberta Library Services [illegible]

Several points of library service were discussed and recommendations for improvement was suggested by participants of the seminar. It was agreed that inter-library book loan has proven most satisfactory. It is expected that in the near future, special circulating collections of various books will be available for use in public libraries.

A special library service for the handicapped has been organized. Books on cassette tapes have been made available for the blind.

It was suggested that interviews should be held with our pioneer citizens and taped as once these elderly residents pass on so much of our history will be lost.

It is hoped that sometime in the future the Camrose Public Library can act as a major information centre for the surrounding district libraries.

- $275 or over for less than 2 bedrooms

At any time, after July 1, 1977, if your base rent (plus any authorized increases) exceeds these decontrol levels, your premises become decontrolled six months later.

2) If your rent is under the above levels, your premises remain under rent controls and a maximum increase of 8 per cent or $20, whichever is the greater, may be applied during 1978.

All rent increases are subject to 90 days' written notice.

Whether you are a landlord or a tenant, rent decontrols may affect you. Our brochure explains the Rent Decontrol Act. Write for your free copy.

EVERYTHING IS POSSIBLE

Mark 13:9 Jesus said unto him, "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth."

In 1811, the wealthy aristocratic Allen family adopted a son. When the boy grew up he was a "good for nothing." He was expelled from every school that he attended. Finally, in desperation he was sent to West Point Military Academy, but before very long he was discharged for misconduct. Then the father gave up on the boy. Mr. Allen was so hurt and bitter about this that when he was sick and dying he struck the young man across the face and said, "I never want to see you again."

Yet, as the years rolled by that same worthless good for nothing boy found himself and began to do some writing. Later, he became one of the world's greatest poets. Edgar Allen Poe.

We often judge too harshly and too quickly. We must never forget that with God all things are possible.

Confronting Your Faith

This is the second in the current series of articles by members of the Tofield and District Ministerial Association. Rev. Carl Hansen is this week's writer.

A dark blot on the image of Christianity in this twentieth century is the open warfare between militant Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland. We hear of the conflicts and wonder how such bloody antagonism fits in with the profound desire of our Lord for unity am -g His followers as He expresses it in His High Priestly prayer:

... that they may all be one even as thou, Father, art in me and I in Thee. . . so that the world may believe." John 17:11, 21-23

Both factions believe in the one God, one Savior, Jesus Christ, and one Holy Spirit. Both sides hope to live in the same Heaven in eternity. Holding these sacred tenets of the Faith in common, how can they hate and slaughter one another on earth? "How unspiritual! How barbaric!" we say.

Yet, although we haven't resorted to blood letting methods recently, we must confess that we have at times been quick to run to the battlements in defense of the denominational fortresses which our forefathers built ostensibly without securing any building permit from the Lord of the Church!

Liberal church men of a past generation realized the error of "fortress Christianity" and dedicated themselves to bring about the unity of the Christian denominations, but they worked on an organizational level. Their efforts created some new structures such as National Councils of Churches, a World Council of Churches, in addition to many new denominational fortresses as the "anti" forces withdrew from the "pro" forces.

Nevertheless, today a new thing is happening. Where unity by organization has failed, the unity of the Spirit is prevailing. Everywhere Christians are coming together. They are drawn together, not by organizational structures, but by the Spirit of God. Barriers are breaking down, the ancient fortresses are crumbling. Christians are finding their commonality instead of accentuating their differences. Faith and fellowship is centered in God, not in our inherited institutions. Love flows out to include fellow Christians with their differences.

As a result, in our community, Christians from the denominations are coming together for Bible Study and Prayer, working together in operating "That Place", and gathering together for united worship on Christmas and Easter. Local pastors of the Ministerial Association meet together for fellowship, encouragement, and cooperation. People are finding themselves as they discover each other united by the same Spirit.

Let us, (as well as our Irish brothers), lay down our grenades, leave our fortresses, and venture out on the search to discover what it really means to be brothers and sisters in the One Family of God!

Whatever Became of Sin? Karl Menninger, M.D.
"The human conscience is like the police: it may be eluded, stifled, drugged or bribed. But not setting aside some clergymen and laymen evade responsibility with the advice: Sin is an old fashioned notion ... no need to feel guilty and repent. You are no sinner, but either sick or criminal, so I need only direct you to the doctor or to the police." To minimize sin is to suffer the consequences.

How to Live in High Victory Harold Hill
Here are the further adventures of a real live king's kid – one who frankly admits that he is "under construction." Hill confesses to his "when I was a new Christian" failures, and shows how the lessons of his past predicaments give you a chance to avoid them for yourself.

TWO NEW CANADA SAVINGS BONDS

A GREAT CHOICE

This year, Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice. There's a new Regular Interest Bond that pays interest each year. And a new Compound Interest Bond that re-invests your interest automatically, earning interest on your interest.

SAFETY, INSTANT CASH AND A GOOD RETURN

Both new bonds retain the great features that have helped to make Canada Savings Bonds the favourite investment for millions of Canadians over the past 31 years. They're a safe, secure investment. They're instant cash anytime. And they earn good interest — year after year.

The Canada Savings Bonds are dated November 1, 1977 and yield an average annual interest of 8.06% when held to maturity in 1986. Each new bond begins with 7% interest the first year and earns 8.25% interest for each of the remaining 8 years.

REGULAR INTEREST BOND

If you want a regular annual income from your investment, you'll like the new Regular Interest Bond which pays interest automatically each Nov. 1st. You have the choice of receiving your interest either by cheque or by direct deposit into your chequing or savings account. This new direct deposit feature is an added convenience for you.

You can buy the Regular Interest Bond for cash wherever you bank or invest in denominations of $300, $500, $1,000 and $5,000.

COMPOUND INTEREST BOND

If you seek savings growth, or an investment for the future, or a retirement fund, you'll choose the new Compound Interest Bond. After the first year you will earn interest on your interest at the annual rate of 8.06%. Interest on this bond is left to accumulate and is payable only upon redemption or at maturity.

Here's how the value of a $100 bond grows:

No. 1 Value		No. 1 Value
1978	$107.00	1983	$150.78
1979	$115.61	1984	$171.77
1980	$125.34	1985	$185.81
1981	$135.63	1986	$200.97
1982	$146.76

The Compound Interest Bond may be purchased for cash or on the convenient Monthly Savings Plan wherever you bank or invest. It is available in denominations of $100, $300, $500, $1,000 and $5,000.

THE CHOICE IS YOURS

As you can see, new Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice — the Regular Interest Bond and the Compound Interest Bond. Both new bonds are on sale now up to a combined total purchase limit of $15,000. They have been specifically designed to meet your savings goals. Choose the one that's right for you.

Progressive Farming

IS AN ORGANIC ACID GRAIN PRESERVER THE ANSWER?

If you are worried about getting your feed grain crops harvested because of wet weather you might be wise to use an organic acid grain preservative, says Larry Gareau of Alberta Agriculture.

High moisture grain that is preserved with an acid preservative and properly stored, will keep for at least nine months. It can be stored in a wooden or steel bin. A wooden bin should be thoroughly cleaned to remove any old, moldy grain, and, if it is in poor condition, it should be lined with polyethylene film. A steel bin should either be lined with polyethylene film or sprayed with "Interguard" CC 133 (available from International Paints Ltd.) or raw linseed oil to prevent the steel from corroding.

There is a new product on the market called 'Poly Fixateer' available from Ken Distributors, Edmonton that makes it much easier to line both wooden and steel bins. You simply nail these plastic strips to the top of a wooden bin or rivet them to the top of a steel bin and hang any type of plastic sheeting from them.

Grain treated with an acid preservative is completely safe to feed to cattle, sheep, swine and poultry, and it will not affect the quality of either the milk or meat. However, grain treated with an organic acid preservative cannot be used for human consumption or for seed and it cannot be sold to an elevator.

As far as is known there are only two organic acid grain preservatives available in Alberta. They are Chemicel, manufactured by Chemcell, and Grain Treet, manufactured by Kemira Chemicals Inc., Iowa, U.S.A.

The cost of treating grain with Chemicel varies between 9 cents to 15 cents a bushel depending upon the moisture content. It will preserve grain with a moisture content of up to 30 per cent for at least nine months. It is supplied with a special applicator as the grain is augered into the bin. The applicator can be either rented for $7.50 a week or bought for a price in the neighborhood of $300.00 to $400.00. The price of treating with Chemicel is competitive with drying grain when you have a dryer or have access to a custom dryer.

The cost of Grain Treet is 12 and one half cents a bushel for barley and 20 cents a bushel for wheat. It can be used on grain with a moisture content of up 25 per cent and will preserve it for a year or more. The application rate is 10 lbs per ton, regardless of the type of grain or moisture content. Applicators range in price from $265 to $700 depending upon the capacity of the applicator. The $265 applicator can also be used to treat high moisture hay.

First Aid

Dislocations are normally accompanied by pain, tenderness and swelling at or near the joint; deformity or abnormal appearance, and loss of movement. Do not try to return the bones to a normal position as such action might greatly damage the nearby nerves and blood vessels. Support the injured part in the most comfortable position using padding and bandages or slings. Obtain medical aid. Cold compresses may help to limit swelling.

Trans-Canada Farm Trials Reports

Mr Bairness reports that livestock feeding trials conducted in various parts of Canada and the U.S. show that grain harvested with a high moisture content (20 to 25 per cent) and treated with Chemicel is more palatable than dry grain and that it has a higher nutritional value.

For example beef cattle gains of 4 to 4.5 pounds per day have been recorded in research feeding trials. These animals had a superior feed efficiency rate and their carcasses graded higher than average. Dairy herds fed treated grain under experimental conditions increased their milk production by as much as 12 per cent.

Chemistor and an applicator can be obtained from Chemcell product distributors Federated Co-op, National Grain Co Ltd., Byers Flour Mills Camrose and Ohstoks Feed Services, Ohstoks.

Grain Treet and an applicator can be obtained by contacting Western Brand Products Ltd. in Edmonton who will put you in touch with their local dealer

St. Lucia —

By Marilyn Lane

St Lucians sometimes say "This little island is behind God's back." Jesse James stated at Monday evening's [illegible] Site was speaking about the Caribbean island of St. Lucia 238 square miles of tropical beauty encompassing beaches, a flat plain in the north and south, and a mount[illegible]

130,000 people of mainly African and East Indian descent inhabit the island They earn their living by farming either independently or as labourers on larger plantations fishing or working in various aspects of the tourist industry The average annual income is approximately $400 Canadian

Harold James explained that St Lucia is an independent democratic state in association with Great Britain, who governs all external policies for the island There are no natural resources; chief exports are bananas, copra (coconut meat from which cooking oil is extracted), and cocoa They rely heavily on imports of food products, gas and oil, and manufactured goods Although the history of trade agreements between islands has not been totally successful, the James' feel that conditions will improve as the islands gain independence and control over their own external affairs

Elementary education is free but attendance not enforced due to badly overcrowded classrooms There is a fee for attending senior secondary school Post secondary education is facilitated by scholarships given by the St Lucian government and various other countries for studies at the University of the West Indies or abroad There is a technical school and a teacher's college in Castries, the capital of the [illegible]

Canada plays a large role in the Caribbean area The majority of the banks are Canadian and there is heavy investment in the tourist trade For example, a British consortium who owned a major hotel went bankrupt and a Canadian firm was approached by the St Lucian government to take over the enterprise This meant a continuation of employment for many local people Much Canadian aid has gone to St Lucia in the form of an airport runway and terminal building, a number of junior secondary schools, and various other projects

Mr James, who plans to return to St Lucia, said he came to Canada to further his education in the field of hospital administration and because lack of supplies in his job as medical laboratory technician was frustrating

Among the guests were former Superintendent of Schools, Dr Neil Gannon and his son, who made the trip from the Gannon's new home in Red Deer and the new Superintendent, Mr Reinhold.

Reservoir's questions occupies council time

Business matters relating to the town's reservoir occupied much of the time at the last Tofield Town Council meeting.

Council directed that arrangements be made for the removal of all beaver dams so that the reservoir could be topped before winter, and authority was granted for the installation of a second drain line on the west berm of the new reservoir at an estimated cost of $1,800

Administration was authorized to apply for a grant from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in regards to the town's reservoir

Members of administration were also authorized to contact the town's engineer regarding location of the present intake line, water reservoir, concrete swale on the east end of 56 Avenue, and automatic AGT controls for water storage

Councillors decided to write to the Regional Recreation Department to find out if a new regional recreation agreement had been signed and if so, when it would go into effect

It was determined that re-advertising for the position of by law enforcement and licensing officer should be delayed until the beginning of 1978

Council agreed that black dirt from the new reservoir site should not be sold until the project has been completed, and the area has been properly fenced to control access to the site

Council questioned the authority of the Tofield Agricultural Society to borrow $13,500 against the three-mill recreation fund, particularly in view of the fact that the borrowing had not been approved by the Tofield Recreation Board or by Town Council

First reading was given to a by-law which would amend the existing zoning by-law.

Approval was given for payment of accounts amounting to $148,788.48

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a meeting held on October 11th.

Hitting home!

The chimerical chief

It's probably no wonder that Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker has become a legend in his own time. . . . the man has so many sides and so many qualities that probably none of us really ever knows him, or understands him.

His most recent surprise is the about-face he pulled, after severely criticizing party leader Joe Clark on a number of occasions, in suggesting him as a logical candidate for the Privy Council. Almost equally interesting is the approbation and appreciation he extended to Tommy Douglas and Stanley Knowles in suggesting them for the same honor.

Both are members of the far-left NDP, and earlier the CCF, party. Both have been gadflies in Mr. Diefenbaker's side over many years. And both have been stalwart Parliamentarians, true to their own ideals, qualities which doubtless have not been missed by Mr. Diefenbaker.

The House of Commons, and the Dominion of Canada, have been the better for their presence and their service over many years. And if they now are chosen for that select circle, the Privy Council, the honor will be shared as much by Canada as it will be by the men themselves.

Mr. Diefenbaker shows he can be magnanimous, as well as carping, realistic beyond strict partisanship, charitable and liberal, as well as Conservative.

The monarch or the queen?

Following last weekend's demonstration of the power of a royal visit, one can logically wonder, is it the presence of the Monarch as such, or the personality of the Queen, which proves so powerful. It's only a few years ago that Prime Minister Trudeau was doubting the power of prestige of the monarchy in Canada, yet last week-end, he publicly and warmly acknowledged its existence. Premier Rene Levesque could hardly have been counted on to be a great supporter of the monarchy, yet there was he, too, thoroughly appreciating the royal presence and the royal magnetism.

Those of us who are avowed and continuing royalists can easily comprehend the influence, simply by accepting it as fact. But those of us who lean to the abolition of the institution must look on the Queen's influence as something which is purely personal, which has nothing whatever to do with the office. We're willing to admit that this may well be true, but it seems logical to point out that under no other system is it possible for such a person to be in such a position, to spend their entire lifetime in growing into the attitude and the character of service to the nation at all times.

We can't help believe that the Commonwealth in general and Canada in particular are particularly lucky, and particularly well served, in having a monarch in these days with the stature of our diminutive Queen.

Ryley Pool News

Demonstrations skits and birthday cake were on the agenda at the Ryley Pool Thursday evening. A nice size crowd attended our awards and first birthday celebration.

The evening started with greetings from the Mayor of Ryley George Baker. Our first demonstration involved the Mom and Tot class showing how the little ones are taught to be comfortable in the water. Our youngest eight month old Jason Hardy of Tofield showed how he can be dunked in the water without fuss while five year olds, Troy Moore of Tofield and Stuart Wunsens of Ryley demonstrated how they can swim and dive off the diving boards.

Four of our leaders, Tam, Susan, Treva and Colleen gave a funny skit of their impressions of how teaching [illegible].

The Ryley Sharks Club and leader gave a splash diving demonstration and Scott Reid demonstrated his twelve somersault dive from the one meter board. The club also demonstrated different swimming strokes during a race.

DISCIPLINE BY CONSEQUENCES

This is another in the series by Nadine Vester Family Living Specialist, Alberta Agriculture

A parent's goal is not the raising of an obedient child. What manner of adult grows from a child who obeys promptly? Did someone say "a robot"?

If not obedience, what should we aim for? We should aim for a child who cooperates with the demands of the situation, and the "maintenance of order", according to Dr Rudolf Dreikurs in "Children The Challenge".

"We cannot let the kids run wild," you say, after all, "spare the rod and spoil the child." What about spanking?

The results are so predictable If may make Mom and Dad feel better but it is not guaranteed to change the child for the better If it were, there would be less crime and delinquency in the world Punishment may teach the child to stop, or it may teach him to fear his parents, and to be more careful next time not to be caught

If spanking does not work what can we do" Sometimes, the most effective action we can take is no action. Let reality happen For example, the natural consequence of not eating is hunger A junior high school has a problem about the use of the telephone Party children are lined up every lunch hour to phone their parents to bring the lunches they forgot. If forty families said, "tough, your next meal is this evening," forty families would save gas and aggravation, and no child would starve Mother did not forget the lunch why should she be unsurmounted every lunch hour" Let the child take his own responsibility "But that is mean," you say On the contrary, it prepares the child for adulthood. Who picks up after you, bails you out, protects you from life?

Obviously, you cannot let a child learn not to run into the street by letting him get hit by a car But you can use a logical consequence - an action related to the behavior For example, "If you can't stay inside the yard, you will have to come in." Then act.

Let's take a further look at natural consequences Remember, natural consequences happen with no intervention from the parents You touch a hot stove, it burns You tease a dog, it bites You decide to leave your raincoat home, you get wet You play in puddles, your feet get wet You go camping in winter, you get cold (requirement a sailor tested in the backyard) Obviously parents must use their common sense to protect their children from serious injury, but too many also want to protect them from any discomfort

Logical consequences do not inevitably follow an act, but used calmly and logically, they are effective Here are some examples You do not put your bike away, someone steals it, and you must earn the money for a new one You spend your allowance on candy the first day, you are broke until next week Dawdling leads to lateness, which leads to a detention The dishes are not washed no matter cannot get supper

Be creative in relating the consequences to the act, but never use a consequence you cannot live with. If your child is late and you ground him for a week, you will defeat your purpose if his nagging and whining drives you to letting him out two days later (That does not teach him to come in on time, it teaches him to nag and whine)

A secret to successful child training is to have few rules, make reasonable demands and when you say something, mean it If it is not worth an action, it is not worth saying either Ask yourself "What are the demands of the situation?" Your goal should be tied to the situation, not to the qustion of obedience

A Hint Be aware of what the child is learning A group of grade one girls were asked "When you lose a pocket, how many of you have parents who

1977 COW CALF PRODUCERS ADVANCE PROGRAM

The Cow-Calf Producers' Advance Program, which has been in force to Alberta since 1976, is to be applied to this year's calf crop.

This means that cow-calf producers will be able to borrow $25 per calf on 50 per cent of the calves in their herds up to a maximum of 50,000 at an interest rate of 7 per cent. The program stipulates that the new loan must be used first to retire any outstanding debt (principal plus interest) that is owing under the 1976 advance loan program. Calf losses who defaulted on their payments under the 1974, 1975 or 1976 programs will not be eligible for a loan under the 1977 program.

To be eligible, calves must have been born in 1977 to cows that were owned by, or under the control of, the applicant prior to August 1, 1977, and they must be owned by the applicant at the time he applies for a loan.

Purebred and commercial cattle breeders and dairymen are eligible for a loan under the 1977 program, regardless of whether or not they own their own land, providing they meet all the requirements of the program. Those include being a resident of Alberta and being 18 years of age or older. An applicant may not submit more than one application.

In the case of share-cattle, the lessee and the lessor may each apply for a loan on 50 per cent of their respective shares of the calves.

Loans made under the 1977 Cow-Calf Producers' Advance Program will bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent for one year from the date the loan is approved by a bank. The interest rate on any unpaid balance of the loan after one year or after January 31, 1979 whichever is sooner, will be the lending institution's prime rate at that time plus 2 per cent.

Application forms will be available from all district Agriculture's offices on November 1. They must be completed and approved by January 31, 1978 and submitted to the lending institution not later than February 28, 1978.

Confronting Your Faith

This week's article for the columns sponsored by the Tofield and District Ministerial Association is written by the Reverend David Meddle, minister of the Tofield United Church.

An American minister wrote of his encounter with an Hawaiian, Mother Alice by name, who had come to his chapel "to learn to pray".

"Before the missionaries came to Hawaii", she said, "my people used to sit outside their temples for a long time meditating and preparing themselves before entering. Then they would virtually creep to the altar to offer their petitions. afterwards, they would again sit a long time outside, this time to "breathe life" into their prayers. The Christians when they came, just got up, uttered a few sentences, said, "Amen", and were done. For that reason, my people called them "haoles", meaning those without breath or those who fail to breathe life into their prayers."

How many of us are "done" too fast? Many of us today feel that we need to breathe vitality into our prayers and worship. The Hawaiian lady's criticism of Christians is echoed among people of many religions. They do not understand how we can be in touch with our God when we take so little time to prepare for worship. How many of us are ready to worship when we arrive at church? How long do we spend after church evaluating and reinforcing our worship experiences?

The Roman Catholics formerly had a rule that they could neither eat nor drink in the few hours before Mass. The rule may still be there, but the time of abstinence is shortened. This is unfortunate, because that period must have helped them become more aware of their reason for going to church.

Perhaps we all need to learn to prepare ourselves for worship by taking time to "breathe life" into our prayers. This is vital if we are to receive strength and health from worship. So many of us treat our worship as we do all things in our lives. We arrive at the last moment and we were busy doing something else, and we rush away to the next event on schedule. Come to the altar to pray, to drive or walk home slowly, to pause and listen to someone else's concerns. Instead, we say some quick words and are done; we say "Amen" and rush off home. We have time neither for God nor for one another.

As the prophet Isaiah asked, "Why spend money on what does not satisfy? Why spend your wages and still be hungry?"

Rather, seek to spend time with one another and the Lord. Look up the scriptures before you come, come early to visit with all who gather, and stay late getting to know your fellow worshippers.

If we take time to "breathe life" into our worship then truly we will have the "life" that God promises to all of us.

In spite of the marvelous weather keeping farmers out hay making and harvesting, the hall on Saturday was creaking at the seams in order to admit all supporters who came to enjoy the turkey supper Friends came from Edmonton, Calgary, Bellshill, Tofield and many other places, for afterwards, several were turned away from the Pony Club dance, which was a sell-out

It is really a credit to the executive to see the improvements made to the hall during this last summer, although it is disappointing for the Pony Club that the arena has not been started on, for lack of the bevvy machinery required.

There will be a whist at the hall this Friday, staring promptly at 8 30 p m

"Lots of other countries have Unemployment Insurance. What's so good about our system?"

Canada has one of the most comprehensive UI programs in the western world.

It has a relatively short entrance period and pays benefits longer And almost all Canadians share in the cost and benefits of the program

By reducing the financial shock of people's movements from one job to another, unemployment insurance has helped to keep our workforce adaptable to today's rapidly changing social and economic conditions.

"Sure. But what about the cost to Canadians?"

Certainly, the dollar figures are high This year's UI payout to Canadians will approach four billion dollars.

But consider that figure in light of the ultimate benefits to the country

The UI program gives temporary financial aid to hundreds of thousands of Canadians while they're between jobs.

"Isn't UI really just another kind of welfare?"

Far from it. Welfare money is paid only according to need.

Unemployment insurance money is paid according to eligibility.

It's like any other kind of insurance. If you've worked in insurable employment, and a situation arises which entitles you to make a claim, that claim will be settled as quickly and courteously as possible.

"Well, what do you do about cheaters and abuse?"

There are fewer cheaters and abusers than some would have you believe.

Outright criminal fraud is dealt with through conventional channels.

Some people abuse the system without even knowing it Here, and at times when the abuse is not really criminal in nature, we have our own staff to handle the problem.

In any case, the vast majority of UI claimants deal with us fairly, as fairly as we deal with them

"How about when I make a claim and you say "no"?

If you have good reason to disagree with any decision a UI agent makes on your claim, you have the right to appeal that decision to an independent and impartial board of referees, or then an Umpire of the Federal Court

You get a fair, open appeal hearing and be represented by counsel if you wish

And in rewarding matters comes to light before making the appeal, you can go back to your agent and ask for an review of the decision. And the whole appeal process is free.

Remember, our job is to pay you all the benefits you are entitled to.

"OK, what do you have to do while you're receiving benefits?"

Your Unemployment Insurance office can ask you to carry out what we call a formal "Active Job Search". Your agent will want to know what you're doing to find suitable and gainful employment while you're getting your cheques.

But no matter what happens, you should keep looking seriously for a new job and follow any instructions your UI officer or Canada Manpower Centre gives you. Your right to continuing benefits depends on it.

If you'll do your job, we'll do ours.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission and the Department of Manpower and Immigration have become the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission. For a time, you'll still see our local offices identified as Unemployment Insurance offices or Canada Manpower Centres. If you have to deal with one location, they'll be called Canada Employment Centres.

Working with people who want to work.

VOL. 51-No. 7 Thursday, October 27, 1977 PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT TOFIELD, ALBERTA SINGLE COPY 15¢

Nine incumbents are elected

Only nine incumbents were returned to office in last Wednesday's civic elections as both Ryley and Holden have elected completely new councils.

Six of the incumbents were returned in the County of Beaver two by acclamation while Tofield re-elected its mayor and three councillors. No incumbents saw re-election in Ryley with both of Holden's incumbents going down to defeat at the polls.

Turnouts in the polls in all instances were regarded as good. However electors lists are no longer being kept and it was not possible to estimate what percentage of the eligible voters actually cast ballots in last week's elections.

COUNTY

All four of the incumbents running in last week's election were returned for three year terms of office. Two of the incumbents had been returned by acclamation on nomination day and one newcomer will join county council.

Gabe Brassard of Viking and George Knudsen of Ryley were the two councillors re-elected by acclamation as they were unopposed on [redacted] ballots.

Charlie Sears of Tofield had the closest call of the incumbents as he barely squeaked out a narrow three vote victory over Walter Krystal, also of Tofield. The total vote was 83-80 in favour of Mr. Sears.

Eugene Kwasnuk easily retained his seat as he whipped Douglas McCloy 100-48 after all ballots had been counted. Both men are from [redacted].

Incumbent Walter Krepelbuchi of Ryley was also returned in relatively easy fashion as he walloped Edgar Grande of Holden 130-59.

Hjordis Armitage had the easiest time of any incumbent in gaining re-election. The incumbent won handily over newcomer Edward Regehr who polled 270 and 235 votes respectively.

Out of the running were Eleanor McNeill (220), Jake Neufeld (210), Stan Vollmer (178), incumbent Henry Nachtigal (98), Ed Theile (64) and Leonard Baker (42).

A total of 650 voters cast ballots in the election.

HOLDEN

Holden will have a completely new slate of councillors as the only two incumbents running in the election went down to defeat.

Leading the way at the polls was Oleh Shykora who picked up 105 votes. Trailing in second place was Marvin Gerbelhaus with 147 votes cast on his favour.

Christine MacKay held third place with 119 votes, John Lemko was fourth with 118 votes and the final seat was taken by Dennis Daniels with 108 votes.

Ending up out of the running were Dennis Cooper (86), incumbent Bruce Budd (80), incumbent Mathew Helfrich (76) and Gordon Komarinsky (6).

Two hundred and thirty two people cast ballots.

RYLEY

Six candidates battled it out for the five seats on council with not one of the candidates being an incumbent.

In a close race, Larry Andrukow, ended with the most votes as he edged Richard Kope by only seven votes, winning 167-160.

Edward Albrecht finished in third place with 157 votes, Thomas Kreiee was fourth with 134 votes and Ernest Brown took the fifth seat with 127 votes.

Irwin Strynadka finished without a seat as he lost out to Mr. Brown by only seven votes, ending with 120 ballots cast in his favour.

David Wilde was an easy winner for a seat on the county school committee as he picked up 131 ballots in his favour. Harriet Ruddy ended with 36 votes while Floyd Taylor had [illegible] votes.

Stop signs might go in Village of Ryley

Stop signs in the Village of Ryley may become a thing of the past if a recommendation from the village's outgoing council is accepted.

At a regular meeting of council earlier in the month councillors heard a report from Councillor Taylor that the village presently has three stop signs and ten yield signs.

In his report, Taylor suggested that the village post only yield signs and that 48th Sth and 51st streets become through streets because of foreseeable development in the future.

Council accepted the councillor's report and indicated that the recommendation should be placed on the agenda for the new council's attention.

Council gave permission for the Ryley Public Library to be moved from its present location in the Ryley School to the building owned by the Ryley Senior Citizens Sunshine Club.

Council accepted an offer from the Ryley Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion to furnish a new photograph of Queen Elizabeth II along with new colours to be hung in the council chambers after renovations have been completed.

Presentation of the portrait and colours would be presented to representatives of council during Remembrance Day ceremonies at the Ryley Legion.

Ray Hovland was authorized to advertise for new bids for renovations to the exterior of the village office after councillors had been told that only one incomplete bid had been submitted.

Council was told by the secretary treasurer that the by-law for offsite levy costs had not been prepared as additional information had been required.

The village foreman was authorized to complete two gravelling projects. One was work on 52 Avenue between 50 and 51 Streets and the other was the back lane running east between 55 and 56 Avenues in Block 16.

Accounts submitted for payment were approved.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a meeting held on October 11th.

Police plan crackdown on hallowe'en vandals

Extra patrols will be on duty over Hallowe'en as the Tofield Detachment of the RCMP have decided to crack down on vandalism.

Quite a few reports of acts of vandalism were received last year during the hallowe'en and continuing acts of vandalism have occurred on a regular basis over the past few months, prompting the police to react accordingly.

RCMP report that there will be no shortage of volunteers to go out on patrol as a number of groups have already expressed an interest and a willingness to participate.

In the past few days, a number of acts of vandalism have been reported to the Tofield Detachment.

Systematic cable located in the Round Hill area was damaged, with damages totalling about $6,500.

Art Francis reported a calf being shot to death while up to $400 in damages was reported at a campsite on Highway 16. Vandalism at the laundromat was estimated to cost about $250 while Bernard Schacher of Tofield reported that a mirror had been broken, windshield wipers bent and wires pulled from the distributor of his new half ton truck.

Five cases of break and enter or theft were reported in just over a week.

Brenda Williams lost her license plate from the school grounds while three flashing warning lights were taken from a construction site in Tofield and Lois Thorsen reported the theft of her car from the school grounds in Tofield. It was recovered but some tools were still missing.

There was a break in at the school in Tofield with a starter drum and cymbals missing while thieves gained nothing during a break in at Viking mall.

Robert Schacher of Tofield reported a break in at the Tofield Co-op Service Station during which a number of tires were taken.

RCMP are asking that anyone with information on any of the above incidents contact the police by telephoning 662-3299 or 662-3031 or 662-2487.

They're not lost

Using a map and compass, Colleen, Joanne and Carmine were able to find their way around an acreage near Lindbrook on their class grade four in Ryley School went out on a field trip recently. They did a good job with the compass as not one student got lost.

Players hire out

Tofield's Community Football Team has just finished its most successful season in its two-year history and is now looking at money raising projects to clear off its debts from the past season.

During the past season, the club packed up its first win and with a bit of luck, might have recorded three other victories, a feat that might have put them into a play-off berth.

At the end of the schedule, the club had $700 in outstanding debts. This was reduced to some extent by a donation from MacLeods Family Shopping Center.

In an effort to raise funds to pay off the debt all twenty two players on the team have decided to hire out for up to eight hours of work at a reasonable wage.

Anyone wishing to hire any of the players may do so by telephoning 662-3299, 662-3031 or 662-2487.

Vengeance, justice, or fickle?

Both Stan Schumacher and Gordon Taylor are reasonably well known in this area, so there was naturally keen interest in the nomination contest last Sunday, which saw the insurgent Gordon Taylor take over the party's nomination quite handily against Mr. Schumacher, who has held the seat for a number of years.

Several reasons are being advanced for Mr. Taylor's win, among them being retribution for the younger man's vigorous dispute with party leader Joe Clark over contesting the same riding, with numerous other outbursts along the line, not merely behind closed doors, but more often in the press. Mr. Schumacher, who once practised law in Camrose, feels he was simply standing on his own two feet, rather than blindly following the party line, but the inference is that a number of party faithfuls feel the place to stand on your own two feet is within the party caucus . . . when you're facing the outside world, it's incumbent on the members to stand as a party

It's a message that seems hard to get across to Conservatives. While Liberal members have nearly always appeared on the outside as a cohesive, integrated and smoothly working team, the Tories seem almost to delight in showing how individualistic they can be, how much they feel the urge to stand on their own two feet.

Part of Mr. Taylor's campaign was based on this very fact, and it will be interesting in the next House to see what effect he may have on his associates. Certainly he was known to be a doughty fighter in Alberta's Social Credit caucus over twenty-five years, and he continues to be a good campaigner, alsohitely astonishing Schumacher with the strength of his delegates, drawn from all over the constituency.

For Mr Schumacher, it must have come as a rough come-uppance, indeed. After all, in the last election, he scored the highest majority to be recorded outside the province of Canada, running some 25,000 votes ahead of his competitor. He must have felt the support was all for him, rather than for the party or the leader, and that he still commanded it.

He's reported to be wondering about another constituency, having utterly ruled out the idea of switching to the Liberals. But after the fight he put up against Joe Clark that this was the only constituency he would consider under any circumstances, he's pretty well closed that door on himself.

Give him time. He's young, at 44, and maybe he's learned a valuable lesson. He has many years to come back, and we'll be surprised if he isn't in the ring again a few years down the road

Need snow tires in national parks

Parks Canada is advising motorists now that snow tires or properly fitting chains will be required for motor vehicles using most snow or ice covered routes in the mountain national parks of Alberta and British Columbia.

The snow tires or chains regulation applies to all roads in Glacier, Mount Revelstoke and Yoho national parks, the Icefields Parkway between Jasper and Lake Louise the Banff Windermere Parkway between Kootenay Junction and all ski access roads in Banff and Jasper national parks.

The parks goal is to keep summer traffic flowing smoothly and safely in winter conditions, not to close through the national parks may call the Alberta Motor Association's road report line number for information on road conditions.

Parks Canada has not yet decided whether snow tires or chains will be required on the Trans-Canada Highway through the mountain parks.

Report from your M.L.A.

by John S Batiuk

As the House goes into the second week of the fall session some important legislation and information was brought to the Members of the Assembly.

The Minister of Labour introduced the members of the steps taken by the government regarding the recent dispute between the Alberta Hospital Association and the Association of Registered Nurses Section 143 of the Alberta Labour Act was exercised to end a strike by the nurses in several hospitals. This is the third time that such an exercise has been practised Mr. Justice Bowen was appointed as an arbitrator in the dispute to resolve the problems, and it was a difficult task particularly with the existence of the Anti-Inflation Board Despite the fact that the award exceeds the anti inflation guidelines, Judge Bowen stated that the adherence to the guidelines would be an injustice upon the parties

When Bill 41, The Public Employee Relations Act was introduced last spring, I had numerous communications with civil servants expressing concern with the Bill which would forbid them to strike. I hope that the action of the government with the nurses' strike would be a good example of what would happen with Public employees involved in a dispute, and would be well accepted by them

Earlier this year, the federal government announced a program to subsidize Canadians who insulate their homes in order to help conserve energy With this program a province was set in order to qualify, the provinces would have to agree to several areas, one being the reduction of speed on the highways The highway speed limits have always been under the jurisdiction of the provinces and this would be an intrusion by the federal government and our government would not accept this

Early in September all the energy ministers from the provinces met in Toronto At that meeting, the energy ministers were unanimous in requesting the federal government to meet with the provinces to develop a revised approach for a home insulation program that would be favorable to all provinces To date there have been no provinces to have received federal monies namely Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island

Concern has been expressed about the increasing amount of crime throughout the country and that Statistics Canada showed Alberta having the largest number of arrests One report concluded that an increase in prosecutions, sentences and penalties would be the deterrent to crime. However, there have been many active White Collar crimes committed by people with Ministry and Association of Alberta Corporations, and I am sure that the vast majority of people in prosecutions, sentences and penalties would be the deterrent to crime.

Parks Canada has not yet decided whether snow tires or chains will be required on the Trans-Canada Highway through the mountain parks.

The Water Distribution Act was given second reading and was debated I was pleased to see the government announce the Alberta Water Resources Commission would be responsible for the distribution of water in the province

The Minister of Agriculture advised the Assembly that he expects the Hog Marketing Report by Hu Harries and Associates within a week, and it is his intention to make the report public

A lively debate took place on a motion by the Premier that the Assembly approve in general the operations of the government since its adjournment of the spring sittings

The Premier gave a very thorough address of his and the government's involvement during the summer Of great significance was his trip to the Soviet Union and the Middle East

Another very important involvement was a Cabinet tour of southern Alberta Since our government has taken office our Cabinet makes two or three cabinet tours to various areas of the province Throughout each legislature there is a complete tour of the entire province

This has proved very acceptable to the public and at the same time gives the Cabinet time to see and hear concerns from Albertans in every area of the province

A motion was moved that the Assembly urge the provincial government to request the Governor General to fix by proclamation the same age for boys and girls in Alberta defining "child" under the Juvenile Delinquent Act. The motion was passed unanimously

How secret are those tax files?

Not given wide prominence in the furor over recent revelations about illegal break-ins, cover-ups and wiretapping of politicians by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is this shocker New evidence that the Mounties have been getting confidential tax files from Revenue Canada and using them for their own investigations Testimony to this effect in a recent Alberta hearing should provide fresh ammunition for the Conservatives and New Democrats, who are claiming the government has lost control of the RCMP and are demanding the resignation of Solicitor General Francis Fox, writes Philip Teasdale The question this incident raises is that once the tip of the iceberg? The Income Tax Act guarantees confidentiality of tax information and sets strict limits on who should have access to such information The purpose is to prevent a taxpayer's files from being used for any purpose other than the collection of taxes During the hearings of an Alberta inquiry looking into the activities of Royal American Shows a Florida based carnival company, a federal tax investigator, Edmund Swartzack said he seized documents relating to Royal American Shows from the Edmonton police on July 1975, to keep details of a secret agreement between Revenue and the RCMP from becoming public knowledge The investigator said the agreement, signed in April 1972, allowed Revenue to give the RCMP confidential tax information if the federal force was investigating an offense under the Income Tax Act by members of organized crime "If the accounts of the Royal American Shows hearing are to be believed, the RCMP has been abusing the agreement" said Liberal Member of Parliament Herb Gray, who was Revenue minister at the time

Harvesting should be done this week

Harvesting operations should be completed in most areas by the end of this week, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool

Ideal weather conditions in recent weeks has meant long hours in the fields for most farmers after a late summer and autumn fall set spell that kept harvesting operations to a minimum at times bringing combining to a complete standstill

Because of the long wet spell, crop conditions deteriorated, with the result that grades entered as high as optimal, except for rapeseed, most of which was listed as tough in number one shape

Seventy percent of oats harvested and rapeseed had been harvested in the Camrose region by the end of last week, while sixty percent of the wheat and flax had been finished

Wheat was described as only 40 percent dry, and 50 per cent tough while 70 percent of the barley was dry and ninety percent of the rapeseed crop was finished

Farmers in the Tofield area were definitely expecting to be done this week as almost all of the rapeseed crop has been harvested

Ninety-three percent of the oats has been harvested while eighty-nine percent of the wheat crop has been harvested and eighty-six percent of the barley has been taken off the fields

A report on the condition of crops indicated that one half of the wheat was dry while barley was 65 percent dry and rapeseed was close to being ninety percent dry

Holden farmers report that all of the Ryley crop has been harvested with rapeseed, wheat, oats and barley ranging from 95 to 98 percent completed

Rapeseed in all dry while wheat and barley were 80 per cent dry Most of the rape crop is number one while barley is all classified as feed and most of the wheat was rated as number three

Ninety one percent of the rape crop around Ryley has been threshed Wheat is 80 percent done while barley is 40 percent harvested and oats is 70 percent threshed

Ninety percent of the rapeseed has been processed as being dry while wheat is 70 percent dry and barley is sixty percent dry.

FALL SITTING OF LEGISLATURE

My colleagues and I in the official opposition have entered this fall's sitting of the Legislature with three principle areas of concern. They include the Public Right to Know, Public Participation in Government Decision-Making and Centralization of Power within the cabinet.

THE PUBLIC RIGHT TO KNOW

This is an important issue now because of the secrecy displayed in the decision-making processes used by this government. You can be sure that my Bill on the Public right to information will not be passed.

PUBLIC PARTICIPATION

The government's systematic destruction of the Environment Conservation Authority is a classic example of lack of public participation. So is are all relevant comments to construct a dam on the Red Deer River at Site 6 despite public opposition and the recommendations of the ECA.

CENTRALIZATION OF POWER WITHIN THE CABINET

Bill 15, The Planning Act, is a clear demonstration of power grabbing by the provincial Cabinet.

Bill 68, which will abolish the Alberta Hospital Services Commission and give more power to the Minister of Hospitals and Medical Care is another example of centralization of power.

SOCIAL CREDIT ANNUAL CONVENTION

The 33rd Annual Convention of the Alberta Social Credit Party will be held at the Red Deer Lodge on November 4th and 5th.

I extend a personal invitation to anyone who is interested in the political well-being of our province to attend. You can get more information by contacting my offices in Fort Saskatchewan by phoning 998-3376 or my Legislative office at 427-2251.

Take A Closer Look At Agriculture

In this time of concern about the productivity of the Canadian worker the Alberta farmer stands far above the crowd. Our farmers have increased their productivity nearly 2.5 times as much as other industries.

For the last year we've seen costs to the farmer go up by about 11 per cent, but his cash receipts for the products he produced went down 1 per cent. The price to the consumer went up 8 per cent.

If the farmer can't make a go of it who will produce the food you eat? And what will they charge for it?

It's important to every Albertan that farmers are paid enough to keep them in business.

Ryley senior citizens see centre completion

The Ryley Senior Citizen Centre is nearing completion and is a tribute to the industry and far sightedness of the senior citizens of Ryley and District

As a service to the community they have sponsored the Ryley Public Library now located in the rear of the Centre at the corner of 52nd Avenue and 50th Street

The renovation of the Centre was accomplished by the voluntary labor of the seniors A New Horizons Grant by the Federal Government which was to be used for furniture and equipment, utility and insurance payments, interior renovation and electrical fixtures and wiring made possible the renovation of the building which the seniors had purchased

Plumbing, heating, insulation and stucco were not included in the New Horizons Grant and since a provincial grant has not been forthcoming, the seniors are now endeavoring to make up this debt

Every Wednesday afternoon there is a general get-together and each Thursday afternoon the ladies can be found busily working at ceramics Leather craft, macrame, quilting, etc are being planned for the future The men are happy playing pool and shuffleboard and all take part in cards, scrabble, checkers, etc Some will be assisting in the Public Library which operates Tuesday from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m., Thursday evening from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. and Saturday morning from 9:30 to 11:30 beginning November 1st.

These twelve young people are the 1977 winners of the Alberta Junior Citizens of the Year Awards. They have been honored for various reasons; for acts of bravery, initiative, selflessness, or for displaying outstanding social responsibility. But above all, they have been chosen for the contributions they have made to their community and to our province. We are pleased to welcome these young people to the Honor Roll. They are fine examples of the valuable role that youth plays in the growth and development of our Alberta.

In these uncertain times, it is important that we pause to honor the small but nonetheless remarkable gestures of social commitment undertaken by our young people

The Skuleseness Thanksgiving program and Harvest Festival was well attended on Sunday night inspite of the fact that locally many were combining due to the unsettled weather before that and the forecast for more rain. The past week of fine weather has seen some farmers all finished, yields were good. The vegetables at the front of the church were large and colorful, some potatoes weighed about 4 pounds, cabbages red and green, tomatoes red and green one large mother hubbard squash was a thirty pounder, large carrots and home grown celery plus two lovely flowering cabbages, one white and one mauve. During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was editor of a small Missouri paper. One day he received a letter from a subscriber, stating that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

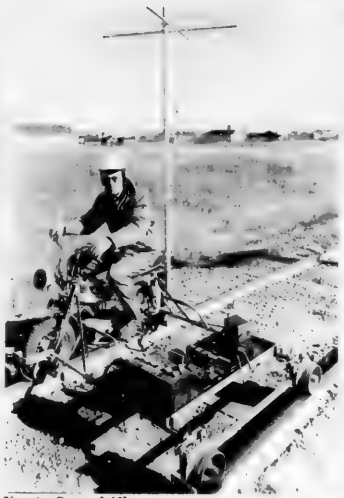
Curling league delayed

The formation of a Super Curling League has been postponed.

Many of the participants in such a league are members of the farming community and, with the good weather that has prevailed over the past few weeks, could not take the time to attend an organizational meeting.

As a result, the meeting which has scheduled for Camrose recently, had to be postponed until after harvesting operations have been completed.

It is expected that, if such a league is organized, it will be composed of about six teams from Camrose, and at least one team from each of the other centers in the Zone.



New in Central Alberta

Senior Radio Technician Ron Homan, of Calgary, demonstrates this method of measuring telecommunications signals now used by the telecommunications branch of Canadian Pacific Rail. Consisting of a 40cc motor bike, antenna mast and two-way radio, the machine was originally designed for installation of telecommunications cable in the five mile Connaught railway tunnel near Sicamous, B.C., and was used for the first time in Central Alberta last Thursday between Camrose and Ohaton.

Ryley Pool News

November 30th is the big Swim-a-Thon at the Ryley Pool.

On this day, participants swim to earn money to keep the pool operating.

We hope everyone will support those who are swimming by their donations and by coming out to watch all the action. Anyone can participate and entry forms and more information can be had by dropping in or phoning us at the pool.

We would like to thank all the ladies who supplied the cakes for our birthday party and a special thanks to Mr. Fairweather for the pictures he took and gave to us. We have them up on the wall so everyone can enjoy them.

A few weeks ago, someone broke the light outside the pool and left a note and some money to replace the light. We'd just like this person to know we received the note and money and to "thank you" for it.

With everyone so busy, with harvesting, things are a bit slack at the pool. This is a good time for those who like to practice their lessons to come out.

Happy Swimming

Report from your M.L.A.

by John B. Batiuk

The fall sitting of the Legislature commenced on Wednesday, October 12th. As I commented myself last spring to continue to inform my constituents of issues of importance, I will again provide a weekly column in the local papers which serve the Vegreville Constituency.

Since the adjournment of the spring sitting, another fine weekly, The Elk Island Triangle, has been added to the several weekly papers which serve the constituency.

This spring and summer have been as especially busy one. Many activities have taken place which I had the pleasure of attending such as annual exhibitions, fairs, the Ukrainian Cultural Festival, redcoat, the 50th anniversary celebration of the Incorporation of the Town of Two Hills, many 50th and 25th wedding anniversaries, weddings and many other social events.

Along with those I have served on several legislative and committee meetings such as The Select Legislative Committee to appoint a Chief Electoral Officer which took twelve days of meetings. Serving on the caucus Education Committee, Irrigation Committee and Utilities Committee took a certain amount of time.

Being the only M.L.A. and Vice-Chairman of the Alberta Grain Commission took a considerable amount of my summer. This Commission was originated for the purpose of recommending to the Minister of Agriculture ways and means of improving the income of the farmer.

It may be of considerable interest to my constituents, despite that the opposition as well as certain groups and individuals were critical of the Premier's trip to the Soviet Union and the Middle East (to encourage markets from Alberta and Canada) I do agree that the onus is on the federal government but when a province such as Alberta, which produces 40 percent of the agricultural products in Canada, I feel that the Premier must be concerned about such markets. Since the Premier's trip, Iran has already requested samples of the different varieties of wheat from the Canadian Wheat Board. The Wheat Board has consented to provide such samples with a proviso that the Alberta government pay the shipping charges. At a meeting of the Alberta Grain Commission last week, a resolution was unanimously passed that the Alberta Grain Commission direct the Minister of Agriculture to provide this transportation. Iran, with a population of 37 million could very well absorb Canada's surplus of wheat and should any future agreement be negotiated, then I feel that the trip was fruitful and maybe get the Canadian Wheat Board on their toes.

The Premier reported on the state of the province and the operations since adjournment of the spring sittings. He reported about the Cabinet Tour of southern Alberta. One real concern expressed in that part of the province was water management. Irrigation is a going concern and one must see the benefits of irrigation to be able to appreciate it. The Premier spoke on the importance of retaining the present conditional grants for municipalities. He also informed the Assembly of the concern the government has with the very rapidly increasing hospital costs. Since our government took office, hospital costs from 1971 to 1976 have jumped from $125 million to $565 million. It appears there is no incentive to keep costs down and it may be necessary, once again, to have the local authorities responsible for some costs which would be excessive.

Bill 15 - The Planning Act, 1977 - may be controversial to some extent. It was introduced in the spring and left for the summer to give the public a chance to review the Bill and express any concerns they may have. I do express my sincere appreciation to the number of constituents who have requested copies of the Bill and expressed their views on it. It is in such a manner that an M.L.A. can express the views of his constituents in the Legislature and in Caucus.

Over the past few years I have enjoyed the co-operation of the local governments within the constituency. Mayors, town and village councils, rueves and county councils, Boards of Education, Hospital Board and various other Boards of Directors are very important groups in the local areas. Because of the fine co-operation experienced with all these people, it has helped all communities to progress very favorably.

With the local government election being over, may I congratulate all those who have been re-elected and elected, and wish you success in your endeavors.

I look forward to continued co-operation in the future.

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — Tory Leader Joe Clark collected a talented new chief pollsy advisor earlier this month when 41-year-old J Dumcan Edmonds joined the Clark staff as number two man in the office. With the chance, Clark also raised some grumbles from the more right wing elements of his caucus, and created some anger in the grass roots too.

The Edmonds appointment is a sign of the times. His politics are known to be left of centre, and that's the way Joe Clark feels on most issues too. But not only is Edmonds to the left of many Tory party members, he's also a former Liberal backroom boy, alienated from the grits and now mad enough to fight his former allies.

Edmonds was in Lester B Pearson's office during the early 60s, when the Liberals had the brief and unaccustomed stint in opposition. When the Liberals went back into office, Edmonds became executive assistant to External Affairs Minister Paul Martin. He took part in the 1968 Liberal leadership contest, and when Pierre Trudeau won, Edmonds went into the Winnipeg business field.

His friends claim that at that stage he also became apolitical.

Edmonds has been a member of the faculty at University of Winnipeg, and Carleton University in Ottawa, teaching political science, international relations, and public administration. He's also done consulting work for the United Nations in many third world countries, and his specialty is foreign aid.

Clark's office is anticipating valuable Edmonds influence on both the academic and business world, and there may well be enough of that influence to offset any party hostility from the right wing. Edmonds joining Clark creates an interesting situation, in that it means both the number one and the number two man in the office of the Conservative leader are former Toronto Liberal Book room boys.

Clark's chief of staff Bill Neville is a one-time United Press International reporter, who was executive assistant for Judy Lamarsh in the Pearson cabinet. Neville worked for Paul Hellyer in the Liberal leadership race, too, but openly expressed his distaste for the Trudeau government in 1974 when he quit a lucrative consulting business to run for the Tories against Trudeau Treasurer in Ottawa.

Two former Liberal bright young men, now doing their best to throw the rascals out. I wonder if it's the beliefs of Neville and Edmonds which have changed, or the policies of the Liberal Party?

MacGregor - Carey vows exchanged in Edmonton

Strathcona Baptist Church in Edmonton was the scene for the July 23 wedding of Colleen Rachael Carey and Charles Neil MacGregor.

Two candleabra decorated with white bows, and bouquets of gladiolas and daisies decorated the church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev Wayne Stretch. During the service Miss Joanne Hrynyk sang "Time in a Bottle" and "Follow Me". She was accompanied by organist, Bruce [illegible].

Stephen Schmidt, nephew of the bride presented the bride and groom with one red rose at the close of the ceremony.

Colleen is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs Thomas Carey of Edmonton, and Neil is the son of Mr and Mrs C.A. Young of Edmonton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her gown of white polyester satin with lace applique on sheer overlay and a full train with a matching lace juliet headpeice and layered veil. The bride's gown was designed and sewn by her sister, Nancy. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Attending the bride were maid of honor, Mrs Nancy Sichkaryk, sister of the bride, Mrs Donna Miles, Mrs. Debbie Nichols and Miss Susan MacLean. They were identical gowns of dusty rose polyester satin and matching sheer sleeves. Sprays of dusty rose baby's breath decorated their hair. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of yellow carnations, orange and white daisies, and white baby's breath.

The groom and groomsmen were dressed in brown tuxedos. The groom's attendants were Brian Nichols, Wayne Wiedersuel, Richard Lawrence and Stuart Young, brother of the groom. Ushering the guests were David Carey, brother of the bride, Werner Schmidt and Lloyd Sichkaryk, brothers-in-law of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother wore a pale blue gown of polyester crepe with a dusty rose and blue floral jacket, complimented with a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. The groom's mother chose a sand gown and jacket of polyester crepe with silver trim and wore a corsage of hot pink roses.

Following the wedding, a reception and dance for 150 guests was held at Hazeldean Community Hall. John MacGregor, brother of the groom acted as master of ceremonies. Grace was offered by Dr. J. Frank Paich, Sherwood Park. Thomas Jacobs, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride. Mrs Ruth Schmidt, sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Greetings were received from France, New Brunswick, Vancouver, and Creston, B.C.

Invited guests from Tofield were Mrs. Esther Anderson, aunt of the bride, Thomas Jacobs, uncle of the bride, Mrs Margaret Dickson, and Mr and Mrs Reid Burchard.

After the honeymoon trip to Hawaii, the bride and groom are residing in Edmonton.

Confronting Your Faith

This week's article for the regular column sponsored by the Tofield and District Ministerial Association is written by Henry Unrau, minister of the Tofield Mennonite Church.

"Our children were playing a game of parchesi when the youngest was overheard saying in carefully measured words. "That's not right!" The game continued but soon the youngest, realizing he opposed wasn't playing fairly, called out, "Mommy, would you come here and just watch me!" It was obvious that he felt that Mommy's presence would be a deterrent to any cheating planned by his opponent.

We all have a sense of right and wrong built into us. Unfortunately, wrong for many people today consists only of being caught. Many people's concept of defensive driving is keeping their eyes on the rear-view mirror for any signs of "enforcement" appearing over the horizon with red lights flashing. At the same time, these "defensive drivers" are burning the carbon out of their motors.

The concept of being wrong only when caught is disturbing and it is still more so to see how unrepentant those law breakers are even when the evidence of their violations of the law is abundantly clear. This attitude has placed our judicial system in a position where the observer is sometimes in a quandry as to whether the police or the accused are on trial.

Such situations make evident the fact that we are born with a sinful nature, as the Apostle Paul points out when writing to the Romans about the conflict in man, saying, "I do not understand what I do, for I do not do what I would like to; but instead, I do what I do not want to do." This statement emphasizes the fact that, as it says in Romans 3 :10, "There is no one who is righteous All have turned away from God; they have all gone wrong, no one does what is right, not even one." We realize the dilemma but we also know that there is a solution through faith in Jesus Christ "And we know that our old being has been put to death with Christ on His cross in order that the power of the sinful self might be destroyed " (Romans 6 :6)

Having placed our faith in Jesus Christ not only makes us sensitive to what is right and wrong, but it also enables the indwelling Holy Spirit to give us the strength to do what is right, not because of the fear of consequences, but rather because of our love for God and our fellow man

Right or wrong — it's your move!

—Henry Unrau.

Progressive Farming

Are you wondering whether you need to give your agricultural trees and shrubs a good soaking this year before freeze-up? The answer is yes

Herman Oosterhuis, in charge of Alberta Agriculture's tree planting programs, says that soil moisture reserves are still depleted in northern and central parts of the province (particularly western areas) despite the above normal precipitation that has fallen since May. The reason for the low soil moisture level in these areas is the small amount of snow that has fallen during the last three years. The melting snow in the spring is one of the main sources of subsoil moisture in Alberta

Watering ornamental trees and shrubs before freeze-up is even more important in the south-eastern part of the province where the normally low subsoil problem has been compounded by the very low rate of precipitation received last summer." Mr Oosterhuis says

He explains that a plentiful supply of water in the fall is needed to enable trees and shrubs in this province to withstand the drying winds and variations in temperature that occur during the winter months Since trees and shrubs have only limited ability to take up and transport moisture when the ground is frozen and they are relatively dormant, they must have an abundant supply of moisture to prevent desiccation Evergreens like pines, spruce and junipers are trees most vulnerable to winter desiccation than trees which lose their leaves in the fall because evergreens lose moisture through their needles

Birch trees are another species that should be well watered just before freeze-up Mr Oosterhuis also points out that regardless of the rain that falls during the summer, the soil near the south and east sides of a house or Alberta is always very dry because it is in the rain shadow Also, the [illegible] give up its moisture rapidly because of the heat of the sun This means that all plants, including climbing vines like clematis, should be thoroughly watered, no matter how much rain has fallen, before they go into the winter

A GREAT CHOICE

This year, Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice. There's the Regular Interest Bond that pays interest each year. And a new Compound Interest Bond that re-invests your interest automatically, earning interest on your interest.

SAFETY, INSTANT CASH AND A GOOD RETURN

Both new bonds loan the security features that have helped make Canada Savings Bonds the investment you understand. And they're all redeemable for cash at any time.

New Canada Savings Bonds are dated November 1, 1977 and mature on November 1, 1987. Regular Interest Bonds are issued in denominations of $300, $500, $1,000 and $5,000.

REGULAR INTEREST BOND

If you want regular income, the Regular Interest Bond is the investment for you. It's a new Regular Interest Bond with a new rate of interest. Your earnings are paid to you by cheque each November 1st. You can cash your bonds at any time without penalty. Or you can keep them until they mature in 1987. Interest on Regular Interest Bonds will be paid annually at the rate of 8.06% per year.

You can buy the Regular Interest Bonds for cash wherever you bank or invest in denominations of $300, $500, $1,000 and $5,000.

COMPOUND INTEREST BOND

If you seek savings growth, or an investment for the future, or a retirement fund, you'll like the Compound Interest Bond. After the first year you will earn interest on your interest at the annual rate of 8.06%. Interest on this bond is left to accumulate and is payable only upon redemption or maturity.

Here's how the value of a $100 bond grows:

1978	$108.50	1983	$159.28
1979	$117.81	1984	$172.97
1980	$127.88	1985	$187.81
1981	$138.83	1986	$203.97
1982	$150.71

The Compound Interest Bond may be purchased over the counter at your nearest bank, trust company or investment dealer. Monthly Savings Plan deductions are also available.

You can buy Canada Savings Bonds at your bank or investment dealer. Or you can use the Regular Interest Bond and the Compound Interest Bond. Both new bonds are on sale now up to a combined limit of $15,000. They have been specifically designed to meet your savings goals. Choose the one that's right for you.

Tofield council gets organized

Council of the Town of Tofield held its organizational meeting on October 26th with Mayor Dr W H Freebury in the Chair.

Oaths of office for the mayor and all councils were administered by Town Manager, J N Brodie.

Various committees and appointments were made to oversee the town's various business activities.

Making up the finance committee will be Weatherill and Regehr while Worton and Watson were named to by-laws, health, welfare and police committee, with Lampitt and Pitlet selected for fire, light and utilities committee.

The town property, development and zoning committee will consist of Pitlet and Weatherill, while public works committee is made up of Worton and Lampitt, and the recreation, parks and community hall committee will have Regehr and Worton.

In all instances, the first councillor named is the chairman.

Councillor Lampitt was named deputy-mayor for the months of November and December with other councillors assuming the post for two month periods in the following order: Pitlet Watson, Regehr, Weatherill, and Brodie.

Councillor Pitlet was named to the Tofield Library Board while Councillor Worton was selected for the Beaverhill Foundation, and Councillor Lampitt was named as the director of Disaster Services.

Councillor Weatherill was chosen as representative to Rural Development Project No 4 with J N Brodie as an alternate while Mr Brodie was picked as the town's welfare officer. Mrs Gladys Whyte was appointed to serve on the Tofield Municipal Hospital Board.

It was agreed that all regular meetings of council would be held on the 2nd and 4th Mondays of each month, beginning at seven o'clock.

Authorization for the signing of agreements or documents, on behalf of the town, was given to the mayor or deputy-mayor, and the administrator or assistant administrator.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of the meeting held on October 24th.

Ryley "blacked out" by Hallowe'en prank

The Village of Ryley was without power for a period of time as a result of a Hallowe en prank.

The entire village was "blacked out" for a short period of time on Monday, when pranksters caused a short when they tossed a length of chain over the two main power lines leading into the village.

RCMP report there were quite a few other stunts including acts of vandalism committed on Hallowe'en, although police report that vandalism damage was down over last year.

Indications are that the number of charges laid following last year's Hallowe'en pranks might have had a lot to do with the restraint this year. All of the acts of vandalism occurring this year are under investigation, and charges are expected in most cases.

A storage shed in Holden, owned by the County of Beaver, was defaced with orange paint, while Evelyn Baker of Ryley reported that the rear windows were smashed on her car, and Myrna Baergen of Tofield reported paint being thrown over her car while it was parked at Tofield School.

Damage costing $80 was reported to the steel gate in the fence at Ryley School while Calgary Power reported extensive damage to a gate on their property in Tofield and Watson Construction in Tofield reported on the lock on their compound had been smashed.

A paint bomb was thrown against Tofield School and a quantity of tar paper was [illegible] sometime last summer.

Twelve bales of straw were found in front of Swift Garage in Tofield on the street, while Ray McGuinte of rural Tofield reported the theft of [illegible].

R W Rudnicki of Tofield RR4 reported that someone let his stall, corn into his grain and culprits damaged his combine by stripping parts from it.

There were three complaints of mischief in Ryley as a result of egg-throwing incidents and barricades being put up against doors.

Several charges of stunting and careless driving were laid with court appearances to follow.

Walter Ostlund a County of Beaver employee, suffered a broken collarbone on Friday when a rubber tire packer overturned on SR 856, about one mile south of Holden. While being injured, Mr Ostlund considered himself lucky in that he was able to jump free and thus escape more serious injuries.

RCMP are investigating a report that Frank LaRusta of Tofield was assaulted by hunters who were on his land without permission.

There was a break and enter at the Ryley School on Thursday. Entrance was gained through the back door to the gym. Nothing was missing.

Mrs Borgheld Sundile of Ryley reported, last Wednesday, that her front door had been damaged by vandals.

Charges have been laid against the owners of stray dogs who killed five pet rabbits owned by Charlotte [illegible] of Tofield.

Several charges were laid against motorists for passing [illegible].

Horse club gets officers

by Michael Lutz

The Ryley-Holden 4-H Light Horse Club had its reorganizational meeting on October 24 at the Holden School.

The new executive has as president, Lorna Grinde, vice-president, Kathy Hisey, secretary, Linda Mackay; treasurer, Kendall Johnson, and club reporter, Michael Lutz. The new club leader is [illegible].

The next meeting will be held on Sunday at the Ben Lutz farm. Dale Taylor will be coming out from Edmonton to set this year's goals.

Any new members are welcome, bring your horses.

Albrecht chosen mayor of Ryley

Edward Albrecht was elected as mayor of the Village of Ryley when village council recently held its organizational meeting.

Named to serve as the village's deputy-Mayor was Ernest Brown, for a one-year [illegible].

Named to serve on the finance and by-law committee were Albrecht, Brown and Kerles with Brown and Albrecht also named to sit on the fire, light and police committee.

The utilities and public works committee will consist of Andrukow and Kepe, while the legal and development committee will consist of Kerles and Brown, and the community services and recreation committee will be made up of Kepe and Andrukow.

In all five instances, the first named member will be the [illegible].

Kepe was named to sit on the Ryley Recreation Board, while Brown will sit on the Ryley Library Board, and Albrecht will serve on the Tofield Municipal Hospital Board and the Beaver Foundation.

Named to sit on the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board was Kepe, with Andrukow as alternate, while

Shykora is named as Holden mayor

Oleh Shykora was elected as mayor of the Village of Holden at that village's organizational meeting of council.

Elected to serve as deputy-mayor for the vunge was Christine Mackay.

Mayor Shykora was named to serve on the finance and garage committee while Lemko was selected for the public works, sanitation and weeds committee, and Daniuk was named to the water, sewer and health committee. Chosen to act on the community hall and recreation committee was Mackay while Gebelhaus was selected for the police, ambulance and fire department committee.

Mackay was named to sit on local and regional recreation boards while Gebelhaus was chosen to sit on Rural Development Council No 4.

Named as director of emergency operations was Daniuk while Lemko was chosen for the seat on the Beaver Foundation Board, and E M Hardy was named to be the village's representative on Viuka Lodge Management Board.

It was agreed, by council, that regular monthly accounts such as utilities, salaries and debenture payments be authorized for payment by the mayor and secretary-[illegible].

Council agreed to continue using the services of the Royal Bank of Canada.

It was decided that the regular meeting of council would be held on the second Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of the meeting held on October 27th.

Lions canvass

Members of the Ryley Lions Club will be out canvassing on Monday night.

Money raised by Monday's canvass will be going to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Receipts will be issued for income tax purposes.

Correction

In previous news stories, it was noted that no former councillors were running in the Village of Ryley.

This was totally incorrect. Ed Albrecht, the village's newly elected mayor, is a former mayor of the village, and Councillor Brown is a former councillor.

The Mercury apologizes to the two members of Ryley Council for having made this [illegible].

"If God had wanted us to go metric, officer - he'd have given us 10 fingers."

Land of opportunity

We haven't seen recent financial reports of any of the chartered banks and indeed, it doesn't matter, for it would be only the portion referring to Alberta that we had in mind, but if their figures are anything like those of the Alberta Treasury Branches, and for that matter, of Credit Unions in Alberta, over the past year, they are indeed well nigh fantastic.

Growth over many years from their inception had been regular, and constant, if not particularly impressive, but about four years ago, the Treasury Branches simply took off. The figures in themselves are notable, but it is the graphs which so clearly indicate the real magnitude of growth soaring upward over the four year period at something approaching a seventy five degree climb for deposits and advances.

Of course these figures reflect a certain amount of inflation, but since the number of depositors and borrowers has not increased quite so dramatically. They're simply dealing in larger amounts, but even here the graph shows an increase in the range of forty five percent.

For the first time, the Treasury Branches passed the billion dollar mark in total accounts and it's interesting that their growth was paralleled by that of the Credit Unions, which also passed the billion dollar mark a few days ago.

We couldn't help but notice one feature in the Treasury Branch's report which struck us as intriguing, this being that the three top men have all served in the Camrose branch at one time or another. It's entirely possible, of course, that this is one of the main reasons for their signal success. Included are General Manager Fred Sparrow who was a junior at the local level about twenty-four years ago, Senior Assistant Superintendent T. P. Tom Robertson, whose service as manager here dates back more than thirty years, and Assistant Superintendent Head Office Hon. Holgate who was manager here slightly over a decade ago.

It's an interesting, encouraging story that bears repeating. For until oil[illegible]

Harvesting is done

Harvesting of the 1977 crop should be completed this week with good weeks expected although grades are not as high as desired.

According to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool harvesting operations are completed in the Tofield area with only small portions to be completed in other areas.

Farmers in the Tofield region realized fairly five bushels of oats and barley per acre while wheat produced 30 bushels and rapeseed had 20 bushels.

Wheat tested out as grade three while most of the barley was number one feed and ninety six percent of the rape crop was as number one.

Wheat and rapeseed crops in Round Hill are done with only about [illegible] percent of oats and barley remaining to be harvested.

Barley is producing 65 bushels to the acre while oats are yielding 62 bushels. Rapeseed is bringing 27 bushels while wheat yielded 26 bushels.

Seventy percent of the wheat is number three grade while 85 percent of the barley crop was graded as number one feed and 85 percent of the rapeseed crop was rated as number one.

As the [illegible] in the Holden area has been harvested with only odds and ends to do with other crops.

Oats brought in 56 bushels to the acre while barley and rye yielded 35 bushels. Wheat brought in 21 bushels and rapeseed yielded 20 bushels.

Eighty eight percent of the wheat was graded number three while one half of the barley was rated as number two feed and 38 percent of the rape crop was graded as number one.

Only one percent of the crops still had to be harvested by farmers in the Ryley area.

Oats is bringing in 73 bushels to the acre while barley is producing 60 bushels. Rapeseed is getting 30 bushels and wheat is yielding 25 bushels.

Sixty-five percent of the wheat is rated as number three while ninety percent of the rape crop was listed as number one.

All harvesting in the Daysland region is now complete.

Oats yielded seventy bushels per acre while barley came in at 56 bushels. Wheat produced 35 bushels, rapeseed yielded 30 bushels and [illegible]

STRAW IN FEEDLOT CATTLE DIETS

The inclusion of 20 p cent low quality roughage in a feedlot cattle diet appears to have little effect on feed in take daily gains or feed con version rates

Ron Wessenburger, Alberta Agriculture's regional livestock specialist, points out that when higher levels of low quality roughage are fed, the total daily feed intake tends to drop, digestibility of the feed decreases, daily gains decrease and the feed required per unit of gain in creases

Since cattle will eat more forage in the pelleted than in the long form, a trial was carried out at the University of Alberta to compare the results obtained from pelleted straw diets containing 40, 55 and 70 percent barley straw and similar amounts of crude protein Results showed that average daily gains tended to decrease as the level of straw increased, and that more feed, but less grain and protein sup plement, was required per unit of gain

Mr. Wessenburger reports that feed conversion rates varied from 18.3 pounds of feed per pound of gain for the group receiving the 40 percent straw group to 14 1 pounds for the group on the 70 percent straw diet Average daily gains ranged from a little less than 1 5 pounds per day for the 70 percent straw diet to over 1 75 pounds per day for the group on the 40 percent straw diet Carcass weights and fat cover on the carcasses decreased as the level of straw in the diet increased

Mr Wessenburger points out that processing costs involved in preparing a complete pelleted straw diet are high Also, when straw was fed at high levels it caused what were considered to be lower daily gains relative to those expected from conventional diets

The above data suggest that although reasonable daily gains can be achieved from pelleted straw diets, the cost of pelleting are too high in relation to the gains obtained. Hence, 20 percent low quality roughage in a finishing diet seems a practical limit, ac cording to Mr Wessenburger He says somewhat higher levels can be used in growing rations, but it is doubtful whether the level should ever exceed 50 percent.

Confronting Your Faith

The Reverend Len Nation, pastor of the Tofield Baptist Church, is this week's contributor to this column which is a weekly product of the Tofield and District Ministerial Association

"Confronting your faith means to come face to face with your faith, to see it and understand it as it is. This becomes a necessary task as it is impossible to please God without faith So, why not stop for a moment and confront your faith" Then, compare it to the faith that is essential in pleasing God"

In comparing your faith, read through Hebrews, chapter eleven, the "faith" chapter of the Bible where you will find that faith is mentioned twenty-three times in forty verses Besides the many things we can learn about faith from the personal example of the eighteen individuals mentioned in this chapter, we learn from verse one and six two key aspects regarding the faith necessary to please God Verse one contains the words substance and evidence, both very important in respect to faith. This verse simply means that God is pleased with faith which has substance and evidence This type of faith has a sure solid, unchanging foundation which is God Himself This chapter gives us proof that He is a sure foundation, that He is faithful and that He is worthy of our trust

The second aspect of a God-pleasing faith is recorded in verse six of chapter eleven which states, "Without faith, it is impossible to please God, for he that comes to God must believe that He is, and that He is the rewards of them that diligently seek Him " Here we see that the kind of faith that pleases God encompasses two things First, we must believe that God is God, that He is all that He claims to be - that He loves us, that He has the power to solve life's problems, and that He has planned the best for us Next, we must believe that He is the true rewarder of the trust we place in Him; in other words, that He'll come through and do as He promises on our behalf

Confront your faith! How does it measure up to the type of faith that pleases God? Is God the sure foundation of your faith? Do you believe that He is who He claims to be? Do you trust Him to keep His promise of rewarding your faith?

Confront your faith! Compare your faith! Then, if necessary, correct your faith!

Behind the Seams
BY PEGGY BENDEL

Many people pay specialty shops to make their needlepoint into a decorative pillow, when this is actually easy to do at home. Perhaps because the finished product is so elegant the whole project has an aura of mystery surrounding it. Once the needlepoint itself is completed, the challenging and intricate part is over. Making it into the pillow takes just a little straightforward sewing.

To make a pillow from completed needlepoint, begin by blocking the needlepoint to the desired size and shape. A cutting board used for sewing is ideal for this. It is already ruled into square inches and gives you exact right angles and straight lines for blocking square and rectangular shapes.

Next, cut a pillow back. For this, use a fabric that is substantial like velvet or wool. Drapery and upholstery type fabrics are suitable, too. What is needed is a fabric of medium to heavy weight and of a rather dense nature to correspond to the impressive front. Use the dimensions of the blocked needlepoint as a pattern for cutting the back, remembering that only the section of the canvas actually covered with stitches will be backed. No canvas should show when you're finished. Of course, as you cut the back, include a seam allowance along the edge.

Also needed is enough cording to insert in the seam which will join the pillow front and back. Cover this cording with a bias strip of the backing fabric, piecing the bias where necessary to create a long enough strip. This self-covered cording adds a finished detail, strengthens the seam, avoids wear of the needlepoint and helps to conceal the end of the needlepoint and the beginning of the canvas should your seam be slightly awry.

Baste the covered cording in place along the edges of the blocked needlepoint. As you baste round the corners slightly clipping the seam allowance of the cord covering so it sets flat. Baste the pillow back in place over the cording. Stitch the seam using a zipper foot so you can sew really close to the cording. And leave an opening to turn.

Insert a covered pillow form through the opening, and use small, inconspicuous hand stitches to close the opening.

Let us spray. When making your own needlepoint pillows or other items for the home that you'd rather not clean often, here's how to make what you sew spot resistant: use a can of spray-on fabric protector. For napped or coarsely woven fabrics such as canvas, several spraying operations may be needed. Test for good protection by sprinkling a drop of water on an inconspicuous corner. If the water beads and rolls off, you're protected. Other places to apply this method: neckties, placemats, wall hangings, and needlecraft kits (spray the canvas or fabric before you begin to stitch to avoid soil accumulation as you work).

Thank you

For your vote of confidence in the Election in Division 4 in the County of Beaver for Councillor.

What's this? Bankers favor SIN!

SIN pays. Or at least, it may be inconvenient if you don't have it.

In this case, SIN refers to a Social Insurance number. New regulations require that you have one to get the full amount due when you collect certain bond interest payments from banks and other financial institutions.

The Canadian Bankers' Association (CBA) says the regulations are an amendments to the federal Income Tax Act.

The CBA said customers who hold corporate, federal, provincial and municipal bonds, and who don't have a Social Insurance number, would be wise to apply for one to avoid future inconvenience. It normally takes at least two weeks to get a number.

The regulations specify that banks and other cashing agents must withhold one-quarter of the interest payment if the customer doesn't provide a Social Insurance number. This is remitted to the government and is credited to the taxpayer.

"We want to make it clear that in this matter the banks are acting to comply with the law," the CBA says. "We have no choice but to withhold the 25 per cent if a Social Insurance number is not provided."

The CBA said that anyone wanting detailed information on the new regulations should consult Revenue Canada.

Like a scene from out of the old days, this 35 year old Massey Harris combine crawls around a quarter section near Round Hill. Owner Louis Scabor reported the machine was the first to be operated in the area. The purchase price of $2,300 was, he said, one tenth the present day value if purchase of such a machine were possible. Parts must be hand made each year, since the model is no longer in production. Capacity was indicated to be about 45 to 50 bushels.

News from Ministik

Mrs Jim Roddick

The bingo held at the Crafts Centre on Friday evening proved to be a most successful and social affair. Twenty games were played, closed by a bonanza bingo which was won by Crystal Defender. A delicious lunch was served by convenor Barbara Gladue and her many helpers.

A short business session preceded the bingo where patrons and members alike viewed the new heavy duty sewing machine and the loom on which many can learn to weave rugs, etc.

A games afternoon will be held on Dec. 10th. The November meeting will be on the regular date Nov. 28th.

The November community league meeting will be on the 16th rather than the 9th, due to the Armistice supper being on Nov. 11th.

Mrs. Lloyd Logan of Nelson, B.C., was a guest of her daughter Rita Loch and family for two weeks. She planned to visit in Edmonton for a few days before her return to Nelson.

Clara George of Edmonton spent last weekend with Mrs. M. George, while Yvonne George stayed until Thursday.

Hostesses Kay Grummett, Dolores Holmes and Shirley merricks were overwhelmed at the response and cooperation shown at the children's Hallowe'en party at the community hall Saturday evening. Thirty two children participated.

Prizes were given for costumes and judge Lil Leech whose job wasn't easy, finally came up with the winners. First went to Brian Preusini, dressed as a cow girl, second, Paul Lafontaine as a clown, third, Jackie Paterson as a gypsy lady; fourth, Jimmie Holmes as a warrior hunter.

All were given treats, besides cookies and cup cakes brought by many of their parents, who also enjoyed cookies and coffee.

FRED

Fred Russell, Superintendent of Customer Service

FRED RUSSELL OF NORTHWESTERN UTILITIES HAS SOME USEFUL HINTS ON HOW YOU CAN SAVE MONEY AND INCREASE YOUR HOME HEATING EFFICIENCY

Forced-air heating system filters are designed to trap dust and lint from the air. When they become clogged, the flow of air is restricted, reducing heating efficiency, thus costing you money.

If your furnace filter is of the disposable glass fibre type, it should be cleaned monthly and replaced at least twice a year. Permanent type filters should be cleaned and the proper commercial spray should be applied. If in doubt, check with your furnace contractor, particularly before the onslaught of winter.

Besides checking your filter, be sure your furnace motor and fan bearings are lubricated according to manufacturer's instructions. Registers should be cleaned of dust and other objects. Furniture and rugs should not obstruct hot and cold air registers.

For more information pick up the free pamphlet, "Waste Watcher's Guide to Energy" at your nearby gas company office. When it comes to the wise use of energy, if you have the will, we have the ways.

TWO NEW CANADA SAVINGS BONDS

A GREAT CHOICE

This year, Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice. There's a new Regular Interest Bond that pays interest each year. And a new Compound Interest Bond that re-invests your interest automatically, earning interest on your interest.

SAFETY, INSTANT CASH AND A GOOD RETURN

Both new bonds retain the great features that have helped to make Canada Savings Bonds the favourite investment for millions of Canadians over the past 31 years. They're a safe, secure investment. They're instant cash anytime. And they earn good interest — year after year.

New Canada Savings Bonds are dated November 1, 1977, and yield an average annual interest of 8.06% when held to maturity in 1986. Each new bond begins with 7% interest the first year and earns 8.25% interest for each of the remaining 8 years.

REGULAR INTEREST BOND

If you want a regular annual income from your investment, you'll like the new Regular Interest Bond which pays interest automatically each Nov. 1st. You have the choice of receiving your interest either by cheque or by direct deposit into your chequing or savings account. This new direct deposit feature is an added convenience for you.

You can buy the Regular Interest Bond for cash wherever you bank or invest in denominations of $300, $500, $1,000 and $5,000.

COMPOUND INTEREST BOND

If you seek savings growth, or an investment for the future, or a retirement fund, you'll choose the new Compound Interest Bond. After the first year you will earn interest on your interest at the annual rate of 8.06%. Interest on this bond is left to accumulate and is payable only upon redemption or at maturity.

Here's how the value of a $100 bond grows:

Nov. 1	Value	Nov. 1	Value
1978	$107.00	1983	$156.78
1979	$115.41	1984	$171.77
1980	$124.34	1985	$185.81
1981	$133.63	1986	$200.97
1982	$146.76

The Compound Interest Bond may be purchased for cash or on the convenient Monthly Savings Plan wherever you bank or invest. It is available in denominations of $100, $300, $500, $1,000 and $5,000.

THE CHOICE IS YOURS

As you can see, new Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice — the Regular Interest Bond and the Compound Interest Bond. Both new bonds are on sale now up to a combined total purchase limit of $15,000. They have been specifically designed to meet your savings goals. Choose the one that's right for you.

POTATO PANCAKES

1 pkg. (12 oz.) frozen
Idaho shredded potatoes
3 tbsps. chopped chives
1 tsp. salt
2 eggs, lightly beaten
cayter (optional)
sour cream (optional)

Let potatoes thaw, drain well on paper towels. Mix with chives, salt and eggs. Drop by tablespoon into about 1 inch cooking oil; then flatten slightly with spatula. Cook until golden brown on both sides. May be served hot as hors d'oeuvres with caviar and sour cream.

Fix-It Tip

Containing from last week, the propane torch is a handy item to have around the house. Propane torches are sold with a regular blowtorch head that delivers a relatively large flame for heavy work. A pencil burner is also available to provide narrower flame for fine work.

There are accessories to make the torch more versatile. One is a flame spreader that goes over the standard head. This provides a wide flame for such work as burning off paint and antiquing furniture.

Soldering tips fit over the burner so that the flame is enclosed in the tip. This provides a constantly heated iron. A cutting tip goes on like the soldering tip, makes the torch useful for cutting tile, woodburning and removing putty.

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was editor of a small Missouri paper. One day he received a letter from a subscriber, stating that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Tory Islay doctor named member, Order of Canada

Dr Arthur H Sweet of Islay Alberta was named a Member of the Order of Canada in the latest list of honors announced by the government.

A resident of the area for more than forty years, Dr Sweet is known far and wide beyond the boundaries of his practice for his keen interest in affairs political, and in particular, for his activity in the Conservative party. For many years he was secretary of the Battle River Constituency association for the Conservatives.

Dr Sweet was born in 1883 at Thornehill, Manitoba. He attended the local schools, Brandon College and the University of Manitoba where he received his B Sc degree.

For a time Dr Sweet taught school in Manitoba and Saskatchewan until he earned enough money to attend McGill University. Dr. Sweet received his MD from McGill in 1894 and then interned in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He returned to McGill to receive his LMCC degree in the first class to receive this degree in surgery in Canada. Dr Sweet practised medicine in Saskatchewan for five years, then in 1905 moved his practise to Islay, Alberta, where he bought the practice, house and pharmacy combined.

Times were bad, roads were poor or non-existent and telephones were a luxury. These were the years of the greatest population in the area, and Dr Sweet had to single-handedly care for the patients admitted to the hospital as well as his office and house calls. He had to make many trips over bad roads in the middle of winter, through the water in spring and over miles of fields to isolated farms. After forty years, he can still be counted on to be there in an emergency. At a testimonial dinner in 1971, Dr Sweet was presented with a plaque summing up the community's feelings.

To Dr A H Sweet, Physician, Surgeon, Citizen in recognition and appreciation of thirty six years faithful service to the people of Alberta. Your blending of the art and the science of medicine is in keeping with the faith of Hippocrates and has earned you the enjoyment of life and the practice of the Art respected by all men on all time.

Best essayist in the competition sponsored earlier this year by Battle River Tourist Association was Diane Hutchinson, of Camrose, whose copy on What Tourism Means to Alberta was selected by a panel of judges from Wainwright. Her prize consisted of a week's holiday spent at the Taylor Guest Ranch at Chauvin earlier this summer, and the plaque being presented above by Dennis Pedersen of Wetaskiwin. Holden Sea Cadets are now recruiting

The Holden Sea Cadet Corps is presently recruiting boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 16 to join in a two-hour weekly program that promises education, enjoyment, and companionship.

This is part of a province-wide campaign to attract Army, Air, and Sea Cadets to a program that tries to stay away from the classroom aspect of training, and concentrate heavily on the practical teaching, in order to maintain high interest among youngsters.

The main objective of the Sea Cadet movement is to turn out responsible, enterprising, physically-fit young men and women. The movement uses the tools at hand - discipline, drill, seamanship training, trade instruction and apprenticeship system but the whole idea is to better equip a boy or girl to make a success of whatever lifestyle he or she chooses, thus becoming responsible self-reliant members of the community.

Specifically, the program offers training in leadership, smallboat and ship handling, sailing and safety, navigation and pilotage, survival techniques, communications, first aid, administration, physical education, cooking and an appreciation and understanding of the sea.

Besides the weekly parades, weekend camps throughout the year are included and senior cadets may qualify for such adventures as destroyer cruises to places like Hawaii, Japan and Mexico.

The Sea Cadet Corps "NOATRA" in Holden is sponsored jointly by the Navy League of Canada and the Department of National Defence.

The local sponsoring body is the Ryley branch of the Canadian Legion.

Cadets meet for two hours every Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Holden Community Hall with the three Corps officers - Captain D. Cooper, Lt. W. Tasson and Training Officer P. Hartman in attendance.

Happy Homemaking

When hanging a picture on a nail make a V cut at the wall-paper so the paper can be turned back over the hole if the nail is removed later.

A good way to get soap suds out of bottles and jars with thin necks is to simply keep the bottle right side up instead of turning it upside down, and keep running water into it so that the suds rise to the top and flow over the bottle.

A tablespoon or two of fabric softener added to a bucket of water when washing windows will make the glass shine.

To remove the ugly purple stain often left on plastic counter tops from grocery markings, use a piece of cut raw dipped in rubbing alcohol.

Anniversary celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Alphee Gallant are shown with their family as they celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary recently. All of the family, including a daughter from Nova Scotia and one from Edmonton were able to be present for the occasion.

Patricia Young says . . .

Reviewing a book published fourteen years ago is not so strange in view of the current controversy raging throughout Canada over the French separatists' determination to "liberate" themselves and establish an independent State. Quebec Today or Cuba is a collection of articles reprinted from various Quebec magazines along with key speeches by governmental French Canadians. Published in 1964 by the McMillan Company, along with a translation of the FLQ Manifesto, we find the opinions of such men as Gerard Pelletier, Pierre Elliot Trudeau, Pierre Laporte and Jean Marchand. Both editors, Frank Scott and Michael Oliver, were later engaged to work on the Royal Commission on Bi-lingualism and bi-culturalism.

Most illuminating perhaps is an article by Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau, then a professor of public law at the University of Montreal and first published in the 19th April issue of Cite Libre.

Trudeau apparently knew a number of separatists as far back as 1962 and found them personally current and [illegible] their ideas [illegible] without [illegible] they had to say about separatism and the bi-lingual problem thirteen years ago.

Recognized at last

School trustees were rejoicing on Monday, and taxpayers across the province should join them, in the announcement by Education Minister Julian Koziak that education grants henceforth will be paid in monthly instalments during the first three months of the year, rather than the boards having to wait until mid-April to receive them, with the consequent need to borrow for that entire period.

Logically, boards are expected to spend their year's budget just before or just after December 31. The estimates are based on the year's needs, and while it's impossible to be accurate down to the last penny, sound budgeting should usually see almost all the money gone.

That being the case, they borrow until the first payment comes in, about 100 days after the year starts, and the first payment just pays off the borrowing. So they borrow again to finance the second quarter and so on.

For more boards, it worked out to somewhere around a mill or so that was spent on nothing but interest on current expenditure. Since the Province had so much money around as to be almost embarassing, trustees for years have felt they should be relieved of that annual problem, of that additional expense for the taxpayer, so that the same money could be used either to expand services for the same dollar, or to reduce the total tax levied.

Mr. Koziak will long be remembered as the man who made it possible, where many before him found it "couldn't be worked."

When we Remember

Remembrance Day is primarily a time when we recall, with deep appreciation, the sacrifices made by thousands of men and women who served our country and its allies, during the wars since 1914.

But it's not unfitting, points out The Observer, official magazine of the United Church, that we should also honour heroic Germans of many faiths, who suffered and died rather than compromise with Naziism.

"We seem to have forgotten," it says, "that vast numbers of German Christians accepted imprisonment and death rather than give in to Hitler. At least 4,000 Roman Catholic priests" points out the United Church editorial, "died by hanging, starvation, lack of medical aid, and as victims of medical experiments."

A papal encyclical, to be read from every Catholic pulpit in Germany on Palm Sunday, 1937, called on the people to resist the idolatrous cult of "race and state". Infuriated by the Church's defiance, Hitler waged systematic war on it from then until 1945

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — Hints coming out of the Prime Minister's Office now indicate that Mr Trudeau has come up with what many consider to be a foolproof scheme for re-election of the Liberal government sometime next spring, and as you might guess, the plot includes using national unity to scare the wits out of voters.

Between now and the rest of the year, the Trudeau government plans to put forth many offers of compromise to Quebec, like the proposal made by Mr Trudeau back in September for enshrining minority language education rights in the constitution.

The PM knew that Rene Levesque would turn that one down, and the federal plan of the subsequent offers to be refused. The object of the exercise is to paint the federal government as the reasonable voice in the Quebec-Ottawa confrontation. This can only be accomplished by repeating the message like a soap ad.

Towards the end of this year, or early next year, we can expect the prime minister to announce that he intends to patriate the Canadian constitution from Westminster without amendments, and without an amending formula. Bringing the constitution home has long been a goal of the PM's, a goal shared by many Canadians, and I feel sure that the political sex appeal of the constitution can now be dressed up as a winning cause by tying it to national unity.

Once the constitution announcement has been made, Mr Trudeau will call a federal-provincial constitutional conference for perhaps March. Two weeks or so before the conference date, he'll reveal the federal plan for an amending formula, and propose to enshrine language rights in the constitution, giving Quebec a veto over any future constitutional changes.

Levesque may boycott the conference, depending on the federal tone, and if he doesn't, Mr Trudeau, and/or Marc Lalonde, will be able to force the Quebec delegation to walk out, bringing the crisis to a climax.

At that point Mr Trudeau says that he doesn't believe Rene Levesque and the Parti Quebecois speak for the people of Quebec, and the federal government intends to go over the heads of the Leveque government to seek the opinion of Quebeckers in a [illegible] referendum.

It's designed to offer the alternative to Canadians of a unity vote - for the Liberals - or a separatist vote - for anyone else. Devilishly clever, and Canadians might just fall for it; once again being offered the choice between two extremes, refusing to acknowledge that there could be a reasonable middle ground.

Remember, though, national unity is not so much the aim with the Trudeau government, as it is the weapon-the weapon for re-election.

Hog breeders face changes in grading

When Canada's amended hog grading regulations come into effect on January 2, 1978, the location at which the back-fat depth is measured will not change.

It was previously stated that the back-fat measurement would be taken at the mid-back and loin areas. However, this change has been withdrawn.

The back-fat measurement will continue to be taken at the shoulder and loin.

The Meat Packers Council and the Canadian Pork Council have agreed that further research should be carried out before the location of back-fat measurements are changed. The areas that will be affected by the amended regulations are weight ranges and fat levels.

Hogs that weigh between 180-189 pounds will now be eligible to index up to 114. Under the present grading regulations carcasses weighing more than 180 pounds cannot index higher than 91. Hog carcasses which weigh 200 pounds or more will now index 90 or 90, depending on total fat, compared with 88 or 82 under the present regulations.

However, to avoid a substantial increase in the number of heavy hogs marketed, the Pork Council, the Meat Packers Council and Agriculture Canada have agreed to revise the indexing methods during the initial year if the proportion of heavy hogs (180 pounds and over) exceeds 15 per cent of the national slaughter. If, at the end of the first year, the proportion of heavy hogs, which are contracted for export, exceeds more than 15 per cent, the index values will be reduced by five index points to a minimum of 80. This reduction will remain in effect for the following year or until such price time as is jointly agreed upon by the participating parties.

The new regulations include a revised table of differentials which lists fat and weight classes and index values. The revised table has three additional fat classes.

GREETINGS"

Dear Sir

To all the dear folk of Tofield and surroundings, we send our warmest greetings. We have received word of the forthcoming Diamond wedding of Mr and Mrs J W

Unfortunately, we will not be able to be with you in the flesh, but we shall be there in spirit, for unfortunately I have got to the stage where I cannot get around too well, having been, and still am under hospital and medical care.

We do feel this badly, as Tofield was my first Parish after Ordination on 1931 and Priested in 1932. Also a great event happened in our lives when Bishop Burgett and Archdeacon Cormack came to Holy Trinity Church in 1936 and joined Thelma Lois Noland and me in Holy Matrimony, and oh the friendships we have made through the years and still treasure it sort of bound us to the good people we served.

We do hope that all goes well. Oh! how we would have liked to have been with you, and hear the words that will be spoken of the work that was accomplished by these two grand people and their families and so many more like them who in these early days did their utmost to accomplish God's work.

With all good wishes from us

Sincerely
Canon and Mrs A Wallis

Lennon-McCowan vows exhanged in October

Patricia United Church in North Edmonton was the scene of an autumn wedding on October 29, uniting in marriage Mryna Elane, daughter of Mr and Mrs James McCowan and Randall Joseph, son of Mr and Mrs Joseph Lennon, all of Edmonton.

Rev Harold Black performed the double ring ceremony.

The organist was Donald Mc Cowan, brother of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long white gown of batiste featuring a stand-up collar and keyhold neckline, puffed sleeves that gathered into long cuffs of lace. The skirt was double ruffled. She wore a three-quarter length veil with a floral head piece and carried a bouquet of red roses. Her jewelery was a red heart shaped pendant made by her father.

Maid of honor was Loreen Lennon and the bridesmaid was Leeann Lennon, sisters of the groom. Their gowns were in off white batiste made similar to the bride's with inserts of blue velvet. They carried bouquets of blue and white carnations and wore blue stone pendants.

The groomsmen were Ben Jansen a friend, and Bob Lennon, brother of the groom.

Ushers were Allan Mc Cowan and Brent Lane, brother and cousin of the bride respectively.

During the signing the reguiter, Miss Sheralyn Millenchuk sang "If" and "Time In A Bottle".

A reception for 250 guests was held at Grove Motor Inn in Spruce Grove. The decorations were in blue and white and the cake was made by Mrs J. Lennon. In charge of the guest book was Maureen McConnell. Bob Arnold was master of ceremonies. Terry Wilcox proposed the toast to the bride with the groom replying.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a sleeveless gown of brown with a floral overdress of panne velvet and wore a pink rose corsage. The groom's mother wore a beige gown of silk knit with a red corsage.

Included among the guests were the bride's grandmothers, Mrs Janet Mc-Cowan of Tofield and Mrs Elizabeth Laue of Saskatoon.

The parents of the bride and groom were honored on this occasion as their 25th wedding anniversaries are close to this date. Mryna proposed a toast to her parents, Mr and Mrs McCowan, and Loreen gave the toast for her parents, Mr and Mrs Lennon. An anniversary cake was presented to them from their children.

Mr and Mrs Randall Lennon will make their home in Spruce Grove where Randy is editor of "The Examiner" and Myrna will be attending the University of Alberta.

WINTER PROTECTION FOR ROSES

All species of roses, except shrub roses, need some form of protection to survive our Alberta Winters.

You can use soil, peat moss, straw or live sphagnum moss to insulate them against fluctuating temperatures and desiccation, both of which can injure or kill the plants. You should put the insulating material that you choose around the plants to a height of eight to 12 inches above the ground as soon as the ground freezes. Providing the insulating material you have used is dry, it is a good idea to put one mil plastic or fiberglass batting around these mounds. Either will keep the insulating material dry, which is important because moisture reduces the insulating value of the materials and increases the susceptibly of the roses to rot. Next you should put chicken wire around or boxes over the mounds to keep them in place. If you want to make doubly sure that your roses are protected against severe winter weather, you can cover the mounds which you have protected with chicken wire or boxes with evergreen boughs to trap the snow. Snow is one of the best types of insulation there is for any plants.

Trenching is recommended for climbing roses. You should detach the roses from the wall and lay them on a three foot deep trench just before the ground freezes. Then fill the trench with loose soil and put straw or evergreen boughs on top to trap the snow.

If you live in an area where you can count on quite a heavy snowfall, you need make only a shallow trench, and then pile the soil up to about 18 inches above the ground surface. You can then cover the mounds with straw or evergreen boughs for added protection.

TAKING YOUR CHILD TO THE DOCTOR.

A number of you have mentioned you are enjoying the articles by Nadine Vesier our Family Living Specialist

In a visit to the doctor or the dentist a major family trauma in your family" Is it an event your child has not yet experienced, and one which you are dreading?

How do you feel about going to the doctor or dentist yourself? Your kids are very likely to pick up the fear and apprehension you feel. They are also likely to be sensitive to any feelings of pity or guilt you may feel about inflicting discomfort or pain on them, even though you know it for their own good.

How can you avoid some of these pitfalls? First, you can have faith that your children can cope with pain and discomfort, that they will not destroy them Having faith will make it easier for you to be calm and matter of fact about the visit. Secondly, you can avoid a lot of fear about the unknown by preparing the children for the visit and by letting them know what to expect. Tell them the truth, you semt your kids to trust you If it is going to hurt some, tell them, but also tell them that it will get better Do not overdo the description of the pain One mother told her child a gamma globulin shot would hurt. It hurt very little, but the mother passed out in the pediatrician's office!

Let us look at an example of the beforehand preparation. You want to take your child to the dentist for the first time What do you do? Are you relatively calm when you go for a routine check up? If so, take the child along with you. Chances are your dentist will jump at the opportunity to use your visit to prepare your child for is first visit.

Some hospitals believe so strongly in preparing children for admission that they conduct regular guided tours before the children are admitted. If your local hospital does not have this service, and it is tonsillectomy time, all is not lost! You can play "pretend your doll is going to the hospital" with the child It is useful for him to go through all the routine of the doll being admitted, going to bed, having shots, and being wheeled to the operating room You can have the doll gasp to sleep, but do not dwell on the operation Just say "The doll will wake up in a couple of hours with a sore throat The sore throat will go away in a couple of days, but meanwhile your doll gets to eat ice cream or mention whatever other bribes or jolts the child particularly likes! It will be going home soon.

Do not lie to a child. Say he will be uncomfortable for a time, but will get better soon. Stress the positive! It is upsetting for you to see your child in pain, but, remember, you cannot suffer for him However, you can make it easier for him by doing as much as possible to remove the fear which he does not need to suffer, the fear of the unknown'

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was editor of a small Missouri paper. One day he received a letter from a subscriber, stating that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Confronting Your Faith

This week's column for the Mercury feature 'Confronting Your Faith' is written by the Reverened Harold Boettger pastor of the Salem Mennonite Church.

In late summer or early fall our household received the annual Christmas Wish Book provided by a mail order firm as a gentle reminder that the Christmas season is a fast approaching. It came in time to whet the appetites of the young and perhaps the not so young for whatever they might have wished for and hoped to receive this Christmas.

Inspired by fairy tales heard in early childhood many of us at one time or other have tried to decide what we would ask for if an opportunity were given us to receive the fulfillment of one single wish.

In the creation account given in the book of Genesis we are told "God created man in His own image in the image of God created He him male and female created He them" (Genesis 1:27). A part of the God likeness built into the human personality was the power of self-determination known as free moral agency or simply the power of choice set within the context of a mind capable of knowledge and discernment, but charged with responsibility and accountability.

It is "Creator likeness qualities such as these which set the human apart from the rest of creation, freeing him from the role of a robot. Trees birds flowers seas, asks and stars exalt their Maker (they can do nothing more nor less. To man however has been given the prerogative to own or disown to exalt or to degrade to honor or to dishonor his Creator. The ensuing moral dilemma with these potentials may be thought of as "The Divine Experiment" with its accompanying risk that God took in making man rather than "The quantum "Could God demonstrate His goodness love and mercy suffer evil to prove that His purpose in us and to us, is only His supreme good? Answer to share all He is and has" Will we of our own volition own Him honor Him and serve Him or will man opt for the candy-coated appeals of the arch foe of his and for man's devotion"

To Israel the Lord said "See I have set before you this day life and good and death and evil, therefore choose life that both you and your seed may live" (Deut 30:15-19) The choice is man's but the accompanying or ensuing consequences cannot be avoided because that part remains God's prerogative

The crime, violence greed and injustice so prevalent in today's society is often used as a base for questioning the reality of God's existence or if His existence is recognized in question His goodness and love Should we not rather view these conditions as the fruit of God disowning"

The Good News is that God in Christ, has opened the way to reconciliation, peace and restored heirship

What more or better could one desire and receive this Christmas Season" It's our choice

FINDING REAL HAPPINESS

Isaiah 55 - 1 "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come buy and eat. Yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."

Perhaps, like many of the rest of us, you have noticed that today we spend vast sums of money, much energy and time in obtaining things that really do not satisfy at all. A careful study indicates that we spend more money on pleasure enjoyment and entertainment than the generation before us could have produced or even counted.

Yet we are more miserable, more disgruntled and dissatisfied than any people who have ever lived before us. To our dismay we have found that all the things we buy and possess do not bring to us real happiness.

What we have not considered is the fact that real joy, peace and happiness can not be bought. His Majesty King George the fifth used to say . . . "Happiness does not come from doing the things that you like. It comes from learning to like the things you have to do."

BILL GOODWIN OF NORTHWESTERN UTILITIES SUGGESTS SOME SIMPLE SAFETY STEPS WHICH CAN SAVE YOU ENERGY, MONEY AND WORRY.
Bill Goodwin, foreman, Customer Service.

Take a few moments to make sure your heating system is safe and working properly. Be sure the vent pipes connecting your furnace and gas appliances to the chimney are clear, properly secured and not corroded.
A safe, efficient, trouble-free system uses less energy so you'll be getting all the heat you pay for this winter. Make sure your chimney is not clogged with ice, snow or other material.

For more safety tips, pick up a copy of our pamphlet, "Take Time for Home Heating Safety". It's available at your nearest gas company office. If you have the will, we have the ways to help you use energy safely.

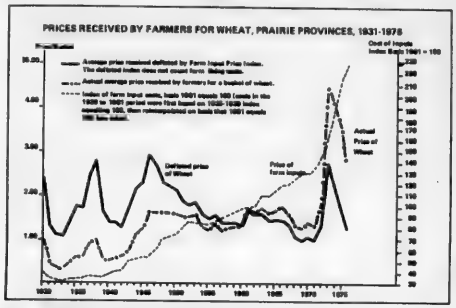
Grain farmer's cost close to depression



"It is a delusion to believe the Prairie grain farmer is doing well," the president of United Grain Growers (UGG) warned delegates to the 71st annual meeting in Edmonton, on Nov 2.

"In terms of what he really gets for a bushel of grain and what it costs him to buy inputs to produce that grain, he is a short step away from the price-cost situation of the Depression," Mac Runciman told farmers attending the two-day meeting here Wednesday

Runciman showed farmers tables and charts which related the actual price of wheat and indexed costs of production to arrive at an adjusted price for wheat

The figures, specially prepared for UGG by agricultural economists, showed the farm price of wheat 45 years ago in 1932 averaged 37 cents while last year the price averaged $3.81, and in 1977 will be in the "neighborhood" of $2.50

Today's price looks good in relation to that 1932 price of 37 cents, said Runciman, but costs have also risen.

"The key to the situation is whether the price of a bushel of wheat has risen more than the cost of producing that bushel of wheat," he said Delegates were shown that the 1976 wheat price is $2.81 is really worth only $1.22 in terms of what it can buy to produce that bushel of wheat, basis 1961 cost relationships

"Meanwhile," said Runciman, "that seemingly lowly price of 37 cents paid for a bushel of wheat 45 years ago, in terms of purchasing power, is worth $1.11." He stated that farm costs continued to escalate and the wheat price fell in 1977

Alluding to words from Lewis Carrol, Runciman said, "The farmer may have to run as fast as he can in order to stay where he is."

Runciman was quick to point out to delegates, "It doesn't mean, of course, that the farmers are headed for bankruptcy. It is wrong to infer from farm movements in farm incomes solely on the basis of costs and prices.

He said yields make the difference between the situation now and in the Depression.

"To a great extent farmers have been able to overcome low margins through increasing farm size and adapting new technology Turning out more bushels at the same total cost has allowed farmers to increase their net incomes.

"This is the principal hope of the Prairie farmer confronted by the adverse movement of the costs of what he buys relative to the prices he receives," claimed the UGG president

Runciman said the answer to today's situation is not the "simplistic tighten your belts."

He said, "When profit margins are razor-thin it is wrong to ignore the equation income minus expenses equals profit. To a grain farmer, income is price times yield. If costs cuts reduce yield, such cuts may actually reduce profits."

On the latter point, he said this particularly applied to fertilizers, herbicides and seed purchases

"Commodity prices have little impact on the most profitable rate of fertilizer and chemical application, or whether you should buy seed or not. Attempting to get along with older machinery, with not too great a sacrifice in timeliness or technology, and personal sacrifice are measures that will be taken

Patricia Young says . . .

Reviewing a book published fourteen years ago is not so strange in view of the current controversy raging throughout Canada over the French separatists determination to "liberate" themselves and establish an independent State. Quebec Blows her Case is a collection of articles reprinted from various Quebec magazines along with key speeches by prominant French Canadians. Published in 1964 by the McMillan Company, along with a translation of the FLQ Manifesto, we find the opinions of such men as Gerard Pelletier, Pierre Elliot Trudeau, Pierre Laporte and Jean Marchand. Both writers, Frank Scott and Michael Oliver, were later engaged to work on the Royal Commission on Bi-lingualism and bi-culturalism.

Most illuminating perhaps, is an article by Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau, then a professor of public law at the University of Montreal and his published in the 19th April issue of Cite Libre.

Trudeau apparently knew a number of separatists as far back as 1962 and found them: "genuine lovers of their people" (Page 78.) While he was obviously sympathetic toward Quebec's problems, he stopped short of separatism. In speaking of the "aggressive nationalism" of the English speaking Canadians, he asks: "What choice lay before the French Canadian over the past century?"

Prime Minister Trudeaus solution in 1964 was (and apparently still is) one of "polyethnic pluralism." (Page 78) "whereby Canada might become the envied seat of a form of federalism that belongs to tomorrow's world, an example to all those new Asian and African States."

In outlining his idea of a polyethnic federation, Mr. Trudeau wrote: We must separate for once and all the concepts of state and nation and make Canada a pluralistic and polyethnic society. With an increasing background in self government, each national group may be able to develop the body of laws and institutions essential to their development of national characteristics. At the same time, the English speaking Canadians, with their own nationalism, will have to retire gracefully to their proper place in consenting to modify their own precious image of what Canada ought to be."

In the light of the political advance of such men as Gerald Pelletier, Pierre Elliot Trudeau, Rene Levesque and Jean Marchand, it is interesting to read just what they had to say about separatism and the bi-lingual problem thirteen years ago!

Witnesses join Lacombe rally

The Lacombe Composite High School was the scene of a different educational program this past weekend — a religious training seminar of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The Witnesses are known around the world for their public preaching and teaching of the Bible. To give added impetus to this work in Central Alberta, they spend a two-day weekend of intensive training in methods of effective personal evangelism.

The climax of the gathering was reached Sunday afternoon when Convention chairman Thomas Dudar spoke to an audience of 660 on the subject "Maintain Your Confidence Firm to the End." All the subject he stated "In this world, it's difficult to maintain confidence. Pressure, opposition, apathy and discouragement affect us all." Then through various Bible passages and illustrations he effectively showed that, despite the general attitude, it is possible to maintain a firm confidence for a better future. "The key is bringing our lives into harmony with God's will," he added.

Mr A. Holmes, a local elder, was in charge of a cleaning department designed to keep the convention site neat and tidy, while another local elder, Lloyd George was in charge of the music department.

Tofielders are winners

David Brown of Tofield won the Sharon Adby Holmes Challenge Trophy last week during Farmfair '77 in Edmonton.

The Tofield youth exhibited the Grand Champion Hereford calf during the Junior Futurity Show, held annually during Farmfair 77.

Bob Antoniuk, Robert Holowaychuk and Silver Sands Kenlly were awarded the Frank Jacobs Trophy when they exhibited the Senior Champion Hereford steer. They also won the Grand Champion Finished Market animal award.

Around the town

Peter Foyd of Tofield passed away suddenly on Saturday at the age of 71 years. Funeral services were held yesterday (Wednesday) at the United Church with Rev. David Meddle officiating and interment followed in Tofield Cemetery. He is survived by his wife, Bertha, two sons, Chris of Whitecourt and Robert, of Camrose, two daughters, June of Tofield and Betty (Mrs. H. Davidson) of Coalmont, B.C.; and 13 grandchildren.

Mrs. J.A.L. Smith spent a couple of days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Robinson last week.

Ryley observes Remembrance Day

Remembrance Day services at Ryley included the service at the Cenotaph at the Legion Hall with the HMCS Nootka Cadets, the Royal Canadian Legion and the Ladies' Auxiliary and a large crowd in attendance, the parade to the Community Hall, and the Armistice Program with the Royal Canadian Legion Chaplain, Rev. Victor Cabel, in charge.

The program included an address by the Chaplain, with hymns and three selections by the Ryley School Band under the direction of Nelson Solberg.

Another feature was the dedication of flags of Canada and Alberta, and the presentation of the flags and a picture of the Queen to the Village of Ryley for the new Council Chambers. These were presented by the Royal Canadian Legion and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ryley Branch in tribute to the pioneers of the Ryley area, and were accepted by Mayor Ed Albrecht and Councillor Larry Andrukow. Mrs. Lois Murray of the Ladies' Auxiliary and a member of the Cadet Council carried the picture of the Queen. The hall was filled to capacity for the program.

The Services were followed by a pot-luck dinner, catered to by the Ladies' Auxiliary for the Legion, Cadet and Band Members and guests. Here, too, a capacity crowd attended.

Ryley ball teams advance regionally

Volleyball teams from Ryley will be trying this week to earn berths in Zone playoffs which are scheduled for Saturday.

The girls' Zone finals will be held in Hay Lakes while the boys' competition has been scheduled for Consort. Winners of the two Zone finals will advance to provincial finals.

To gain berths in the Zone playoffs, both of Ryley's two teams must win playoffs scheduled for this week.

Ryley High School girls will be meeting Breton while the boys will compete against a team from Alder Flats. In both instances, playoffs have been scheduled for Wetaskiwin and again, in both cases, the playoffs will be best of three series. In earlier playoffs at the regional level, Ryley teams earned the right to gain berths at Wet. Atwin when they emerged as winners of a playoff tournament which was staged at Irma.

Both the boys' and girls' teams faced opposition on this tournament with other teams entered from Holden and the host school, Irma.

Competition in this tournament was very close with the majority of games going to a full three-game set before winners were determined.

Beaverhill hockey to open Saturday

The 1977-78 schedule for the Beaverhill Hockey League will open on two fronts on Saturday night.

Ryley Flyers will be hosting Smoky Lake with this game to be played in the Tofield Arena. Saturday's other game will see Waskatenau playing in Lamont.

The league has grown to eight teams as a new entry has joined the seven teams returning from last winter.

The new addition to the league is a team from Waskatenau, who are making their debut in Lamont on Saturday.

The seven returning teams include Andrew, Holden, Lamont, Mundare, Ryley, Smoky Lake and Tofield.

Four teams will begin their regular schedule on Tuesday night when Tofield will host Holden while Andrew plays in Lamont.

Two contests are scheduled for November 20th when the league's newest member from Waskatenau plays in Tofield while Smoky Lake will travel over to Mundare for a game.

The complete schedule for the coming season was published in The Mercury in the issue of November 3rd. In any case, hockey fans will be advised, weekly, of forthcoming games.

Teams in the league are advised that all game summaries should be forwarded to the league statistician as quickly as possible so that reports may be published each week, in The Mercury.

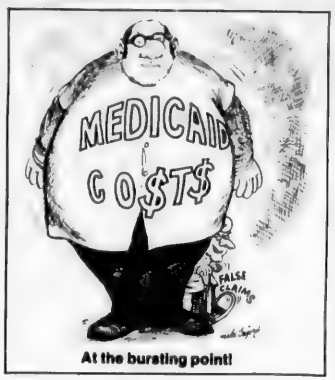
Tofield Satellites kicked off their new season last week when they hosted the Camrose Skatepeders in an exhibition match.

The Camrose squad is considered to be one of the best juvenile hockey teams in Central Alberta, and they proved this point in the exhibition contest as they dumped Tofield 11-2.

Stollery paced the winners as he picked up a hat-trick, while Lindseth and Cook aided the cause with two goals each.

Hardy retires

Jack Hardy has retired after working with Northwestern Utilities Ltd., in Tofield. When he retired, Mr. Hardy was the local district foreman. He joined the company in 1932, working nine hours a day for 25¢ an hour. He and his wife Ingo will continue to live in Tofield although they plan a trip to Hawaii in January. Mr. Hardy (left) was presented with a farewell gift by Bruce Dorlan, vice-president and general manager of the western



Seat belt laws

AMA President W.J. Yule recently ignored the feeling of half his association's members when he suggested that compulsory seat belt legislation would still appear to be necessary in order to reduce the number of injuries and deaths on the highways.

For in a recent poll of the membership, opinion was split almost right down the middle for and against legislation.

That doesn't mean that his membership doesn't believe in seat belts. Not by any means. Seven out of ten believe they help prevent injury in collisions. All it means is that only five out of ten believe people should be required by law to improve their own chances of surviving an accident, or reducing injury.

The province of Saskatchewan recently enacted compulsory seat belt laws, but the most reasonable argument they can find, and one they're pushing as hard as possible, is not that people should strive to conserve their own lives, but that by failing to do so, they're exacting huge tolls on the medical care program in the province. Normal medicare premiums fall far short of the incredible expenses which serious smash-ups can involve, so they argue these costs are being passed on to the rest of society, and declare that that is not fair. So, says Saskatchewan, buckle up and save the medicare costs.

We're just as opposed to legislating seat belt laws as the fifty percent of AMA members who feel this is an unnecessary and as such, undesirable law. But we don't think it would be unfair if the government were to say that medicare would not be available for those injured who failed to be wearing seat belts. That's a different approach, but one we think is fair. And it beats legislation

Good for the nurses

We're delighted the Alberta nurses stuck by their guns over the problem involved with the more-than-A1B guidelines salary award recently made, and have finally won

Hospitals across the province were advised to pay no more than guideline limits, even though an independent government appointed arbitrator awarded the nurses nine and a half percent. And indeed, the hospitals really had no authority to do more, unless the government endorsed the move.

But since the arbitrator was appointed by the government, there should have been no question of forcing the nurses to take court action to gain their award. Had the award been the other way, a good deal less than guidelines, there's no question but that the nurses would have been required to accept it, however bitter, and however much they might resent it.

It has to be a double-acting sass, and if it cuts one way, it has to cut the other way also. Otherwise there's no fairness, and we lose all respect for the government that resorts to such action as only a ruse

by John S. Batiuk

During the week of October 30 to November 5 inclusive I had the privilege of attending the fourth Regional Canadian [illegible] Parliamentary Seminar in Ottawa. Delegates attending were representatives from all ten provinces, also from Trinidad Jamaica and Barbados. Much time at the Seminar was allotted to discuss ways of improving procedures in the Assembly and also to improve the decorum.

Alberta, being the first to introduce television to the Legislature, started the discussion. Since forming the government in 1971, an invitation was extended to all television stations to televise any proceedings they may desire. It is expected that television in the legislatures will increase attendance and also the performance of members.

The House of Commons in Ottawa has adopted television in the House, however, the cost, approximately $4 million, will be absorbed by the taxpayers of the country. We, in Alberta, are in no way obligated to cover the expense of T.V. coverage in the Legislative Assembly.

The Provincial Treasurer made a Ministerial Statement [illegible] a statement that the Minister of Education was making at the same time to the annual meeting of the Alberta School Trustees Association being held in Calgary [illegible] that a special provision will be made to fund advances to Boards of Education so they would not need to borrow money to operate their systems. In 1978, School Boards in the province have paid approximately $3 million in interest for operating their systems and receiving their quarterly grants after making their expenditures. I know that this will be well received and am delighted that this has materialized as I have on many occasions requested our Caucus to support such a move.

Several queries were made to the Solicitor General regarding the activities of the R.C.M.P. in which there may have been illegal raids on the offices of the Parti Quebecois. The Solicitor General expressed his confidence in the R.C.M.P. and that he was not going to interfere with dealings as Quebec. His instructions are that the R.C.M.P. uphold law and order in the Province of Alberta.

The Solicitor General also stated that 125 beverage rooms in the province were requested to reduce their size. Already 79 of these have renovated and are operational. Quite a few operators and many customers agree that such a renovation is beneficial.

The Premier made an announcement of his meeting with the Prime Minister. This was the first of a series of meetings that the Prime Minister will be holding with the Premiers of Canada. Some areas of concern which were discussed were the structural weakness in the Canadian economy, gram marketing, national unity, language instruction and the follow-up from the Council of Ministers of Education. The Premier was not in a position to announce some areas of discussion with the Prime Minister.

The Minister of Education presented to the Assembly an Alberta Grade 12 Examination Study. In October of 1976, Members of the Legislature requested that the Department consider the effect of the compulsory nature of Grade 12 departmental examinations on the quality of education in Alberta.

Several Bills have been given second reading and have been debated in the Committee of the Whole.

Much time was devoted to the "Planning Act" which seemed quite controversial. However, since this Bill was introduced in the spring session, the general public have had time to review it and to give their input. I really appreciated the many individuals who have communicated with me, expressing their concerns. This gave me an opportunity to pass these concerns on to our Caucus, which did result in some amendments

However, this Bill was passed.

The Report of the Select Standing Committee on the Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund Act was tabled in the Assembly. This Committee is comprised of eleven government members, two Socred members, one N.D.P. member and the Independent. Social Credit Member. This Committee is charged with annually examining the investments of the Trust Fund and reporting their findings and recommendations to the Legislature.

WHERE ARE THE PARENTS?

Ryley, Alta
Nov. 13, 1977

Dear Sir;

I have often wondered where the parents are of many of these youngsters who are out late at night, throwing rocks and just tearing around.

And when night comes, the odd cars are racing, stunting, etc around corners and all over town.

In the mornings, a couple just race on, I call it, "the school road" where school sign is of children walking, and during noon hour.

Can't they come in on bus or leave their keys with a teacher until school is out."

Some day, some poor child, a person that is not well and can't get out of the road quick enough, or a senior citizen, will get hurt.

I love to see young folks have fun, but not that way. And there are so many who are big enough and could help some older person rake up leaves, etc., in fall and show their appreciation for the many privileges they have been given through support of many things.

Bethany Hospital to mark 20 years

Plans are going ahead for Sunday, November 20th at which a special service will be held in the Bethany Chapel at 2 p.m. This service will commemorate the 20th anniversary of the Bethany Auxiliary Hospital. The speaker will be Pastor Gordon Hanson of Calgary, Director of Social Services for the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada. At this service, staff members will be recognized for years of service given to the Hospital.

Following the service there will be a tea in the Nursing Home Auditorium.

Bethany Nursing Home was the scene of a Diamond Wedding Anniversary on November 6th, when Mr and Mrs Emmanuel Roth celebrated 60 years of marriage. A family dinner was held at noon, followed by open house in the afternoon. Many relatives and friends gathered for the occasion.

At the Sunset Home and family of Mr and Mrs Clarence Hanson guests lunch in honor of their parents 63rd anniversary.

Recently work has been done in the basement of the Nursing Home to prepare a room for the residents to work on their crafts. It is expected that room will be ready for use in the near future

In reporting of Hallowe'en visitors we should make a correction that the kindergarten pupils from the Cottage School gave programs at Bethany. A group from Tofield also came dressed in Hallowe'en costumes and sang for the folks here

Is the weather changing?

Is the climate of Alberta changing?

Are we moving into a period when the weather will be hot or colder?

What can we say concerning the future climate of the province?

Prompted by these questions, Alberta Environment asked Richmond W. Langley, professor Emeritus, University of Alberta to examine climate data to see if any trends were evident. His report, "climate change as it affects Alberta and the other Prairie Provinces" has recently been completed.

Prof. Langley briefly reviews the temperature changes during geological times and during the 10,000 years since the ice last retreated from Alberta. He made a thorough examination of the temperature and precipitation records kept across the Prairie during the last 80 years.

This study notes the periods when weather has made plant growth difficult because it was too hot, or too cold, or too wet, or too dry. These periods have been short, after which growing conditions have improved. Prof. Langley sees no reason for this pattern to change, the coming decades will again have short period of environmental stresses, but farming should generally be

Vikings 3rd

CLC Vikings had a split in a visit to Calgary over the past weekend and have taken over sole possession of third place in the ACAC Hockey League.

It will be a busy week for the Vikings as they travel up to Edmonton tonight (Wednesday) for a game with NAIT and will host Mount Royal on Saturday night and SAIT on Sunday afternoon. NAIT will be in town for a return game one week from tonight.

Allen scored two goals in the final period as the Vikings edged Wetaskiwin 5-3 in Wetaskiwin on Thursday night. Espe had scored twice earlier in the game with the single going to Dunn.

Wetaskiwin's goals came from Wolin, Simanton and Grayson.

CATTLE PRICE OUTLOOK

Since the volume of non-fed slaughter cattle is unlikely to increase significantly in the fourth quarter of this year, grain fed slaughter cattle prices are expected to remain strong for the remainder of 1977

According to Maurice Kraut, grain analyst with Alberta Agriculture, A1 and A2 slaughter steers at Calgary are expected to average between $38 and $42 per hundredweight during the last quarter of 1977. He says that prices could climb at times to the mid-$40 level, which would be the highest level recorded this year

Prices of feeder cattle weighing 800 pounds and over are expected to average out in the $38 to $42 per hundredweight range. This is considerably above the $26 per hundredweight average recorded in 1976

Good cow prices should average in the $23 to $26 per hundredweight range, as they did in the third quarter of this year.

The United States Dept of Agriculture outlook and other American publications indicate that average prices for choice steers in Omaha for the fourth quarter of this year are likely to be in the high $30 to low $40 per hundredweight range. The present devalued Canadian dollar allows Canadian finished cattle prices to stay at a good premium relative to those in the U.S.A.

Mr Kraut expects North American cattle marketing to increase seasonally, but not to very high levels. Current expectations are that fourth quarter U.S. cattle slaughter will be 2 to 3 per cent below the 1976 level. This situation implies that cattle prices in the U.S. will be higher than they were in the fourth quarter of 1976. Mr. Kraut says there are two factors to consider in this connection

1) Under 'normal' seasonal cattle marketings in Canada and the United States, there is a price decline in the fourth quarter relative to third quarter prices, but this year such a decline is not expected

2) U.S. hog production, anticipated to be unchanged to 2 per cent below the 1976 level, will still be high enough to fill some of the shortfall created by reduced cattle marketings. Even though cattle prices will be higher than in the fourth quarter of last year, pork supplies will put a ceiling on price increases.

Since Canadian cattle and pork prices are greatly influenced by factors in the U.S. market place, it is likely that Canadian livestock production decisions will be similar to those in the U.S. Current indications for the first quarter of 1978 in both Canada and the U.S. are for marginally higher prices. The second quarter of 1978 could see prices decline as increasing volumes of fat cattle will be marketed during that period

However as conditions can and often do, change up-to-date information on the above outlook will be carried in the "Weekly", available from Maurice Kraut, Market Analysis Branch, Agriculture Building, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton Phone (403) 427-2078

Since the volume of non-fed slaughter cattle is unlikely to increase significantly in the fourth quarter of this year, grain fed slaughter cattle prices are expected to remain strong for the remainder of 1977

According to Maurice Kraut, market analyst with Alberta Agriculture, A1 and A2 slaughter steers at Calgary are expected to average between $36 and $42 per hundredweight during the last quarter of 1977 He says that prices could climb at times to the mid-$40 level, which would be the highest level recorded this year

Prices of feeder cattle weighing 800 pounds and over are expected to average out in the $38 to $42 per hundredweight range This is considerably above the $35 per hundredweight average recorded in 1976

Good cow prices should average in the $23 to $26 per hundredweight range, as they did in the third quarter of this year

The United States Dept of Agriculture outlook and other American publications indicate that average prices for choice steers in Omaha for the fourth quarter of this year are likely to be in the high $30 to low $40 per hundredweight range The present devalued Canadian dollar allows Canadian finished cattle prices to stay at a good premium relative to those in the U S A.

Mr Kraut expects North American cattle marketing to increase seasonally, but not to very high levels Current expectations are that fourth quarter U S cattle slaughter will be 2 to 3 per cent below the 1976 level This situation implies that cattle prices in the U S will be higher than they were in the fourth quarter of 1976 Mr Kraut says there are two factors to consider in this connection

1) Under 'normal' seasonal cattle marketings in Canada and the United States, there is a price decline in the fourth quarter relative to third quarter prices, but this year such a decline is not expected

2) U S hog production, anticipated to be unchanged to 3 per cent below the 1976 level, will still be high enough to fill some of the shortfall created by reduced cattle marketings Even though cattle prices will be higher than in the fourth quarter of last year, pork supplies will put a ceiling on price increases

Since Canadian cattle and pork prices are greatly influenced by factors in the U.S. market place, it is likely that Canadian livestock production decisions will be similar to those in the U.S Current indications for the first quarter of 1978 in both Canada and the U.S are for marginally higher prices The second quarter of 1978 could see prices decline as increasing volumes of fat cattle will be marketed during that period

However as conditions can, and often do, change up-to-date information on the above outlook will be carried in the "Weekly", available from Maurice Kraut, Market Analysis Branch, Agriculture Building, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton Phone (403) 427-5376.

IF A SALESMAN COMES TO YOUR DOOR

Door-to-door selling is one of the oldest marketing methods known to man . . . and is still used effectively today Many of these firms are reliable - with reputations for quality products and dependable service Unfortunately there are others who are not so ethical The man is on you . . . the consumer, to determine the reputability of the firm you are dealing with

What protection should I take?

If you're considering dealing with one of these direct salesmen - ask to see his license and then phone the City and Provincial Licensing Branches to verify these credentials

If possible, avoid committing yourself immediately. Ask for an unsigned copy of the contract so that you can examine it at your leisure Take time, too, to examine the alternatives Call several other firms to compare price and service policies . . . you may be able to get better value elsewhere

Once I've decided . . . then what?

As a final check call the Better Business Bureau to see if any complaints have been registered against the salesman or his firm. Then examine the contract carefully before signing Arrange to make a small deposit until all of the goods or services have been de'vered. Then obtain a signed copy of the contract and keep it in a safe place.

How can I cancel?

Because of the persuasive sales techniques often used by door-to-door salesmen, the consumer has special protection under the Direct Sales Cancellation Act. It provides for a four day "cooling off" period, within which time the consumer can change his mind, cancel the contract, and recover his deposit. All that is required is a letter to the company (preferably registered), dated within the four day period, stating your intention to cancel No excuses necessary!

Remember, however . . . this "cooling off" period only applies to transaction that have been solicited, negotiated and finalized in the home.

The above information is from Alberta Consumer Affairs Please take note.

Dead of two wars honored at service

A fairly large crowd joined Tofield Branch 91 of the Royal Canadian Legion in Remembrance services on Friday in honor of those who paid the supreme sacrifice in two world wars.

Veterans of the two wars joined by members of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movement formed a parade in front of the Legion, marched to the Cenotaph, then to the community hall for the Armistice service.

Following the marching in of the colours, Legion Padre Harold Dunham, now over 80 years old, led the gathering in prayer to open the service.

Wreaths were laid by the following on behalf of the provincial government, Owen Jones, Branch 91 Royal Canadian Legion, Arthur Dunham, World War One veterans, Harry Olsyt World War Two veterans, Hans Christiansen, Women's Forces, Marie Fairbrother, Legion of Frontiersmen, Cpl W. Kirkeland, assisted by D. Wesenberg, Guides and Brownies, Mrs. Joyce Pollock, Cubs and Scouts, Scoutmaster Dick Thomas, Cutty Sark, Bruce Hanson, and Tofield Golden Club, Mrs. Grace Phillips.

Leading various portions of the service were Rev. Dave Meddle, Ron Collins, and Rev. Len Nataas. Mrs. Stinson was pianist for the hymns, and the Tofield High School Band also participated. Solo trumpeter for "The Last Post" and "Reveille" was a member of the band, Randy Sermens.

Following the service, Legion members hosted guests to lunch and a social time at the Legion hall.

Confronting Your Faith

Pastor Gary A. Barr who serves the Bethel Lutheran Church, Ryley, and the Holden Lutheran Church, in this week's author of "Confronting Your Faith" in a regular feature of The Mercury sponsored by the Tofield and District Ministerial Association.

The ordinary is our lives. The commonplace is our daily existence. Important events are for newspaper headlines. Specials are for television. Amazing feats are reserved for the athletic field. We are compelled to suffer through the mediocre and the menial. Time crawls as it ever presses before us. We tread through our daily tasks and in the evening read about the important events. We perform the common labors and when we come home, turn on the television to watch the spectacles. We live day to day and on the weekends view the amazing feats. Today's world is the world of sight, sound, and vast experience readily available at the flick of a switch, intertwined with the everyday menial matters.

How can our everyday lives have meaning? What is the use of the daily grind we experience? Does the Christian Faith have anything to offer? Or does the Christian Faith suffer from the same mediocrity that fills our everyday existence?

It seems that Christianity only offers the commonplace. Doesn't this seem to be true -

Little churches, ordinary choirs, merely adequate ministers? Don't we often hear the complaints about these subjects, complaints such as "the pews are hard", "the organist stumbles through the hymns" "the choir sings flat", and "I didn't get a thing out of that sermon"? We have to admit that the ordinary abounds.

Perhaps the commonplace so present within the church has something to say in itself. The problem might be with us. Could it be that we are trying to change the Christian Faith to fit our own conceptions? Could it be that we are trying to apply our values to the Christianity at the expense of God's values? Are we looking for thrills, for big events when the emphasis is really on the everyday?

Maybe we are overinfluenced by the spectacular. It would be easy for us to blame the times in which we live, but if we examine the New Testament we find that the same thing occurred then. In Jesus' day the people were looking for the Promised One of God. And yet, many people did not recognize Jesus for what he was. We could say that Jesus was just one ordinary for their tastes. Many expected Him to be a military conqueror instead. He died upon the cross. Jesus our Savior died a degrading death, he died the death of a common criminal. This was God's way. Throughout the spreading of the Gospel message, this ordinary event has always posed a problem. Paul said it so well in his letter to the Corinthians "We preach Christ crucified, a stumbling block to the Jews and folly to the Gentiles".

What does this have to say to us? What does this say to all who are caught up in these commonplace lives? We have to realize that the Christian Faith offers us hope and assurance in the everyday. God works in the ordinary for our benefit. Remember the Christ crucified is also the risen Lord. Each one of us in our ordinary existence is important to God. Our commonplace jobs are a way that we serve Him. The day-to-day grind for the Christian is made bearable when we realize this grind, though ordinary, is important. Therefore, we should delight in the ordinary for that is where our gracious God truly works.

Money supply and people

While many families believe they are having economic difficulties because they don't have enough money, one of the national concerns is just the opposite — too much money has been put into circulation driving the purchasing power of the dollar down.

Part of the government's attack on inflation program involves limiting the amount of new money and in the long run this should help families who feel they don't have enough now.

It can be confusing, but here is an example of how it works:

Understanding how prices are related to the supply of money is easiest when dealing with only one product which in this case can be referred to as Examples.

If there are 100 Examples produced each month and 100 dollars in the economy to circulate each month the price per Example is $1 (100 Examples at $1 each = $100).

However, if the number of available Examples doubles while the money supply remains unchanged the price will fall to 50 cents per Example (200 Examples at 50 cents each = $100).

On the other hand, if the amount of money doubles to $200 while the number of Examples stays at 100, the price per Example must rise to $2 (100 Examples at $2 each = $200).

Too much money in the economy without a corresponding increase in production of goods and services pushes prices higher and erodes the buying power of the dollar.

One of the factors involved in fighting inflation is to not print too much money in relation to total output.

As part of the anti-inflation program, the federal government has been reducing the rate of increase in the money supply.

The increase in the supply of money between 1974 and 1975 was 15.8 per cent, while the 1975/1976 increase was 8.0 per cent — the rate for the first eight months of 1977 was 7.5 per cent.

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was editor of a small Missouri paper. One day he received a letter from a subscriber, stating that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck. Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

People everywhere require some medium for self expression and satisfaction. Many seek satisfaction through crafts and hobbies and some through sports. It is important for everyone to have some outlet. If you don't have a hobby why not enroll in a recreation program? "If we really want to recapture the essence of experience, if we want to restore color to our faded personalities and vitality to our languid minds, then we must learn to do things, to think things, to become someone, alone."

Last year the County of Beaver sent over 20 participants. I'm aiming for 40 - 50 people this year.

A lot of people say it's a long way up there and what about accomodation? Accomodation will be arranged for and will be very reasonable. Transportation will be arranged for and we will wear lots of clothes in case of bus trouble. It'll be fun.

Super Curling League begins next Wednesday

Next Wednesday (November 23rd) will see the beginning of a schedule in the newly organized Super Curling League.

Twelve rinks from different corners in the Zone will make up the new league which will be divided into two sections one along Highway 13 with the other division operating along Highway 14.

Arrangements have been made to have all games played on two centers Ryley and Daysland.

Teams will play a round robin schedule against each other and two points will be awarded for each win Games will not be allowed to end in ties As extra ends will be played until a winner is determined.

The Highway 13 Division has a full slate of six teams while Highway 14 section has five teams and still needs one more entry Officials were hopeful that the final team would be in before the schedule is drafted later this week

Entered in the Highway 13 Division are Reg Enright and Dale Stephenson of Camrose, George Heck of Daysland, Pat Miller of Strome, Doug Gibb of Killam, and Ezn Echstrand of Wainwright.

Three of the defnite starters in the Highway 14 Division are Darrel Albrecht of Ryley, Brian Schultz of Tofield, and Larry Thompson of New Sarepta

A fourth entry could be Ernie Dorin of Bruce, although this was not confirmed at presstime

A fifth entry will be coming from the Viking Curling Club although the make-up of the team was not immediately known League officials did not know where the final entry might be coming from, although they appeared certain that the sixth team would be forthcoming

The top two teams in each division will compete in playoffs after the completion of the regular schedule These teams will share in the entry fee ($100 per team) which is paid prior to the start of the schedule

To ensure continued good competition in the future, members of the league and teams in each division will not be allowed to return to the league next year

One of the main purposes behind organizing a Super Curling League was to give Zone curlers good competition so that they might do better in provincial playoffs

Hastings Lake

Lone Fircone

At an emergency meeting of the Community Association on Monday evening, approval was given to the projected developments of the Hall Grounds, which will provide for an arena and parking lot for the Pony Club, and enlarged parking with improved access for the hall itself This will involve both bush clearing and ground levelling, and it is expected that the County will be moving in some heavy machinery and beginning work this week

The regular Community Association meeting, this month concerning mainly the County Fair, will be held on Monday at the hall starting at approximately 8 30 p m.

The hall has recently been hosting the Tofield Cub Pack, which has been displaced from its regular venue at Lindbrook by the radical move recently undergone by the hall there, hopefully it will soon be comfortably settled in its new position.

There will be whist at the hall on Friday of this week, starting at 8 30 p m , a date to remember in December is the 9th, when the Pony Club will be holding a percentage bingo

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — The main issue [illegible] coming up to election time [illegible] Quebec separatism is national unity, not that [illegible] Conservative Leader Joe Clark [illegible] speaking to the political scene in Canada [illegible] far as the Trudeau government is concerned. We're [illegible] economy.

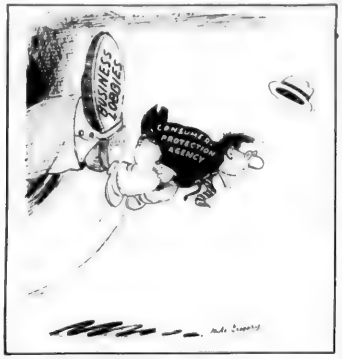
Less the national units [illegible] threaten prospering in the minds of voters though it is important to remember a few basics. Rene Levesque is threatening to lead Quebec out of confederation because he feels French culture and language will be submerged in a North American English speaking mass unless walls of protection can be built around Quebec to protect that language and culture.

Mr Trudeau is saying to Quebeckers exactly the same thing he said to them in his writing more than 10 years ago. In effect, his message to Quebeckers is that they would be crazy to separate because they can stick around and have at least half the whole country. Mr Trudeau is telling us that our choice is to work towards a bilingual Canada or to have the country fractured by the departure of Quebec. He refuses to concede that there are after all other options.

The Trudeau aim is to have equal status for the French language in Canada written into a revised constitution and to give Quebec a veto power over any changes. That's why former Defense Minister Jim Richardson quit the Trudeau cabinet and although a lot of people calk it [illegible] a resignation on principle, he was calling a spade a spade a muckin shovel and he was damn right.

Do we make a whole country bilingual because one segment of that country is concerned about assimilation? Is it worth the cost in trauma and money? Is it even possible? I'm afraid my answer to these questions is "no."

Yes there should be minority language education rights where there is more than 10 percent of an area population seeking it but those rights should be in Quebec too, for English speakers moving to that province, and for immigrants. Mr Trudeau would have the minority education rights established only in the other nine provinces, with Quebec opting in to that constitutional provision some time in the future.



Automated legislation

Probably anyone following the Legislature really closely could have forecast its closing on November 3rd, but we found it really surprising, not to say disturbing, when this happened.

For one thing, we couldn't help but be dismayed at the amount of proposed legislation, important legislation, which was introduced, then left hanging on the vine until the next session rolls around, ostensibly to get further public reaction to some of the proposals.

One instance was the proposal for an amendment to the law governing disposition of marriage property in the event of marriage breakdown, one which the government has been pressed to act on over a period of not just months, but literally, years. Study after study has turned up convincing evidence of the need for reform. Pressure after pressure has come from the public, especially, of course, the female side of it. Maybe the government should be compumented for not being swayed by the pressure, but the fact is, it has moved a great deal more quickly in certain other areas.

Not that it has always been responsible . . . for instance, the bill on planning, Bill 15, passed with barely any significant change from that introduced in the first place despite widespread public opposition, and accompanied by the government's own disclaimers that, indeed, the powers conferred in the bill were not really to be read literally, but with more of an eye to their intent than to their wording. Try telling that to the judge.

But despite the fact there was not enough time to delve deeply into such important matters as property distribution, and despite the fact the house sat barely longer than three weeks, there still was time to pass some 102 pieces of legislation. We've heard talk of machine gun style legislation, but really, this tops everything we've heard. It doesn't really work out to one bill per hour, but if you knock off a few hours for committee sittings and coffee breaks, it does better than that.

How much real attention can any bill be given in that period of time? How much contribution can the Opposition effect in that period of time? For that matter, how much can the government backbenchers themselves contribute?

Increasingly we are presented with the picture of legislation turned out almost by computer, it comes so rapidly. And increasingly, we are presented with the picture of this government presenting legislation that is not to be interfered with by opposition, by backbench, by public input, which moves through the legislative processes in rapid marshalling.

Increasingly, we feel the need for more members sitting on the Other Side of the Legislature.

"HASTY DECISION IS NOT DESIRED"

The Honorable David J Russell
Minister of the Environment
Room 310, Legislative Bldg.
Edmonton, Alberta
T5K 2B7
Dear Sir:

I am writing this letter in reference to the thirteen pounds of literature that has been published regarding the Cooking Lake Moraine area. Upon reviewing the information that has been made available to the public, I am forced both personally, and as a member of the community, to bring to your attention a number of facts and questions that have been found upon reading the tabulated results of the various studies.

One objective of the Cooking Lake study area is to provide recreation areas for the greater metropolitan Edmonton area. The recreation sub-committee questioned the large amounts of land required in this way. The justification for such a large amount of land purchased was felt to be questionable because:

1) Using N.R.P.A. standards of 80 acres / 1000 people and a projected population of one million people for metropolitan Edmonton in 2001 the total recreation space required within a one hour drive would be 80 000 acres.

2) Based on proposals, 1400 acres would be provided on the Cooking Lake study area.

3) The study committee of other areas within one hour drive of Edmonton (with the exception of Elk Island Park) was not considered. [illegible] the recreational development.

4) The proposed land acquisition [illegible] Department of Environment has not been [illegible] with the Department of Recreation, Parks and Wildlife.

5) Approximately 1/3 of the land [illegible] for water based recreation activities. The [illegible] that the water quality of the lakes will not be improved by the acquisition of lakes was stated many times by the request of Mr. Stanley and Associates, and this fact has been accepted by the Department of Environment. There exists proof from the past that people have [illegible] use of private [illegible] lakes because of poor water quality. It appears that a large [illegible] of being made [illegible] people will change their past habits as far as water based recreation is concerned in the Cooking Lake area.

The large wildlife in this area has been doing very well without government supervision in the past. Part of the land is required "to initiate a wildlife corridor zone linking the two major wildlife preserves (the Blackfoot Grazing Reserve and the Minnisik Lake area)." If the Department of Environment would take the time to speak to residents of the area, they would realize this movement of wildlife that has been going on for years. Much of this area is still farmed, which provides an existing corridor for large game. Installing a tunnel below the highway and expecting animals to use it, is beyond belief for there is not a fence in the area that would contain them. It is also suggested that corridor zones be established to allow movement between the various recreational areas. Residents of the area are too well aware of the problems that automobiles cause in the winter. The Minnitik Sanctuary with its vast open spaces and large forested areas would be an ideal area for the winter grazing of wildlife. However the area is also very attractive to skidoos and because of their presence the wildlife has scattered throughout the countryside damaging farmers fences and separating whatever herds are present. With the further installation of corridors, ranchers expect that the separation of wildlife which definitely runs contrary to the stated objectives of the Department of Environment. That is the preservation of wildlife in its natural environment.

If the people in the area could have proposed zoning regulations spelled out to them in more detail you would find they would be in favor of the principle behind many of them. We are still living in an untamed area of the country here. The encroachment of subdivision is declining if because the local county of Strathcona will bend any zoning bylaws that they have set to suit their feelings for the individual or the area. Fifty per cent of the area north and west of Cooking Lake is in stages of subdivision. Let this practice continue and section that area off from the wildlife sensitive areas to allow the continuation of present farming practices.

Many of the stated objectives of the various reports contained in the six volumes of the study would most approval from the residents of the area these primarily would be:

(1) The preservation of the unique characteristics of the area.

(2) Halting the fragmentation of good farm land.

(3) Allowing the area to remain a good habitat for wildlife and water fowl.

Certain zoning restrictions would have to be enforced to carry out these objectives. However, "restrictive zoning is a concern to farm groups because of possible inhibitions of certain agricultural activities, and the sale of their land upon retirement."

The proposed zoning restrictions are based on the study area providing over 60 percent of the recreational area that would theoretically be required for metropolitan Edmonton. If no land is purchased, the present government land in the area will provide 44 percent of the recreational area required according to NRPA standards. The very volume of land that is suggested should be re-examined closely, along with full consideration of how fully it would be used, in comparison with other, more attractive areas presently in existence in the Edmonton regional area. Each of the people making reports are very careful to state:

"The data were not checked for accuracy and the recommended land users not evaluated for feasibility. Any discrepancies in these will have been transferred to the results of the study."

Visitations were based on 100 percent useage of recreational facilities on weekends and statutory holidays and 10 percent useage during other days of the season.

If this information is erroneous then the values which have been calculated will also be erroneous.

In conclusion, the residents of the moraine area:

1) Do not want to continue the loss of farm land to subdivision or unfair zoning.

2) Do not want to lose the right to sell their land at market value in one parcel upon retirement.

3) Want to see the continuation of wildlife in the area in their present natural environment.

It is stated in the Formulation of Management Alternatives Report that "the final decision respecting the study is political."

Let us not make a hasty, expensive political decision gentlemen.

Respectfully yours
Douglas Heuchert,
Taxpayer

When using your fireplace, please remember that an extra supply of fresh air is essential. Otherwise, there's a possibility of depleting the supply of air to your gas appliances.

You can ensure a sufficient supply of air and avoid the possibility of a hazardous situation by opening a window when using the fireplace.

CLC's hoop teams split with Calgary

CLC's hoop teams gained a split in ACAC basketball on Saturday afternoon when they hosted SAIT of Calgary.

Vikettes had a fairly easy time of it and they defeated the Heliens 57-43 while SAIT's Trojans whipped the Vikings 86-46.

Both CLC teams will be playing ACAC contests tonight (Wednesday) in Red Deer against the Queens and Kings.

This coming weekend Grande Prairie will be in town for games on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Ladies' games start at one o'clock on both days while men's action will commence at three o'clock.

In Saturday's contest, Vikettes built up a 25-22 lead at the half way mark and added to their lead in the second half to go on to a 57-43 victory.

Magneson paced the Vikette attack as she hooped 14 points while Grafaas added 11 points. Bootiger and Rake each scored nine points while Stephen picked up eight points. Top scorers (four of them) for the losers had six points each.

A short-handed Viking team managed to hold SAIT to a close 51-41 margin after the first half only to wilt under the Calgary pressure and the visitors picked up a 96-46 triumph.

McArthur paced the winners with 15 points while Leminen added 17 points and Ireland picked up 13 points.

Maur of the Vikings was the game's top point-getter as he amassed 20 points while Johnson aided the cause with 16 points.

Kingman 4-H plans party

The Kingman 4-H Food Club met on Nov 14th.

We discussed ideas for our Christmas party, which will be held on Dec 12th at Amy Kringen's. We will make definite plans at our next meeting.

Holly Prasns gave a short talk on her summer vacation.

For a change, all the girls gave impromptu's, instead of just Lori Olson and Kathy Unfilled schedules.

After the meeting was adjourned, the girls split into three work groups. Unit two studied biscuits and pancakes. Uni three worked on egg cookery and breakfasts. Both Units also looked at the products they were told to make the previous week, which were: brownies for Unit two and cream puffs or coconut macaroons for Unit three.

The next meeting is at the school at 7.00 p m on November 28th.

Our Schools - the problem

by David A. Wilde
School Trustee
County of Beaver

Modern day society is showing more concern over educational problems than ever before

While travelling abroad last year, Dr. John Paterson the noted Educational Psychologist from Edmonton, observed at least two countries embroiled in controversy Britain had appointed a Royal Commission to look into all aspects of its educational system and the Brazilian legislature was forced to dissolve its governmental processes due to unresolved debate.

Here at home, many Canadian provinces are experiencing their own forms of difficulty The introduction of Bill 101 in Quebec was an attempt to legislate the teaching of English and French against the desires of its people Such acts of expediency often lead to civil disobedience and a lack of respect for a government and its institutions

The situation in Newfoundland is completely opposite to the government controlled system in Quebec This government of our newest province is totally unable to set on educational matters In fact it is considered politically unacceptable if an elected member criticizes the presence of its denominational school system Parents within the boundaries of Newfoundland do not have the luxury of sending their children to a public school system, but, must decide on a school that most closely resembles their own spiritual convictions

In the one hand we have a government that arbitrates school policy and on the other hand we have a government that is paralyzed to act for its people

In Alberta, we are fortunate to have a system that attempts to address itself to the needs of people that attempts to listen to the wishes of Albertans and that attempts to remain flexible despite self-interest groups that would have it develop their way

Admittedly, problems do exist, but when placed beside problems of others, do we really have that much to complain about"

The recently published "Southam Survey" overwhelmingly indicated that Canadians are more concerned about education than any other issue of national prominence Concern for education far outranked matters of Canadian unity, economic desparity, the energy crises and pollution of our environment Perhaps Canadians see education as a solution to all its problems.

Recently I attended the 71st annual convention of school trustees in Calgary

I was impressed by the precision and timing of the different events and I found very little difficulty identifying with the concerns expressed by eighty or more resolutions. However, I had to ask myself "was but what about our children"?

Perhaps Dr. Paterson displayed a part of our enigma when he told the story of a late night phone call from a friend. Apparently, the friend's neighbor was in the process of being assaulted by her own son The situation called for immediate action, and, on the way to the scene, the good doctor tried to remember everything he was taught about child psychology

The doctor arrived in time to find his friend and the police about to enter the home. After much deliberation they managed to calm the son, and surprisingly, he showed deep regret for what he had done.

Days later, the doctor began to wonder just how the situation had turned out. After much hesitation, he decided to phone the mother. "Oh! everything is just great," said the mother, in answer to his question, "my son was so kind and thoughtful after you left, that I decided to give him the keys to the car!"

(Note: Mr. Wilde is writing as an individual trustee and is not speaking on behalf of the County of Beaver School Committee, or any other school body.)

HOG PRICE OUTLOOK

Since Canada will be a net importer of hogs again this year and is expected to be a net importer again in 1978, although to a lesser degree, hog prices in this country will be determined by the U S price

Maurice Kraut, market analyst with Alberta Agriculture, says U S prospects for the fourth quarter of 1977 are for lower prices, quite possible dropping to the high $30 - level (Can dressed equivalent in U S dollars) Although prices could go as high as the low $40 - level, this possibility is contingent on a fairly large decrease in fourth quarter marketings, which is not likely to happen. The first half of 1978 should see a further decline in hog prices, reflecting the anticipated increase in U S marketings

"Canadian prices," says Mr Kraut, "will follow this downward trend, with the degree of price decline being mainly determined by the value of the Canadian dollar" Alberta price prospects for the fourth quarter are for an average in the $54 to $57 per hundredweight range, while Ontario prices are expected to be in the $58 to $62 per hundredweight range

According to Mr. Kraut, the first half of 1978 will see a further decline in prices "They may even go as low as the high $40 - level in Alberta," he says. The extent of the price decline will be determined by the extent and degree of hog production expansion that is now taking place in North America and upon the size of the North American beef production decline in 1978

It is anticipated that Canadian hog marketings in the fourth quarter will be up in 2-4 percent from 1976 Western Canada will be up 3-5 per cent, Eastern Canada up 3-5 per cent, and Alberta will be up 3-4 per cent. The first half of 1978 could see a further increase of 8-10 per cent in Canadian hog production

Current anticipation is that U S fourth quarter hog marketings could be down as much as 3-5 per cent from your earlier levels The indications for the first half of 1978 are for an 8-10 per cent increase in marketings

by John B Welsh

As the third session of the 18th Legislature prorogued on Thursday, November 18th and due to the time I was unable to provide, as my last weekly column, some legislation that was brought in the Assembly that would be informative to my constituents.

Bill 15 "The Planning Act 1977" received Royal Assent [illegible]

In each of the readings, second reading, Committee of the Whole, and third reading the Sacred opposition along with the lone N.D.P. voted against this Bill and had their [illegible]

They biggest argument was that it should be on the order paper and be dealt in the spring session.

Due to the fact that it appeared to be controversial, it was introduced last spring and the opportunity was given to the public to read and [illegible]

This was done and I, as well as most all members of the Legislative Assembly, did receive recommended changes from the constituents and before the final Act was brought for approval, there were nearly one hundred amendments.

It is worth mentioning that the Independent member who was a Sacred member and cabinet minister longer than other members spoke in favor of this Act. He stressed that when the previous Planning Act was introduced in the early 1950's it was introduced and made law within a few days. This definately shows what government is open and listens to the people. It is not a wonder that this Sacred veteran left Social Credit after all these years, went independent and now, was nominated as a Conservative candidate for the House of Commons.

Another piece of legislation which will be quite a concern to the constituents is Bill 104, "The Municipal Government Amendment Act 1977."

This Act will give the Executive Council the authority where land owned by the Crown and which has a common boundary with a municipality wherein that land is located, the Lieutenant Governor in Council may by order annex all or part of that land from the municipality. At present, the Local Authority Board decides and then makes recommendations to the Executive Council, but only the positive recommendations. The negative or rejections are acted by this Board. With this legislation, the Executive Council may act on its own.

After our government took office, one of our commitments was to decentralize government services, thereby providing balanced growth for centres outside of the metropolitan cities.

The Agriculture Development Corporation was located in Camrose, the Alberta Opportunity in Ponoka, the Milk Control Board in Wetaskiwin, the Disaster Services in St. Paul and numerous other services throughout the province.

In January, 1976, the Premier and the Minister of Environment jointly announced the largest project for the town of Vegreville, "The Environment Research Laboratory."

Due to the size and magnitude of this project, it was impossible to locate this within the town, as has been done with the other decentralizations and because of that, Minister Wm Yurko purchased 880 acres for this laboratory and this land is adjacent to the town.

The Minister made an agreement with the town of Vegreville to provide all utilities, water, streets, fire protection, police protection etc.

Then an application was made by the town to annex this property and the Local Authorities Board rejected the application.

This would mean that the government would not be able to carry out these people's programs and this is the reason for the legislation.

How unfair it would be if the town would expend tremendous amounts of money providing services and some other municipality would get the grants in lieu of taxes. This would force the town of Vegreville to increase taxes on their residents to pay for the services which they have agreed to provide to the Laboratory.

It is expected that when the laboratory is completed, that it will provide employment for [illegible]

The Research Laboratory will be a benefit not only for Vegreville, or the Vegreville constituents but will have an impact on all East Central Alberta.

Already governments from other provinces have shown an interest in this project, which will be a facility, not comparable to any place on the North American Continent.

On Wednesday, December 7th, at 8:00 p.m. the Vegreville Progressive Conservative Association will be holding their Annual Constituency meeting in the Mundare Recreation Centre.

The guest speaker for the evening will be the Honourable Dr. A. Warrack, Minister of Utilities and Telephones. I am sure that all members present will enjoy the address of the Minister, particularly at a time when energy consumption and costs seem to be such a concern.

Once the spring session will resume, I will again inform my constituents as to the proceedings in the Assembly and during this recess, I hope to be covering all areas of the constituency.

CONSUMER INFORMATION SAVING WARRANTIES

May products you buy come with a written warranty. Do you know where your warranties are?

Here's an idea: Find a large manila envelope and mark on the outside WARRANTIES. Put it in a safe place that's accessible. Then each time you buy something, staple the warranty to the sales slip and place them in the envelope. Then if something breaks down you will be able to tell quickly if it is still under warranty. And be able to prove it.

Some truths on pensions

The federal government finds itself in the unenviable position of being criticized by a report in commissioned on its civil service pension plan. Richard Galer reports Indications are the government will not back down without a fight. Centre of the storm is the unfinished Temenos Alexander Lid report on the federal plan At stake' will Ottawa prune its plan to bring it in line with private pensions benefits or force private plans to choose between beefing up their benefit levels and letting an expanded Canada Quebec Pension Plan take up the slack of weaknesses perceived in the private system? In any case, it is unlikely to agree to abandon indexing But some changes seem likely making early returnment loss of a financial bonanza the indexing of benefits before age 65, placing a cap of 10 percent on the annual increase in pen some pensions assured on the increase in the consumer price index, placing at least part of the plan's fund in the private money market. Those moves may be a sop to private sector critics, who are pushing strongly for more modest benefits for civil servants But they are opposed by the unions who have vowed to fight any changes and by the government's insistence on remaining a pacemaker for pension benefits The usual criticism of the plan is "It is just too damn rich," providing a pension benefit most private plans can't touch It has unlimited indexing of a generous basic pension, based on 2 percent of best six consecutive years salary for each year of service There are also survivor benefits and full pension payout on early retirement if the employee is age 55 with not less than 20 years of pensionable service

First half 1977

Profitability declines

A Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce survey indicates that the overall profitability of large Canadian non-financial corporations declined slightly in the first half of 1977 In the recent release of Canadian Business Conditions, the bank said "The real value of overall after tax profits fell by 19 9 per cent, 9 1 per cent and 1 8 per cent in the first halves of 1975, 1976 and 1977 from their levels in the same periods of the previous years "

Anti-inflation Board a total flop!

Some years ago an American broadcaster received a letter from a farmer who asked him the following question. I sell my wheat for $1.73 per bushel. While the wheat is converted into loaves of bread, I miss harvests in $1.84. Who is getting rich at my expense? The broadcaster found this an interesting question which deserved to be answered. He began his detective work tracing the income of grocery stores, bakeries, production and distribution of bread. His results, but not exclusive, indicate seemed to be making exorbitant profits and the profits being made suggested that the price of bread to the housewife should be about half what it was. He decided to research the matter again, and this time he considered the relationship of the government to the situation. I found out why the price of a loaf of bread is ten times what the farmer is paid. The reason is that there are 150 separate taxes on each loaf.

"At last I had uncovered the participant the person behind the high prices housewives were complaining about. His name is Uncle Sam. His accomplices are the 10 state governments which add one third to the price of a quart of milk. He pointed out that at that time gas would have cost 2 cents a gallon if it were not taxed.

The same observations could be applied to the Canadian scene. While driving up prices in all commodities especially those necessary to our existence like food and fuel the government pretends to be fighting inflation with edicts and price freezes. As the result income has not kept pace with inflation and their purchasing power has declined.

A Case of Bureaucratic Lunacy

The office of one of the Social Credit M.P.'s has received the following as an example of the elastic and unjust effects of bureaucracy. A husband and wife of his acquaintance have a monthly income of $225 derived from the Quebec Pension Plan and a company pension. They elect to spend about $80 each month for medicine. The couple asked the Department of Social Affairs for a drug allowance card but received only a negative. It was refused on the ground that they had more than $2,500 in the bank. This has been used to help the government pretends to be fighting inflation with edicts and price freezes. As the result income has not kept pace with inflation and their purchasing power has declined.

recently published the results of a study of the sharing of the revenue from the sale of gasoline consumers have done a good deal of justifiable grumbling about the rising price of this commodity which never declines. The big oil companies have come in for considerable criticism, much of it unjustified. However the study by the ADA shows that the biggest return from the sale of gasoline is going not to the producers but to the federal government. The breakdown is as follows on a gallon of gas sold at retail at the service station gets 7 cents the provincial government gets 19 cents the oil companies gets 27 cents and the federal government gets 11 cents

We have heard of a retailer in Ontario who offers his price as "38 cents a gallon plus tax." Hopefully his example will be followed elsewhere and people will realize what a colossal joke is involved in the government's posing as the defender of consumers against rapacious businessmen.

The Gatekeeper is concluding with rage by this time. And those are your claims for entering the Communist heaven" he spluttered.

Meekly the pupils and asked one more time. I thought my name might be on the tombstone. It's Karl Marx

Farm economy dips

Nobody in Western Canada has to be told the farm economy has been hit in the last couple of years, but figures provided recently by Agriculture Alberta show at least in part just how serious the drop-off was.

Using farm machinery sales as a basis, they point out there was a fairly consistent growth in new farm tractor sales from 1970 to 1975. Last year however, the growth faltered, and by year-end sales had dropped even below the 1975 level.

Worse, current estimates suggest this year's record will be a full fifth lower than last year's.

However, other interesting aspects came out of the study. At the turn of the decade, only two out of five new tractors sold were above one hundred horsepower, but by '75, nearly three out of five topped that figure. As recently as 1972, four-wheel-drive units didn't even rate a separate category in the study, but only three years later, in 1975, they formed one in every six sales. Probably the added horsepower and the four-wheel-drive factors go hand-in-hand, and the comparative figures almost bear out this new dimension in farm power.

It could be argued, of course, that the falling sales reflected the sale of more big units, which take longer to justify, but also do more work. Or it could be argued that falling sales reflect the fall-off in the farm economy, as input costs continue to rise, even though product prices are lucky to hold level. Despite a considerable level of prosperity on farms only a few years ago, it's taken exceptionally good management for the farmer to keep his head above water the last half dozen years, and as one remarked the other day, he can't see any area of the agricultural production picture that looks attractive for the next couple of years.

The credit side

A few weeks ago we commented on the fact that Treasury Branches and credit unions in Alberta have reached the billion dollar mark, adding the comment it probably has made a significant difference in the availability of financing in this province, as compared with other areas.

So it was interesting to have a local banker show charts pointing out that not only are the chartered banks plowing all their deposits from Alberta back into development within the province, but they're also channelling almost a full extra billion dollars from other areas into the business community here.

The point was made that the banks recognize Alberta as the hot spot in the Dominion right now, and they're making all that extra money available to keep the system heated up.

It's pretty marvelous for us here in Alberta at this time, but we couldn't help but think of all the years when we saw 'our' money going to other provinces, and felt neglected, or hard done by. It seems our time has come, at long last. Now, if only we can keep the lid on all this, and keep it boiling, but still under control

Report from Parliament Hill

by Don Mazankowski, M.P.

Parliament has been in session for over a month now, having started on October 18th when the Queen read the Speech from the Throne. This marked the first time Her Majesty has been present to open Parliament since 1957. The other major event to occur in this session was the introduction of televison into the House of Commons. Currently, complete live coverage is available only in the Ottawa area but service may be expanded in future to all regions. The way this session of Parliament has started certainly has created much interest among Canadians about the proceedings in the House of Commons.

Crises and scandals have rocked the government since day one. An unemployment rate unmatched since the Depression, the disastrous fall of the Canadian dollar, the continuation of high levels of inflation and the rise in the government's deficit, the stagnation of the economy, revelations of illegalities by the security service division of the RCMP, electronic bugs found in M.P.'s offices and so on, have all contributed to some lively action within the House.

In fact, the action has been too lively in the opinion of some people who have seen the House of Commons for the first time on TV.

It must be remembered though, that in the heat of debate tempers can be easily lost.

Parliament was always intended to be a place for debate, for give and take, and not just a place for M.P.'s to stand up and read speeches.

The fortunes of the Progressive Conservative Party have improved since the start of this new session. Television has given Canadians a better understanding of the role played by opposition parties and shown the government's difficulties in the daily question period.

The Progressive Conservative General Meeting was held in Quebec City from November 4 to 6 and showed further the new strength of the Party. The leadership of Joe Clark was overwhelmingly supported by the delegates as 93 1 per cent voted against the calling of a leadership campaign. It is interesting to note that at the last Liberal General Meeting, over 19 per cent of delegates expressed the wish for a new leader to replace Mr. Trudeau as compared to the 6 9 per cent who voted against Mr. Clark

As events progress in coming months in the House of Commons, I will endeavour, as in the past, to keep you informed through these Reports from Parliament Hill. Since the calling of a leadership campaign it is interesting to note that at the last Liberal General Meeting, over 19 per Secret Police?

What we are all witnessing with the "break-in" scandals being revealed in Quebec, are the death throes of the RCMP Security Service

It now seems inevitable that the scandal will be resolved by removing security and intelligence functions from the RCMP and that a "new" security service will be started.

"So what!" many may be tempted to say, wishing to understandable horror as more and more evidence of RCMP illegalities emerges and a hitherto highly-esteemed, reputable security service gets a Watergate taint.

One can make a plausible case for separating police and security functions Different techniques are required, different attitudes, different skills One must never, in a democracy, confuse dissent with subversion - whereas in totalitarian countries like the USSR they are synonymous

The 1969 Royal Commission on Security recommended such separation, but Trudeau couldn't because RCMP prestige was high Nevertheless warnings of FLQ violence and radical penetration of the separatist movement were ignored - until the Cross - Laporte kidnappings and murder the following year

The fear is that if (when) a "new" security force is created, Trudeau will control and dominate it

In other words, the cure could be worse than the disease, and instead of an independent RCMP Security Service we could end up with a "secret" police that would be a political overtone

None of us knows what revelations lie ahead But the RCMP's reputation is already in tatters Those who have tried for years to undermine and destroy the RCMP can now rejoice Trudeau and some of his Quebec cronies have stirred at the RCMP over the years, and obviously dislike them. Trudeau doesn't like anything he can't control absolutely, and the RCMP has always been too independent

No question the RCMP did wrong. Few are even interested in their reasons or explanations So it is with some dismay and considerable apprehensions that we watch the demise of the RCMP Security Service and the beginnings of what could be Trudeau's Secret Police

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — The case of the illegal acts committed by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in pursuit of their internal security duties pinpoints not only political difficulties for the government and the opposition, but also brings to light some very alarming changes in Canadian attitudes.

Not unnaturally, the Tories and the New Democrats made considerable collective political hay over the fact that the RCMP had been involved in theft, arson, and break ins. The difficulty which both faced in questioning the government on those incidents was the danger of appearing to be pounding the Mounties That is no no, because the RCMP in Canada is like motherhood to a large proportion of the population

I found it amazing that the government could seemingly get off the hook by declaring that it knew nothing of the illegal acts by the Mounties, and had acted as soon as it found out Whatever happened to the principle of ministerial responsibility?

Ministers are supposed to take the credit for good performance by civil servants in their departments, and conversely they are supposed to carry the can when their civil servants foul up We haven't seen that principle applied by the Trudeau Government in nearly 10 years In this case, if the PM and the solicitor general didn't know what was going on, they were close to being criminally irresponsible If they knew they weren't telling the truth Either side of the possibilities requires a resignation

The other aspect mentioned earlier, the change of Canadian standards, refers to the fact that Canadians in general don't seem too concerned over the fact that the RCMP broke the law I know of at least one senior high school seminar where the kids came up with the verdict that it was perfectly all right for police to break the law in catching the bad guys, or stopping subversion Now it's just one step from there to living in a police state, and one to 10 pounds

When you combine the new attitudes, government performance and the increasing tendency of our political leaders to keep things secret for political reasons rather than for national security, it doesn't speak too well for the future of democracy in Canada

Remember after Watergate on the U S Congress pushed through a tough Freedom of Information Act, even overruling a presidential veto"

We need more of that spirit in Canada, and it would be highly desirable to get such a law on the books without going through the same traumatic agony which we witnessed in the U S

Farm fish

"I wouldn't be without it" is the way Eldon Christensen, a retired farmer in the Magrath area, expresses his opinion of his farm fish pond

It has brought hours of satisfaction," he says, "to myself and my friends We have caught 3, 875 rainbow trout since I built the pond" Incidentally nobody who has fished in Mr Christensen's pond has ever been charged for the privilege

The pond has been built in 1967 at a cost of about $700. It covers approximately two and a half acres to 20 feet deep in the deepest part, and is kept full by water from a nearby irrigation ditch. About 10,000 rainbow trout, varying in length from two to four inches, have been put into the pond since it was built Mr Christensen gets the fish from various Canadian and American agents. The fish in the pond now range in size from one to 10 pounds

The bountiful supply of fresh water shrimp in the pond provide an excellent source of food for the trout According to Mr. Christensen, a 50-pound bag of fish feed lasts him about six months. He has installed an electrically-driven pond agitator which cost in the neighborhood of $40, to help keep a small area of the pond free of ice during the winter

It was quite difficult to catch the fish a year or so ago, but now they are ready caught "The secret of good fishing," Mr Christensen says, "is to have the pond slightly overstocked."

His three neighbors also have fish ponds, which in addition to giving them exciting recreational sport, provide them with many meals of tasty farm-raised trout

The Importance Of Real Faith In God

Matthew 6:33 "But, seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

You must never lightly dismiss or regard as unimportant the things that concern your spiritual welfare Our relationship to God is the most important factor of our life and it demands our first priority Impartial study, by many scholars, has clearly shown that the men and women who enjoyed the greatest success in life were those who had a firm faith in God and who recognized that the spiritual yearnings of their lives were of the utmost importance.

Physical development is indeed of great value and mental training is so essential for all of us, yet if we do not develop the spiritual part of our lives we will become lopsided in all our views and attitudes. Therefore give careful attention to the development of your spiritual life and you will have a well balanced, normal and effective life The way to do this according to Jesus Christ is, to always seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all other things will be added unto you.

THE WANDERERS — by Ingrid Rimland
With the brutal blinding and murder of Johann Klassen by the revolutionary Heinz Rauin, the peace-loving German Ukrainian farming colony is left leaderless. Threatened with extermination, they can only flee their century old villages and rich farmland.
Following in the wake of the retreating German army, the dwindling refugee group struggles across 1,000 kilometres in vicious winter to the crumbling shelter of a Germany suffering its own ravages. Barely surviving the crossfires of the battle for Berlin, the Mennonites finally realize their dreams of a permanent homeland in the untamed jungles of Paraguay.
Drawn from vivid personal experience and historical research, THE WANDERERS takes the reader into the grinding days of a modern struggle between those who want only to live and work in peace and those who fill not let them.

Tofield ski club organized

Forty-five skiers from Tofield and surrounding area have banded together to form a ski club.

John Bladen was named as temporary chairman of the yet unnamed club Mr Bladen had organized the meeting which was held last Wednesday in the library at the Tofield school.

The main objective in organizing the club is to have a place for skiers to meet, arrange trips, and plan more skiing than has been the case in the past. As well, the club could act as an educational vehicle for beginners and other local skiers, and possibly could work towards the development of an area ski trail.

Two films were shown at the meeting, one showing the life of ninety-five years of skiing by Herman Smith-Johansen, and the other about skiing in Norway.

The next meeting of the new club will be held in January. At that time, officials are hoping to have a display of ski equipment on hand.

In the meantime, officials will try and arrange a tour of facilities being used at Vermilion, with such a tour being hosted by the Vermilion Ski Club.

Other items of interest to area skiers will be handled at the January meeting which is to be called by the chairman.

Anyone interested in finding out additional information about the new ski club is asked to telephone John Bladen at 662-4646.

Recreation Report

by Colleen Walker
Program Supervisor

Our office would like to clarify an item entered in The Mercury last week. Our board edits minutes because of the fact that they are unapproved and certain items should not be publicized until committees are formed to discuss them.

Our meetings and minutes are open to the public.

SKI CLUB

A ski club was organized for the first time in Tofield. John Bladen is to be commended for a job that was more than well done. It takes people such as John that are interested in the Community and sport that are a real benefit to our area.

Be watching the columns for the next ski club meeting.

SENIOR CITIZEN TRIP

This Monday, 50 seniors of our Community headed for Edmonton on a "Christmas Shopping Spree". Fortunately the weather co-operated and we had a beautiful warm day.

Because we shopped at two malls, it was important everyone was on the bus at the scheduled time. I had imposed a $1.00 penalty for anyone arriving late back to the bus. I had hoped the drivers' would be treated with the many $1.00's, I would be collecting but, everyone arrived back on time to the drivers' disappointment.

I would like to thank the drivers, Jim Ingram and Vic Fairbairn, for taking the time to drive the group. It was appreciated.

The next outing will be the Ice Capades in January. Be watching this column for further details.

Santa plans Ryley visit

Santa Claus is coming to town.

With a cold wave sweeping through the area surrounding the North Pole, Santa Claus has decided to take a very short holiday and visit some children in the Ryley area on Saturday.

The jolly gentleman from the North Pole is inviting all Ryley children to be at the swimming pool on Saturday afternoon as he will visit at one o'clock, and he has arranged a good afternoon of fun for the children.

Children attending the pool will be able to swim free of charge and will be able to watch movies and, if they have been good, will get candy.

To make sure there are no accidents, Santa says that all children five years of age or under must be accompanied by an adult.

Santa's visit to Ryley is being sponsored by the Lions Club, Ryley Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, and the Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society.

First Aid tips

HIGH VOLTAGE ELECTRICAL INJURIES

May be fatal or cause severe burns.

Sudden muscle spasm may throw the casualty some distance causing further injuries such as broken bones.

Treat injuries in accordance to priorities - breathing, bleeding, shock, fractures, then others. Do not make a rescue attempt until cable or conductor is shut off and will remain out of service until the casualty is moved or treated on the spot. Insulating material such as dry wood or clothing is not protection against high voltages which can jump a considerable gap and cause flash burns immediately seek medical aid. Lightning may produce similar injuries to those of a high voltage electric current.

Confronting Your Faith

The Rev. L.R. Sogge who is the pastor of the Lutheran Churches in Kingman, Round Hill and Tofield is the writer of the following timely article for "Confronting Your Faith" a weekly column in The Mercury sponsored by the Tofield and District Ministerial Association.

There is an interesting article written by Richard L. Evans. See what you think about it.

Most of us would remember the story of Abe Lincoln's walking seven miles to return two cents he had overcharged a woman when he was a clerk in a store. How many of us today would walk a block to do the same thing?

And while thinking about this question, let's look at some others.

Is it all right to pad on an insurance claim so long as you don't get caught?

Is it all right to cheat on an examination to get a passing grade if you don't get caught?

Is it all right to borrow or take supplies and equipment for personal use from our place of employment? Is it less nervous to steal from a company than it is from another person?

What difference does it make to a big insurance company if I pad my claim? It's only a drop in the bucket to them, isn't it?

Who's going to get hurt if I cheat on an examination to get a passing grade? It isn't going to hurt the teacher or school, is it?

How would you like to have a doctor operate on you who had cheated his way through medical school?

How can it hurt a big company when I take something? Doesn't every employer figure on losing a certain amount through pilferage anyway?

Suppose it doesn't hurt the teacher or the school. The most important question is Will it hurt me? It hurts me to be dishonest. Honesty is its own reward.

Emerson said, "The world looks like a mathematical equation, which turn it how you will balances itself. It is impossible for a man to be cheated by anyone but himself."

We have to live with our selves. And a person who doesn't like himself, who isn't at peace with himself, isn't very comfortable to live with—not for himself or anyone else.

James Cockrell, a thoughtful writer on this subject wrote "What do we think of the person of any age or educational background who steals from the company which pays his wages, who participates in falsification of reports, the padding of claims, who participates in questionable transactions?

"Such a person is woefully immature as a human being. He is also cutting his own stupid throat. In an age when man is reaching for the stars, this person lives in the Dark Ages. This person is a skulking pickpocket, and worst of all, a cipher, a zero, a nothing."

These writers provide important food for thought, enforcing the straightforward word from the scriptures says: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Super Curling starts at two locales

The Super Curling League got underway last Wednesday night amid a sea of confusion and the addition of a new team in one division.

There was a mix-up over starting times (all games began at eight o'clock from now on), one team didn't want to curl in the assigned division, a new team joined, and a new schedule had to be drafted.

Zone Convenor Andy Hasberg of Tofield finally got everything straightened out and action commenced at Ryley and Daysland. Games will be played every Wednesday night in those two centers until the regular schedule has been completed.

The new entry accepted belongs to Armand Goubault of Ryley. His team will be curling in the Highway 14 Division. Viking's skip will be Doug Dobry. Zarski was moved from the Highway 14 Division to the Highway 13 Division, making the latter division into a seven-team group.

The top two teams in each division, at the end of the regular schedule, will meet in the playoffs, and will split the $700 entry fee paid by all of the teams.

The bottom two teams in each division at the end of the schedule will be dropped from the league for next season and their places will be taken by two new teams from the Zone.

Next Wednesday's (December 7th) games in Daysland will see Eckstrand playing against Zarski, while Enright meets Roose and Gibb goes up against Miller. Games in Ryley will have Schultz against Dobry, Thompson meets Kalawsky, and Albrecht will play Goubault.

In both divisions, each team will play each other one time. The main purpose in organizing the league was to provide good competition so that Zone champions would make a better showing in provincial playoffs.

Three of the six games played last Wednesday night in Daysland and Ryley had close results while three games were a bit one-sided.

In Daysland, Heck was forced into an extra end before he eked out a narrow 5-7 victory over Miller, while Gibb edged Enright 6-5 in another thriller. and Eckstrand had no trouble in dumping Roose 9-2.

Over in Ryley, Dobry was hard pressed before he stopped Kalawsky 8-6. Schultz stopped Albrecht 8-3 and Goubault whipped Thompson 11-4.

GIFTS FROM THE KITCHEN

Betty Barch D.H.E. at Stettler has many good ideas for Christmas gifts.

It seems there's always someone on your Christmas list who's difficult to shop for. Why not give them the best gift of all - a personally, homemade, delicious treat from your kitchen. Candies, cookies, fruitcake or squares would be much appreciated by an older person who doesn't bake for themselves, or a single person who doesn't feel its worthwhile to bake for one - or a working gal who just doesn't have time for fussy Christmas baking.

Give something just a little different this year like a jar of rhubarb jelly, some chutney, brandied fruit, homemade wine, or why not some sourdough starter with a few recipes to go along with it.

You can send your gifts in unusual jars, fancy mugs, containers of glass bowls. Tie with colored ribbons and tissue paper and a little imagination. A little jar of red currant jelly tied with a green ribbon couldn't be more Christmasy.

Another gift idea is a kitchen gadget along with a favorite recipe.

How about some fancy cookie cutters with your favorite sugar cookie recipe.

I've included a few recipes to try for gifts from your kitchen.

Cranberry Orange Relish
4 c. raw cranberries
2 oranges
3 or 4 apples
2 c. sugar

Chop cranberries, orange (with skins on) and apples (cored but not pared).

Combine with sugar and refrigerate.

Mint Macaroon Sauce
½ c. macaroons
2 tbsp. brown sugar
1 tsp. grated orange rind
½ c. orange juice
¼ c. chopped toasted almonds

Combine in saucepan and bring to boil. Simmer for 5 minutes. Serve hot on ice cream. (Can easily be packaged with instructions to reheat.)

Caramel Corn
One and one-third c. sugar
1 c. butter or margarine
½ c. light corn syrup
1 tsp. vanilla
8 c. popped corn
1 c. pecan halves, toasted
1 c. whole almonds, toasted

Combine sugar, butter and corn syrup. Boil, stirring constantly until mixture turns caramel color. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Pour syrup over popped corn and nuts on shallow baking dish. Separate into cluster with 2 forks. Tastes almost like Popcorch!

Potpourri

All Ron Damberger needed was the opportunity.

Ron Damberger is a good plumber. He learned his trade as a minor partner in the firm he now owns, Daysland Plumbing and Heating. Ron holds his papers in plumbing and pressure gas fitting. In addition he holds a diploma in business from the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology. Ron Damberger could see solid growth potential in the Daysland area, and made application to the Alberta Opportunity Company to construct a building on the main street that would house his shop, provide space for a retail plumbing store plus rental space to other related trades. The Alberta Opportunity Company could see solid growth potential in Ron Damberger - good at his trade, a good business and sufficiently committed to his community to hold elected office as town councillor.

Daysland Plumbing and Heating is expanding, providing new convenient services and in doing so is helping Daysland to grow and prosper.

Alberta Opportunity Company loans are available to Albertans who are unable to obtain business financing from the usual lending sources. That doesn't mean that getting a loan from Alberta Opportunity Company is easy, every application is closely scrutinized, and the business potential carefully evaluated.

However in many cases we can be a little more flexible than other lenders - and often that is all it takes to turn a good idea into a profitable opportunity.

FEEDLOT CATTLE GROWTH PROMOTANTS

The new feed additive, Rumensin, recently cleared for use in Canada by the federal health protection branch, improves feed efficiency in beef animals by over 10 per cent through improving the efficiency of the rumen.

According to Rene Goldel of Alberta Agriculture's animal industry division, Rumensin achieves this improved feed efficiency through changing the microbe population in the rumen, which in turn changes the proportion of fatty acids.

The billions of microbes in a beef animal's rumen break down plant fibres into sugars and then into acetic, butyric and propionic volatile fatty acids However, since some of the carbon and hydrogen atoms are wasted in the form of carbon dioxide and methane gases during the process of converting sugars to acetic and butyric acids, but not when they are converted to propionic acid, the aim is to change as many of the sugars as possible into propionic acid And this is exactly what Rumensin does

In a typical beef cattle feeding situation, the rumen bacteria convert about 60 per cent of the sugars into acetic acid, 16 per cent into butyric acid and 30 per cent into propionic acid When Rumensin is included in the diet, the proportion of acetic acid produced drops to 52 per cent, the proportion of butyric acid drops to about 8 per cent and the proportion of propionic acid increased to about 40 per cent The result is that the animals get more energy from each kilogram x 2 2 pounds of feed processed through the rumen. Since cattle will use only enough feed to satisfy their energy requirements, feed consumption will fall This means that they will gain at the same rate as cattle not being fed an additive, but they will do it on less feed

Research carried out in Europe, the United States and Canada shows that Rumensin works equally well in high roughage and high grain rations and with steers and heifers

The recommended feeding rate for Rumensin is 11 grams (about 0 4 ounces) per tonne (2 204 pounds) during the first 28 days of the feeding period and 33 grams (about 1 2 ounces) per tonne for the remainder of the feeding period

Other growth promotants include hormone implants and antibiotic feed additives

Hormone Implants

The hormone implants Synovex S for steers and Synovex H for heifers are an estrogenic compound that improves feed efficiency by 8 to 10 percent

Ralgro, also a hormone implant, is registered for use on steers heifers and suckling calves Response to this product is more variable than Synovex, but it usually improves feed efficiency by 6 to 7 per cent

Both Synovex and Ralgro should be re-implanted after 100 days but not within 60 to 65 days before the animals are to be slaughtered

Antibiotics

Antibiotics are used in swine and poultry rations to improve rate of gain and feed efficiency as well as to reduce mortality When fed to cattle, their greatest benefit is said to be a reduction in liver abscesses in animals being fed high grain rations However, there is considerable concern at the present time about the transfer to human beings of bacterial resistance to antibiotics

Mail deadlines

An expected Christmas mail load 16 percent over last year's in Canmore will be handled by existing post office staff with the addition of a few outside workers, Post Master Lloyd Day said Thursday

From past trends revealed by Day, the 1976 figure of 208,000 pieces of incoming letter type Christmas greetings is apparently all increase to 280,000 during the coming holiday season Outgoing letter type Christmas mail is also expected to increase accordingly, from 177,000 last year to 209,000 this Christmas With respect to parcel delivery in Canmore, Day estimated last year's figure of 7,200 will increase to approximately 8 600 The cities' "natural growth" was attributed for these increases

Since the statistics are based on a trend over a number of years, Day hesitated confirming this year's projection in light of the postal rate increase to 12 cents per sealed letter last January This, he said, may have a bearing on the number of Christmas greetings sent out

The present staff of 19 full time and eight part time will be complemented in the near future by several additional carriers, while the office staff may also be increased slightly When questioned on the capacity of the Canmore Post Office Day indicated the facility is more fortunate than others in having ample working space, and can be expected to serve the cities local mail population growth for the next five to ten years

December 13 approaches as the Christmas mail deadline for most destinations Day reported the Canmore public is good for getting the bulk of mail in by the deadline He detailed a system of standardization carried out by the federal departments' Quality Assurance section, which determines by means of marked mail which is constantly being received by the Canmore Post Office, what length of time is required for an item to reach a particular locality

The regular statutory Christmas holidays of December 25, 26 and 27 were also mentioned by the Post Master, during which time the local Post Office will be closed.

Cold turkey

Cold temperatures over the past few weeks may have been bitter for most humans but apparently did not hamper production by one hen turkey in the Meeting Creek area

A report by Stan Past on Monday morning revealed one egg had hatched in a nest which was said to have been found behind some parked machinery The hen turkey was alleged to have disappeared for some time during the fall days and was recently seen running around the farmyard

The nest eggs have since been removed to a more conducive atmosphere in the nearby barn

ANTI-INFLATION PROGRAM NOTICE

The Alberta Government announced on November 9, 1977 that it will not extend the Alberta Temporary Anti-Inflation Measures Act and the Alberta-Canada Anti-Inflation Agreement beyond their expiry date at the end of this year. (In October 1975, Alberta had agreed to apply the federal Anti-Inflation Act and national guidelines to the Province's public sector.)

The following public sector organizations and their employees will be among those affected by this decision not to extend the Province's participation in the federal anti-inflation program:

- departments, boards, agencies, and corporations of the province of government
- municipal governments, including cities, towns, villages, municipal districts, and counties
- after public bodies performing a function of government in the province, including school boards and school districts, public and separate, drainage districts, irrigation districts, hospital districts, health units, regional and municipal planning commissions, public libraries, police commissions, public transit systems, and public housing authorities
- universities, colleges, and institutes of technology
- hospitals and nursing homes.

Although this policy change takes effect December 31, 1977, not all Alberta public sector groups will be removed from anti-inflation controls at the same time. The dates of removal will in fact coincide with the end of guideline years, as defined by the federal anti-inflation regulations. Following are three examples:

- If the guideline year in the Alberta public sector is the same as the March 31, 1978 members of that group, their Alberta, the anti-inflation program, and that date. There new agreement or compensation plan effective April 1, 1978 will be subject to the federal anti-inflation guidelines for the next twelve months.
- If a public sector employer has a guideline year that ends on December 31, 1977, the parties involved are subject to the anti-inflation program until December 31, 1978.
- If a public sector employer has a guideline year that ends on September 30, 1977, the parties involved are subject to the anti-inflation program until September 30, 1978.

This provincial government decision does not apply to private sector employers and employees in Alberta.

Confronting Your Faith

CHRISTMAS VACANCY!

This week's "Confronting Your Faith" column explores the meaning of Christmas for us in our everyday lives. Rev J.M. Schmidt, pastor of the Tofield Gospel Church has written the message

A Christmas shopper came upon a card which contained a scripture verse referring to the birth of Christ, and was heard to indignantly protest, "And now they are even dragging religion into Christmas."

It is this kind of bias and prejudice that indicates that there is a real ignorance as to the true meaning and significance of Christmas. The growing flood of commercialism, secularism and liberalism have all but succeeded in crowding Christ out of His own birthday. While the cost of Christmas is continually increasing, the knowledge and joy over the Christmas event is subsequently decreasing. Room and place is made for everything, everyone, everywhere, including the mythical Santa, but Christ whose birthday we celebrate finds little or no room in the hearts and lives of so many people He came to save. This discrepancy gives rise to the consideration of several related questions.

What is the REASON for Christ lacking room in Christmas? As on the day of his birth, so today, SEASONAL CONGESTION crowds Christ out of Christmas. Our frantic shopping, our frenzied travelling, and our visiting and merry-making, leave no time to observe the star of Bethlehem. Our business with peripheral things leaves no room for Christ.

Another contributing factor is SPIRITUAL CONFUSION. The people of Bethlehem lacked accommodation for the Lord because they lacked information about him. "He came to his own and his own received him not", for they did not recognize him. Lack of knowing Christ as the Messiah, the Redeemer, and personal Saviour, leaves no room for the Son of God.

Furthermore, there was also SOCIAL CORRUPTION. The people of Bethlehem were taken up with themselves. They lacked insight or interest in the coming Lord. Except for a few shepherds, they knew not, they asked not, and cared not. Congestion, confusion, and corruption also characterize our society today, and we are in danger of letting these things crowd Christ out of our Christmas.

What is the REMEDY for lacking room for Christ? Christ is Himself, both the physician, as well as the remedy, for all our ills. "Thou shalt call his name Jesus, for He shall save his people from their sins." How can this be? We must WAIT and BELIEVE on Christ as Simeon did. "Simeon waited for the consolation of Israel".

We must WANT and ACCEPT Him, as the Wise Men and shepherds did. "Let us go even unto Bethlehem and see."

We must WORSHIP and ADORE Him as the Magi did. "They fell down and worshipped Him." Let us, this Christmas, make room for the Christchild in our celebrations, for Christ himself is the GIFT, the BLESSING and the JOY of Christmas

The annual meeting of the Crafts Centre was held on November 28th.

Glenn Ferguson, Theresa Regier and Barbara Allen were returned by acclamation to their respective offices for another year. Barbara Clarke replaces Kathryn Peterson as vice-president. President Glenn Ferguson's report showed a most successful and rewarding year. Theresa Regier's treasurer's report showed the centre in an excellent financial position.

It is hoped the weathernan will co-operate for the pre Christmas social and games afternoon at the centre on Saturday at 1.30 p.m.

Supper will be served at 6.30 p.m. A silver collection will be taken.

Bertha Lafontaine and Eva Davenport attended a sewing class of heavy duty machines in Edmonton on Wednesday afternoon. This has enabled them to operate the heavy duty machine at the Crafts Centre more easily.

Walter and Yvonne George of Edmonton visited Mrs M. George and Dolly Roddick, Wednesday evening, before their departure to Florida for the winter months.

Church and communion services were postponed Sunday evening at the United Church due to severe cold weather.

Children are busy these days preparing for the annual Christmas party, sponsored by the Ladies Club.

Recreation Report

by Colleen Walker
Program Supervisor

HAVE YOU EVER CONSIDERED SOCCER?

Noticed the rising costs of arenas operation? Did you know that it cost about $150 to outfit one boy in relatively good equipment to play the game? Are your ice times from getting harder to line with?

If the answers to the above are 'yes' then possibly you may wish to consider an alternative activity.

Soccer seems to be rapidly growing sport in this country and no wonder when you take a look at the costs.

Reality - an open field with goal posts. Equipment - a soccer ball, Jersey, socks, shorts and sneakers (Adidas) and $5.00.

You could probably outfit an entire soccer team for the cost of equipping one child for hockey.

The child involved in soccer would be able to develop in areas such as sportsmanship, just as much with soccer, as they would with hockey if the proceeding is true, why then, is hockey the almighty giant in this province and this country. I submit that perhaps we have been paying too much attention to the sport which has been overrated to us [illegible] commercial hockey and not enough attention to developing the child involved in the sport.

Lets look at an average recreation budget in Northeastern Alberta.

Of the total budgets for recreation, 90 percent of the budget goes for facility operation and about 10 percent for programs. Of the 90 percent going for facilities no less than 50 percent goes for arena operation (operating costs, staff, debt repayment, interest. Am I wrong? If so, I'd like to hear from you. I'm sure there are very few exceptions from my estimations

Why not consider other alternatives and soccer seems to be an excellent one as pointed out at the beginning of this article. It can even be played in the winter time!

THE CHRISTMAS TRADITION

I was reading a section on Christmas in a Better Homes and Gardens Cookbook which I thought you might enjoy.

Fellowship and sharing of food keynote Christmas celebrations around the world. The religious and spiritual significance of this Christian holiday shines throughout the season and is enhanced by foods and customs which have become an important part of family observances For many this significance is based on the heritage of a particular nationality or tradition.

In most homes Christmas celebrations last more than one day Preparations often begin in late November or early December when fruitcakes are baked and the fragrance of freshly baked cookies fills the air In many countries the holiday extends from Christmas Eve until January 6 - the Twelve Days of Christmas.

In Sweden the celebration starts on December 13, Saint Lucia's Day A daughter of the house, dressed in white and wearing a crown of lighted candles, begins the day by taking special bread or buns and coffee to her parents until every family member's before they rise. In some towns the Lucia girl also visits the needy Friends and neighbors exchange visits and hospitality during the day.

Many of the foods of the season originated in England. It was during Henry VIII's reign that fruitcakes and plum puddings were first served. By the seventeenth century mincemeat was being used in Christmas pie. Some of these were huge, weighing up to 100 pounds with a box shaped crust to represent the manger of the Christ Child Spices and fruits used in pies and puddings were considered reminders of the gifts of the Magi.

The custom of having a nativity scene in the home began in Italy St. Francis of Assisi celebrated Mass in the forest, while nearby, real people and live animals depicted the nativity The idea of repeating the setting in miniature spread and much of the home-to-house caroling on the friends included viewing the creche and sampling a rich, sweet holiday bread, filled with fruit and decorated with almonds.

In Mexico, the posada, a reenactment of Mary and Joseph's search for lodging, combines spiritual devotion, hospitality, and a treat for the children. Families form a procession and sing carols as they go from door to door seeking admittance in climaxed when the children, blindfolded, break the piñata, a decorated clay or paper-mache container filled with candy and trinkets

In some Germanic traditions, Belsnickel, a cranky character, watches children to make sure they are good every day until Christmas. If a child has been on his best behavior all day, he is rewarded the next morning by finding a little plate with a Christmas cookie placed on an outside kitchen window sill If he's been naughty the plate might be empty or contain a stone instead of a cookie.

For Good Children, You Might Try:

FRUITCAKE COOKIES

½ cup butter or margarine
¾ cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup evaporated milk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon ground allspice
Dash ground nutmeg
1 cup chopped mixed candied fruits and peels
½ cup chopped pecans
½ cup raisins

In mixer bowl cream butter and sugar till fluffy, beat in egg. Combine milk and lemon juice; gradually add to creamed mixture Reserve ¼ cup flour Sift remaining flour with soda, salt, and spices; stir into creamed mixture Mix reserved flour with fruits and pecans, blend into batter. Drop by teaspoon on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes Makes 6ll.

Thefts plague RCMP

Thefts continue to be a problem for the Tofield Detachment of the RCMP.

Bernard Vashil of Ed monton reported the loss of $6,000 worth of tools from Nor th American Road Con struction. The tools had been in a trailer tool shed which was located about three miles west of Lindbrook Store. The loss was discovered on November 30th.

A break, enter and theft at UFA in Holden was reported on Thursday. About $800 worth of stock was taken. Two Ed monton men have been ap prehended and will appear in court in Tofield on December 13th.

Oren Automotive in Tofield was entered on Monday with stock valued at $200 being taken. RCMP are in vestigating.

Doug Atwood of Edmonton reported the loss of a tape deck, clothes and garages when he returned to his vehicle, on Monday, after he had gone for help when his vehicle had broken down. His breakdown occurred on Highway 14, about one mile east of the Village of Ryley.

The CNR Police reported that someone had smashed a window on Train No. 2. This train was carrying passengers and was eastbound.

Three horses were found by Glen Hearn of Tofield RR2

Guides campout

On the weekend of Nov. 25, 26 and 27, a camp was held at Hastings Lake Hall for 13 Tofield Guides.

Mrs Ev Moore was the nurse, and three leaders were Mrs Sharon Moore, Mrs Joyce Pollock and Mrs Rose Marie Hallonquist.

The girls spent a good part of the weekend outside on a nature hike, playing games and supervising an out-door fire/hot meal.

Camp broke up Sunday after the Guide's Own religious service, and the handing out of badges and prizes.

Carol festival

The annual Christmas carol festival sponsored by the Tofield and Area Ministerial Association will be presented in the Tofield community hall on Sunday evening, Dec. 11th, at 7:30 p.m.

Seven local churches are participating in this year's concert, and the program will include choirs and other singing groups and readings of the Christmas story.

The annual festival has proven very popular with the public, with the hall nearly always packed and some people turned away for lack of room. The Ministerial Association sponsors the carol concert to help promote closer cooperation among the various churches, and last year also held an Easter sunrise service with interdenominational participation.

"OK, December 4 is the day. Tell me again how Unemployment Insurance qualifications are changing."

New legislation has changed some of the ground rules of our UI program.

Parliament has decided that people who live in areas of high unemployment will be given certain advantages over those who live where jobs are more plentiful.

Which means that, as of December 4, you'll need more insurable work weeks to qualify for Unemployment Insurance benefits.

"10 to 14 weeks, depending on where you live, right?"

Right again.

In regions of low unemployment, claimants will need up to 14 weeks of insurable employment to get UI benefits. This will only happen in places where it's easier to get and keep a job.

In regions of high unemployment, claimants will need as little as 10 weeks to qualify.

But until December 4, the entrance requirement remains at eight weeks wherever you live.

"How about the two week waiting period?"

No change. The basic two week waiting period remains the same everywhere.

And so do the rules on the waiting period when a claimant has left his or her job for no good reason or been fired for misconduct. In such cases, a claimant may have to wait up to eight weeks from when employment ends until benefits start.

Right now, we measure unemployment by dividing Canada into 16 economic regions. Later, in 1978, we will fine-tune the program to 54 regions so that UI will be even more closely related to the local labour market conditions.

Also, there's maternity, sickness and age 65 benefits.

Previously, sickness benefits were only payable during the first 39 weeks of the claim. Now they are payable at any time during the entire benefit period.

Maternity benefits of 15 weeks and the special one-time benefit (equal to three weeks' benefits) at age 65 remains the same.

The same people still pay for the program in the same proportions, and the types of employment insurable for UI remain the same, too.

And, as explained in the box below, you still go to the familiar locations for both UI offices and Canada Manpower Centres. Watch for changes in your area.

"Has the amount of the benefits changed?"

Absolutely not. The UI benefit rate stays at two-thirds of your average weekly insurable earnings.

The maximum is $147, less tax.

"Anything else I should know?"

The maximum time for which anyone may receive benefits has changed slightly. The old maximum was 51 weeks. Now it's 50 weeks.

But since September 11, the total number of weeks for which a claimant qualifies has more closely reflected the unemployment rate in his or her region.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission and the Department of Manpower and Immigration have become the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission. For a time, you'll still see our local offices identified as Unemployment Insurance offices or Canada Manpower Centres. When they're together in one location, they'll be called Canada Employment Centres.

THE TRUE MESSAGE OF CHRISTMAS

Luke 2 - 14 "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

It was Christmas day in 1863 but, there was very little happiness or joy anywhere in the land. The American Civil War was at its height and everywhere there was hatred, bitterness, anguish and suffering.

The great poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, along with all his fellow country men felt very keenly all the gloom and sorrow that surrounded them and the bitter hatred that had engulfed the entire country. It was a Christmas day that Longfellow sat down and wrote those immortal words that later became one of the best known Christmas hymns.

I hear the bells on Christmas day, their old familiar carols play

Then overcome by grief and despair caused by all the war and strife he wrote:

And in despair I bowed my head, there is no peace on earth I said

For hate is strong and mocks the song of peace on earth goodwill to men

Yet when he heard the bells peal out more loud and sweet the message of Christmas, the victory returned to him and once more he wrote.

"God is not dead, nor doth He sleep"

That is the message that we have to ring out in our troubled world.

"God is living, He cares. . . and He will help if you will only let Him"

IN MY FATHER'S HOUSE — Corrie ten Boom

At last, Corrie ten Boom shares with her readers that earlier part of her life that led up to The Hiding Place — a span of fifty years which constitutes a lifetime for most people, but for Corrie was only a beginning. He is an intimate look at the human side of one of the most outhentic Christian witnesses and the faith that has kept her going strong for eighty-plus years.

FOR FAMILIES ONLY — J. Allen Peterson

What if our boy was arrested? Can parents help a failing child? How is college affordable? What about abortion? Should I give my daughter the pill? How can we build family self-esteem? What is TM doing to our family?

A book where professional and layperson share answers that combine a spiritual, practical and common sense approach.

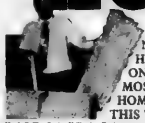
HUGH



HUGH COFFIN OF NORTHWESTERN UTILITIES HAS SOME TIPS ON HOW TO MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR HOME HEATING THIS WINTER.

Hugh Coffin, Senior Utilization Engineer

From the moment heat is generated in the home, it tries to escape to the colder air outside.

To prevent heat loss, make sure the insulation in your house is adequate. Insulation is sold by its thermal resistance or "R" value. The recommended rating for ceilings in northern Alberta houses is about R14. However, in new homes being financed under the National Housing Act, an R34 rating is required.

Also check the weather stripping in doors, windows and other heat-escape routes. But do not make your home completely airtight because a fresh air supply is necessary to allow gas burning appliances to operate safely and efficiently.

For more energy saving tips, pick up a copy of our pamphlet "CONFUSED ABOUT INSULATION?" at your nearest gas company office. If you have the will, we have the ways to help you use energy wisely.

500 attend Tofield Lodge opening

Tofield Lodge officially opened

Hon. William Yurko, right, minister of housing and public works, unfolds an Alberta flag for the new senior citizens' residence in Tofield, minutes after he unveiled the plaque at the left to officially open the residence. Accepting the flag on behalf of the residents of Tofield Lodge is Milo Stutzman, who will be 82 years of age in January and is yet very active.

by Grace Phillips

Nearly five hundred people took advantage of Sunday's mild weather to attend the official opening of the Tofield Lodge for Senior Citizens.

The main lounge, filled to capacity for the occasion was festive with Christmas decorations made by the residents, and by bouquets of flowers presented by the Bank of Montreal, the Tofield Lions' Club, Kay and Larry Olsen, Watson Tofield Ltd., Irma Francis, Stafford Foods, Freebury Clinic, Haveland's Funeral Home and Hastings' Lake Gardens.

All the residents of the lodge, as well as the invited platform guests were presented with corsages by Robin Berry on behalf of the Alberta Housing Corporation. The guest book was in charge of Evan Baergen.

Don Roth, after welcoming the guests and inviting them to join in O'Canada played by Myrna Baergen, introduced the platform guests.

Hon. W.J. Yurko, Minister of Housing and Public Works in the Alberta government brought greetings on behalf of Premier Lougheed to all whose work had brought the Lodge to completion. Mr Yurko felt that, at the Christmas season, it was especially appropriate that the Lodge should be tangible evidence of the importance Alberta mildly places on care for the elderly. He reminded the audience that the Provincial Government feels that the use of the Heritage Trust Fund for senior citizens' housing is particularly fitting as the work of these citizens is our heritage.

Dan Mazankowski, M.P. for Vegreville constituency said that he was pleased to be at the opening of the Lodge as this event is a milestone in the development of Tofield. Bringing greetings from Ottawa, Mr Mazankowski expressed the hope that more than one generation of Tofielders would find contentment, happiness and security in the Lodge. He presented the Lodge with a Canadian flag and a picture of the original John Diefenbaker farmhouse. The gifts were accepted by Milo Stutzman on behalf of all the residents.

Dr. Walter Buck, M.L.A., for Clover Bar constituency, after congratulating those responsible for the Lodge, recalled the efforts of two people who had initiated the idea of the Tofield Lodge the late Mrs. Petra Stauffer and Mayor Dr. W.H. Freebury. Dr Buck felt that the persistence of these two people in getting the attention of government officials was responsible to a large degree for the existence of the Lodge. In closing, Dr Buck promised the gift of a half-ton of barbwood for the Lodge fireplace.

Dr. W.H. Freebury, Mayor of Tofield, said he was pleased to represent the town on this occasion. He credited Mrs. Stauffer, James Ramsbottom and Mrs Bertha Phillips with helping to get a Lodge in Tofield. He felt that the efforts of this committee with whom he had worked were well repaid by the completion of this beautiful building.

George Knudsen, as Reeve of the County of Beaver, brought greetings and congratulations from the County. He expressed the wish that the Lodge residents would

Holden will request senior citizens' home

Council has not given up its desire to have a senior citizens' home constructed in the Village of Holden.

At a recent meeting council instructed its representative to the Beaver Foundation Board to ask the Board to reconsider Holden's applications to have a home for senior citizens built in the village.

At the same time, council told its representative to ask the other participating municipalities to review their positions and notify the Board if any changes occur.

Council decided to advertise in the local newspaper, to remind citizens that they are responsible for clearing snow from sidewalks.

The snow vehicle traffic control by-law was amended and a by-law was passed which called for the conversion of all traffic signs in the village to the metric system.

Named to serve on the Holden Recreation Board were Marvin Tomashevsky, Jos Fornal, Margaret Hallet, Dennis Cooper, Arthur Michlitch and Christine Mackay.

Council approved the proposed five-year master plan with the deletion of a small item on page 109 of the plan. The plan had been approved at a public meeting in November which had been called by the Holden Recreation Board.

A letter was received from the Holden Recreation Board urging council to complete projects which were listed in the five-year master plan.

Council agreed with the request and decided to contact the Board to seek recommendations.

Mayor Shybiera was authorized to formulate a general plan for the village, in consultation with the Provincial Planning Board.

Council decided to ask the Health Inspector to recommend ways to improve the quality of the village's water supply.

The municipal inspector's report was presented for council's consideration. After studying the report, council agreed that it should be presented at an annual ratepayers' meeting is held.

Insurance costs of $1,705 were paid with council agreeing to conduct a review of insurance policies. Councillor Mackay did not participate in any discussion on insurance.

Accounts in the amount of $12,462.13 were approved for payment.

Council was told that only one property owner had objected to proposed annexation at a meeting on December 7th. Council was told that a decision on annexation would be coming from the Local Authorities Board in about six weeks.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a village council meeting held on December 8th.

High Mortality Rate!

It had to be

Everyone knew there had to be a strike in the Post Office, only they didn't know what reason was going to be used. But it's Christmas so the delivery of mail had to be interrupted.

And so a handful of inside workers in one of the Toronto sorting stations chose to protest over a fancied infringement, when some part-time workers were working "too close" to one of the automatic sorters.

Officials feel there is nothing in the agreement specifying working distance, or even preventing part-timers from fully operating the machinery.

But it was something to fasten a complaint on, and that was enough. They might have filed a grievance, and continued working, letting due process settle the problem. But no . . . that wouldn't stir up enough action. It wouldn't promote an escalation of the difficulty, so the small knot of workers chose to draw more attention to themselves by going on a sit-down strike in protest. And when authorities properly refused to accept this behavior, and disciplined the men by suspension, a much larger number quit work in support of them.

The vote between those favoring broader strike and no strike action is relatively even, but one of the factors not commonly reported is that about six out of seven workers either didn't know about the vote, or didn't care enough about the problem to turn out to vote.

And that, to us, suggests the situation isn't nearly so tense as one might otherwise suspect. It suggests there isn't that much real dissatisfaction, or alternatively that, even if things aren't just what they might be, many of the workers feel this job is better than quitting and joining the unemployed.

And really, if there is little trouble finding replacements every time a job comes open, the job can't be all that bad. We know the Canadian public is getting heartily sick of being held up to ransom every few months by what seem like unreasonable demands, from apparently a relatively small segment of the group, and we'd be inclined to think the time is fast approaching for a showdown.

It's already been demonstrated that given a short time people will find alternative means of getting their messages through, and business has been especially concerned about developing options, just in case.

The people want their mail, but they also want to be certain when they mail something it will go through. When the job is so difficult that replacements can't be engaged, it's obvious changes have to be made. Until that time we hope the Post Office will hang in there and insist on the basic principle which has been violated.

We think the public would be with them, even if it means lengthy delays and circuitous other arrangements to get the "mail through."

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA – (SP) – Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau spoke to the cadets of Royal Military College Militaire Royal a few miles outside Montreal last month, as they entered the hallowed of the college 24 years ago. CMR is the flagship of the Canadian service colleges. Cadets are paid from the day they join the college, and after the completion of their course at the Royal Military College Kingston (one or two years at Royal Roads, Esquimalt, B.C. followed by two years at RMC in Kingston or three years at CMR at St. Jean, Quebec followed by two years at RMC.

St Jean is the college which turns out bilingual cadets. It was established primarily so that French-speaking officer cadets would have a place to go for three years, while learning English because it had been shown that cadets speaking French only had an extremely rough time at both RMC and Royal Roads. English speaking cadets bent on becoming bilingual are also accepted at St Jean.

When Mr Trudeau went there, he spoke to the cadets and said a few things which could be alarming to English speaking Canadians. The bilingual society of St. Jean, CMR was inspirational, said Mr Trudeau because it showed that a bilingual Canada was possible. Cadets at CMR take classes in their own language, then alternate between French and English day and day about, as the working language of the college. There are penalties for slipping into the wrong language.

Said the PM to the cadets:

You are the living proof that the ideal of a bilingual Canada is not an illusion but an immediate possibility, ready to spring forth from the minds of the nation. We are a bilingual society.

Now, get a move, Mr. Trudeau! CMR is such a demonstration. It merely shows that where you have a collection of young men of above average intellect and they are commuted to learning a second language they can do it given three years of close confinement and rigid discipline and the fact they are living with those who speak the language to be learned. That does not

Canada is made for bilingualism, however desirable it may be for Canadians to learn both French and English.

There will never come a time when all Canadians are bilingual but we must develop

Economists show cowmen facing five loss years

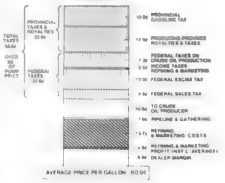
The Canadian Cattlemen's Association has recently released the results of a study showing that Canadian beef producers have lost somewhere between $400 and $500 million over the period 1973-1976 and that further heavy losses are anticipated in 1977.

Though both the feedlot and the cow-calf segment has lost money, the study shows that the major loss occurred in the cow-calf sector, approximately $300 million.

The study, conducted by the economic consulting firm of Broadwith, Hughes and Associates gives a detailed breakdown of revenue and cost levels in Eastern and Western cow-calf and feedlot sectors over the period 1970-1976. It shows the economic position of the cattle industry has declined sharply over the last three years with a tremendous loss of producer equity in the industry.

The Canadian Cattlemen's Association intends using the results of the study to demonstrate to governments and consumers the very real need for higher beef prices. They point out that not only is it essential for beef producers to start to cover their losses, but also prices must recover to the point that producers can start to buy back ownership of their operations from the various lending agencies that have carried them for the last few years. We will need a fairly prolonged period of prosperity to do this, says the organization. The industry is currently in a very weak economic condition and any action taken by government or consumers to try to hold beef prices at or near present levels will mean disaster for the beef industry and serious shortages of beef in the future.

PUMP PRICE
REGULAR GASOLINE
CAMROSE



Gasoline price – over half to government

Of the average price of 81.9 cents that Camrose district motorists pay for a gallon of regular gasoline, a total of 45.5 cents, or more than 56 per cent of the purchase price goes to government in taxes or royalties according to the Gulf Oil Canada price breakdown. The provinces take 22.9 cents in building the 100 cent Alberta gasoline tax plus 12.6 cents in taxes and royalties to the producing provinces. Federal taxes, including the 10 cent per gallon excise tax on gasoline, amount to 22.6 cents. After taxes and royalties a crude oil producer receives 10.6 cents, and 19 cents goes for gathering the oil. A refining and marketing company receives only about 13.7 cents out of which to meet all other expenses before realizing a profit of just over one-half cents per gallon (regular) on average. The dealer's share, varying with the retail price would be about 8.6 cents, from which he must meet all expenses and realize a profit. Gulf points out that three quarters of the crude oil price increases scheduled over the next year and a half will go to governments, with the oil industry share steadily decreasing.

Statistics credit the drinking drivers with 52 per cent of all auto accidents Is booze to be allowed to continue its practice of killing and crippling the young and old? Is it not time to re-think our positions, that is, if the brain is able to think after so many years of habitual intoxication

What has caused the mad binge we find the world on today? Certainly the evil and vice we behold is not the causative factor, rather, it is the result of an even greater sickness, God does not regard all sins as being of equal magnitude, there are degrees of guilt in His, as well as in man's estimation But however trifling this or that wrong act may seem in the eyes of man, no sin is small in the eyes of God Man's judgment is partial, imperfect, but God estimates all things as they really are The drunkard is despised and is told that his sin will exclude him from heaven Pride, selfishness, and covetousness too often go unrebuked but these are sins that are especially offensive to God, for they are contrary to the benevolence of His character, to that unselfish love which is the very atmosphere of the unfallen universe He who fails into some of the grosser sins may feel a sense of his shame and poverty and his need of the grace of Christ, but pride feels no need, so it closes the heart against Christ and the infinite blessings He came to give

If you see your sinfulness, do not wait to make yourself better Do you expect to become better through your own efforts? "Can the Ethiopean change his skin, or the Leopard his spots? Then may ye also do good that are accustomed to do evil." (Jeremiah 13 23) There is help for us only in God. We must not wait for stronger persuasions, for better opportunities, or for holier hours We can do nothing of ourselves We must come to Christ just as we are

Ken Eckstrand of Sedgewick and Doug Gibb of Killam share second place in the Highway 13 section with 2-1 records, while Les Zarski of Camrose is in fourth place with an even 1-1 mark

Tied for fifth place are Reg Enright of Camrose and Pat Miller of Strome with 1-2 records while Bob Rouse of Camrose is in last place after going winless in his first two outings

Couple celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr and Mrs Albert Sutton of Tofield celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an "open house" in the Community Centre on December 3rd.

A supper for the immediate family and relatives from a distance was held with a dance following, attended by many friends and neighbours.

Congratulations were received from Premier Peter Lougheed, Prime Minister, Pierre Trudeau, and Lieutenant-Governor, Ralph Steinhauer.

Other greetings were received from a granddaughter, her husband and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hans (Dianne) Zoeller and Sylvia of West Germany.

In attendance for the occasion was Albert's brother and wife, Tom and Ivan Sutton, along with a niece and nephew, George and Caroline Nanes, all of Toronto.

Other out of town guests attended from Calgary, Lacombe, Ponoka, Fort McMurray, Mayerthorpe and Camrose.

A beautiful cake was baked and decorated for the occasion by a daughter-in-law, Mrs Larry Sutton.

A most unique gift was presented to the happy couple from family members when they were given a "family tree" which was especially designed and drawn by an artist friend, Shelley Craigon.

Other gifts and many cards of congratulations were also received.

COUNTY OF BEAVER No. 9
School and School Bus
Operations during Storms

1. Schools in the County of Beaver will operate on all regular school days. Should school buses not operate due to hazardous road conditions, teachers, town pupils, and rural pupils who can be transported safely to school by their parents, will be expected to attend.
2. Should an over-night storm cause blocked roads or the serious danger of blocked roads, school bus runs will be cancelled. Radio station CFCW (Camrose) will broadcast messages, starting at 6:30 a.m., informing parents of the cancellation.
3. Should it be necessary to send pupils home by school bus at some time during the school day because of stormy conditions, these procedures will be followed:
   1) The Principal of the school has authority to send school buses home at any time during the school day.
   2) Radio station CFCW will broadcast messages that rural pupils are enroute home.
   3) Parents, school bus drivers and others who are informed on road conditions are asked to telephone the Principal, the County Councillor or the County Office at Ryley should they suspect that stormy conditions will block roads.
4. Road and weather conditions vary considerably throughout the County. For this reason, each school will operate independently under this procedure. It is possible that morning runs may be cancelled at some schools and not at others. Similarly, buses may be routed home during the school day at some schools and not at others.
5. Parents are reminded that it is their right to decide whether or not their children will get on the bus in the morning should conditions be stormy or hazardous.
6. Please be certain that all pupils are dressed adequately warm each day. A school bus can become stranded on any given day due to road conditions or mechanical breakdown.

Full crowd at carol festival

The Tofield Christmas Carol Festival, sponsored annually by the Tofield and Area Ministerial Association, received a capacity crowd at the community hall again this year, held on Sunday evening.

The Tofield School Band, directed by Everett Norris, started the program with three musical selections. Abe Poettker then led the congregation in singing two carols. Carl Hansen, chairman of the Ministerial Association, gave opening remarks and led in prayer.

Two girls from the Baptist Church sang two duets, followed by the Rose City Barbershop Quartet from Camrose. Leonard Sagga gave a scripture reading.

The Tofield Gospel Church Choir, directed by Abe Poettker, sang, followed by the Bardo Lutheran Church Choir under the direction of Leonard Sagga. Gail Fenhaug read "The Virgin's Story".

The Tofield Mennonite Ladies Choir, led by Betty Wiens, the St. Francis of Assisi Youth Choir, directed by Dorothy Sawchuck, and the United Church Senior Choir, directed by David Meeker, presented carols. Walter Lutz read "The Shepherd's Story".

The congregation joined in song, accompanied by the band. The Tofield Mennonite Church Choir, led by Rita Penner, and the Salem Mennonite Church Choir, led by James Boettger, with benedictions led by John Unruh.

The offering taken during the carol festival will be given to the Wycliff Bible Translators.

"Is it true I'd now have to work longer to collect Unemployment Insurance?"

Yes.

Parliament has decided that the qualification time should be longer everywhere, and that people who live in areas of high unemployment should be given certain advantages over those who live in areas where jobs are more plentiful.

Which means that you now need more insurable work weeks to qualify for Unemployment Insurance benefits.

"I can see why. But just how long would I have to work to be eligible?"

From 10 to 14 weeks, depending on where you live.

In regions of low unemployment, claimants need up to 14 weeks of insurable employment to get UI benefits. This will only happen in places where it's easier to get and keep a job.

In regions of high unemployment, claimants now need as little as 10 weeks to qualify.

"Does this mean I'd get less or that the payments wouldn't last as long?"

No change in payment amounts. The UI benefit rate stays at two-thirds of your average weekly insurable earnings.

The maximum is $147, less tax.

The maximum time for which anyone may receive benefits has changed slightly, however. The old maximum was 51 weeks. Now it's 50 weeks.

But since September 11, the total number of weeks for which a claimant qualifies has more closely reflected the unemployment rate in his or her region.

Right now, we measure unemployment by dividing Canada into 16 economic regions.

Later in 1978, we will fine-tune the program to 54 regions so that UI will be even more closely related to local labour market conditions.

"What else is changing about UI?"

Not much.

The basic two week waiting period remains the same everywhere. And so do the rules on the waiting period when a claimant has left his or her job for no good reason or been fired for misconduct. In such cases, a claimant may have to wait up to eight weeks from when employment ends until benefits start.

Then there's maternity, sickness and age 65 benefits.

Previously, sickness benefits were only payable during the first 39 weeks of the claim. Now they're payable at any time during the entire benefit period.

Maternity benefits of 15 weeks and the special one-time benefit (equal to three weeks' benefits) at age 65 remain the same.

The same people still pay for the program in the same proportions, and the types of employment insurable for UI remain the same, too.

"Would I still go to the same UI office to claim?"

As explained in the box below, you still go to the familiar locations for both UI offices and Canada Manpower Centres. Watch for changes in your area.

Unemployment Insurance has changed for everyone's benefit, including yours. All we ask is that you remember your obligations as well as your rights.

If the need should ever arise for you to come to us, we'll make sure you get all the UI benefits to which you are entitled by law. But you must keep up the search for a new job all the time you're getting those benefits.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission and the Department of Manpower and Immigration have become the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission. For a time, you'll still see our local offices identified as Unemployment Insurance offices or Canada Manpower Centres. When they're together in one location, they'll be called Canada Employment Centres.

Keep on moving in winter

Preventive maintenance can sustain the efficient and a few routine precautions operation of an automobile through even extreme cold.

A car should, first of all, be given a major tune-up. Next, a pre-test of the antifreeze will indicate any requirement for additional protection to the radiator and engine block. Wind chill factors regularly reach 25 to 35 degrees celsius and the antifreeze - water mix should be adequate for that temperature range.

Beginning the winter with a well-charged battery is essential. Car owners should also check water levels often to avoid the risk of dry cells or a frozen battery.

To further protect the battery, the terminals can be treated with a silicone spray. Clean the terminals first using steel wool or a wire brush, reconnect the cables to the terminals, and then treat with silicone spray. The silicone displaces water and will prevent condensation from accumulating on the terminals.

To eliminate water accumulation and freeze-up elsewhere, the silicone spray can be used on the distributor cap, spark plug wires, door locks and the lugs and lug nuts on each tire.

Standard emergency equipment - a flashlight, flares, a first aid kit, fire extinguisher and jumper cables - should be kept in the car as always. But in addition during the winter months the following items should be included: one or more blankets, a small snow shovel, extra gloves and boots, traction mats or a good substitute material, such as sand or kitty litter, and of course, a window scraper and snow brush.

Tires, as always, but particularly in snow, should have an absolute minimum tread depth of three and one-sixteenths of an inch. Even with snow tires, all four of the vehicle tires should be in excellent condition to safely negotiate any snow build up on roads.

The pre-Christmas social and games afternoon held on Saturday, was most successful despite a rather cool day.

Games were enjoyed by all in attendance.

While the turkey was being made ready, the Christmas table was a big attraction. This had many lovely handstuffed toys, table centres for Christmas and many other articles made by the ladies who attend the centre.

A carol sing song preceded supper with Grace by John Vandermeer.

The annual Christmas carol service will be held at the United Church on Christmas eve at 8.00 p.m. with Rev. Donald McCrae in charge.

Phyllis Davenport of Edmonton had two days to study before writing Christmas exams, so spent them with her parents, Joe and Eva and sisters, Lorraine and Doris. She also helped her Dad celebrate his birthday on Saturday.

Betty and Keith Williams spent four days in Winnipeg, returning on Sunday. This was Betty's first try at travelling by air.

ALL MEAT IS GOVERNMENT INSPECTED

Are you a Snowmobiler?

If so, you may not have a clear understanding of your rights to use the Eastern Slopes of Alberta.

On July 19, the Government approved a Policy for Resource Management of the Eastern Slopes. This policy clearly states that where incompatible uses exist, they will be phased out in the future. Off-highway vehicle use (including snowmobiles) will be phased out of the prime protection zone, one of eight zones which have been established. This is the zone of high elevation, environmentally sensitive mountainous landscape noted for its majestic scenery, watershed protection qualities and prime wildlife ranges.

In three other zones (critical wildlife, special use and general recreation) off-highway vehicle use will be restricted until more detailed management plans have been developed. These plans will identify suitable trails and other locations compatible with the principal purposes of these zones.

The public is requested:

— not to use snowmobiles in the prime protection zone

— to refrain from using snowmobiles in the critical wildlife, special use and general recreation zones except to gain entry to adjacent unrestricted zones.

Enforcement this winter will apply in Provincial Parks, including Kananaskis Park, Forest Recreation Areas and Kananaskis Country — a 2,000 square mile block west and south of Calgary.

Snowmobilers are reminded that the provisions of the Off-Highway Vehicle Act will continue to apply throughout the Province.

Snowmobiling trail networks ranging in difficulty from family to expert runs are being developed at Sibbald Flats and McLean Creek within Kananaskis Country. Facilities that include warm-up shelters, a first-aid shelter, group campfire pits, unloading ramps, public parking and toilet facilities are being provided.

Similar facilities to accommodate snowmobile enthusiasts will be provided in other locations throughout the Eastern Slopes.

The public is asked to honour the policies that have been developed for the Eastern Slopes. They were identified after careful evaluation of the physical environment, the existing resources, present land use and the demands and interests of Albertans. The policy for the Eastern Slopes has been designed by the Government of Alberta for effective land management to ensure the benefit and enjoyment of this magnificent area by all present and future Albertans.

Pamphlets are now being prepared on snowmobiling in the McLean Creek and Sibbald Flats areas. Copies will be available in January and may be obtained by contacting the nearest Alberta Forest Service office or the officers located in the two areas. Temporary maps are available from the Forest Land Use Branch — Alberta Forest Service, in Edmonton.

If you wish to know more about the policies that apply to the Eastern Slopes, return the following coupon to:

Trophy winners

Members of the staffs of Ryley and Holden Schools were joined by senior students recently to compete in volleyball competition for the Harold Parsons Trophy. After a number of matches, it was decided that the teams were so evenly matched, they should both be declared winners. Teams from Tofield and Viking were unable to attend. Mr. Parsons, a former teacher in Ryley, is fourth from the left in the back row

Ryley Rebekahs fete area seniors

On December 7th, Orvell Rebekah Lodge of Ryley hosted the 25th annual Christmas banquet and party for the Ryley and District senior citizens, in the Ryley Community Hall.

160 invitations were mailed to all persons 65 years and over and to the church ministers.

In spite of the bitterly cold weather for the event, seventy seniors were served plus lodge members and their husbands. The husbands very willingly ran "taxi" service to and from the affair so that no one need brave the cold.

Tables were festive with Christmas cloths and centerpieces. Drawing all eyes was a beautifully decorated fresh Christmas tree donated each year for the occasion by Mrs. Anna Kongsrud, a Rebekah member of forty years standing.

A warm friendly welcome was extended to all by the Noble Grand, Mrs Anne Crump. Grace was performed by the chaplain, Mrs Dorothy Clark

At the conclusion of the banquet, the tables were cleared and set up for a Christmas bingo with prizes donated by the Rebekahs Following this, while the Rebekahs finished the dishes, the seniors enjoyed friendly chats

Mrs. Evelyn Lyons and Mrs Ethel Pepper made large felt Christmas stockings which were filled to the top with goodies donated by each Rebekah members. Mrs Crump performed the draw with Mrs. Josephine Zenuk winning the ladys' and Lawrence Pearce winning the men's stockings.

The evening concluded with the singing of favorite Christmas carols

Mazankowski...

Renews call for wheat price hike

Late in November Don Mazankowski, M.P. for Vegreville, once again pressed Wheat Board Minister Otto Lang to raise the minimum price of wheat under the Two-Price Wheat Act. The Act provides for a minimum price of $5.25 and a maximum of $5.90 per bushel for wheat used for domestic human consumption. Last July, the Minister stated that discussions were being held with producer groups to determine the appropriate price level, however, no action has been taken to date

Mr. Mazankowski repeated his call once again for an upward adjustment to reflect increases in the cost of production. The Vegreville M.P. suggests the minimum price should be raised to at least $6.00 per bushel and that the price should be made retroactive to compensate for past losses.

Mr. Lang indicated the government should be in a position to announce a decision before the end of the year

BRTA busy with plans for 1978

Representatives from Camrose, Daysland Forestburg, Dunsdale, Lather, Wainwright, Killam, Sedgewick, Irma, Camrose and Bashaw attended the meeting of the Battle River Tourist Association held in the basement of the United Church at Daysland on Thursday, November 17.

Mayor Stan Lissack was on hand to greet the visitors on behalf of the Town of Daysland, and then President Bob Rutins of Provost herded the group through a wide range of topics that took about four hours of deliberations

The group passed final judgement on a "backlands" scene for a fifth year card to be made available through the association, authorized a third year contest for grade nine students attending school in the tourist zone, and ratified a recommendation of the executive to proceed with a joint project with Alberta Transportation to erect welcome signs where major highways cross into the zone, at estimated cost of $2,640

The members turned down an appeal from the River Boating Association of Alberta for a donation of $1,620, but referred an application from the Wetaskiwin Chamber of Commerce for a grant of $1,500 toward the cost of construction of their new information centre to the executive for consideration.

The members received an audio-visual presentation of the upcoming "Stamp Around Alberta" project, and approved a number of decisions that related to the participation of BRTA in this promotion.

Members agreed to again organize and information Centre Training Seminar next spring. The event will take place in Camrose on June 17, 1978.

Leon D'Albertanson of Wainwright presented a layout for the new zone map, and received the answers from the members to his various questions.

Len Dutton of Killam reported five more books had been added to the historical library since the Annual Meeting. Mrs. D. Robson of Camrose had donated two books . . . History of Ovre School District (Daysland) and the History of the Fyren School District (Strome). The Hillcrest Historical Society had sent us a copy of Prairie Echoes (dealing with Camrose, Metiskow and Hillcrest), and Ras Dutton of Vancouver had donated a copy of Historical Sites of Alberta. Mr. Dutton also reported that the reports presented at the Tenth Annual Meeting of B.R.T.A. had been bound into a book

The meeting also authorized that two more projects be investigated. One would involve the production of sets of slides of the Battle River Tourist Zone to be made available to members for sale to tourists, and the other would involve the production of T-shirts for the same reason

BRTA zone first with Welcome billboards

An idea that the Battle River Tourist Association has been attempting to get off the ground for four or five years will be in place by the end of May, 1978, as a result of action taken by the members at a meeting the November meeting of the association held in Daysland

The association has long felt that it would be a good idea to have signs erected on the primary highways leading in to the zone welcoming visitors to the region. Previous efforts involving resolutions to the Travel Industry Association of Alberta and Cabinet Presentation had to nothing but [illegible]

However, earlier in the year, it was decided to try and obtain the permission of the Minister of Highways to let Battle River Tourist Association put the signs up as a tourist zone project. A six or seven person delegation obtained an audience with Dr. Horner, and said him as "it's approach without too much difficulty

Subsequent visits with the department have resulted in the project becoming a joint operation

The signs will be large two post signs with metallic let tering on a brown background, and will read WELCOME BATTLE RIVER TOURIST ZONE. They will be constructed, erected and maintained by Alberta Transportation, and Battle River Tourist Association will pay for the cost of manufacture, estimated to be about $80 to $100

At the Daysland meeting, members ratified the recommendation of the executive to go ahead with the project, involving a total estimated cost of $2,640, for the thirty three signs required

Alberta Transportation estimates that the whole project (for this zone) can be completed and the signs erected by May 31 next year

Holden and district news

Mrs G H Taylor

Mrs Tillie Dunnick is back home after being a patient in Tofield Hospital for surgery, and is making a good recovery from her operation.

A Christmas carol sing song will be held in the Holden Lutheran Church tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. Anyone who likes to sing or hear the old favorites is welcome to attend.

Mr and Mrs Ole Fedoroo of Bruce were Sunday visitors with Mrs Frances Hanson and Clare Anderson.

Cecil Hooper has been a patient in the Dayaland Hospital for the past week, having tests and x rays.

Mr and Mrs Robert Taylor of Viking were Monday morning visitors with his parents, Mr and Mrs G H Taylor.

Mrs Wendy Sachy and little daughter Karra spent last week staying with her mother, Mrs Gwen Hooper, while Cecil was in the hospital.

On Thursday, December 22nd there will be a carol delight service at the Holden Lutheran Church.

Scotty Jack, who had been managing the N A D P Creamery the past week while Cecil was in the hospital, had the misfortune to have a bad fall early Saturday morning and broke his wrist. Cecil's brother, Milton Hooper, who was here from B C, drove him over to the Dayaland Hospital where he will remain for a few days.

Milton and Phyllis Hooper from Elkford, B C were visiting the past week with his mother, Mrs Mary Hooper. Cecil and Gwen Hooper and also with Phyllis's mother, Mrs Phena Evans at Viska Lodge in Viking also with her sister, Audrey Runyon at Viking.

Dr Bob Sheyk and wife Jeanette of Fort Saskat chewan have been receiving congratulations on the birth of their first child, a son Jonathan Anthony William born November 30th, weighing seven pounds ten ounces. A first grandchild for Helen and William Sheyk, and a great grandchild for Mrs Josie Markmaka.

Mrs Irene MacGregor was a visitor during the past week at Viska Lodge, calling on Lars Roland A L Gibson, Mrs Regher and Mrs Phena Evans.

Mrs Edna Spak (nee Edna Daily) of Fosaka passed away in the Lacombe General Hospital on Saturday, December 3rd at the age of 75 years.

Edna was a member of a pioneer farming family of the Holden district who settled here in the early 1900's.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, Dave, one son Dave of Fosaka, one daughter Margaret Beauty of Kamloops, B C, seven grandchildren, three great-grandchildren; and one brother, Orville Daily of R R 2, South Edmonton. The funeral service was held December 8th at the First Baptist Church at Fosaka with Rev W Larson officiating and interment was in the Forest Home Cemetery Fosaka. The Daily family were very active members of Holden United Church when they were residents here.

Several social events around Holden were put posed last week due to the severe cold and windy weather.

The Ladies of Holden Lutheran Ladies Aid held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon in the church parlours having their bible study before the business meeting with Mrs Irene Olson in charge. This was the Christmas meeting. A short business meeting was held with the minutes of the previous meeting read and approved, and correspondence and other business was dealt with. At the conclusion, a lunch and social hour was enjoyed.

Mr and Mrs Mary and two children arrived this week to spend three weeks around the holiday season with Linda's parents, Mr and Mrs Bruce Budd, also visiting with her brothers and families.

Harry Michlich from B.C. was here for a few days last week checking on his property and taking household goods back with him.

Holden Sea Cadets have 'big' weekend

Sea Cadets from R C S C C "Nootka" in Holden recently took part in a weekend citizenship tour in Edmonton.

Accommodation for the thirty-three cadets, their corps commander, Lt. D Cooper, and female supervisor, Mrs Greta Keith, was made available at Griesbach Barracks, and was arranged for by Sgt Simms of C F B Edmonton.

On Saturday, the cadets toured the Legislative Building, the Provincial Museum, and attended a show at the Planetarium. In the evening, a swim in the pool at Lancaster Park finished off the day's activities.

Sunday began with a workout at the Griesbach Gym. After lunch the event which was to be the highlight of the weekend took place. In groups of eleven the cadets were taken on board a Twin Otter for a flight from Namao east to Ryley, Holden and Viking and back to Namao.

Flight crew for the trip were Captain Kelly, Lt. B McIntosh, and Cpl. Krysluk, all members of the 440 Search and Rescue Squadron at C F B Edmonton.

The flight over the Ryley, Holden and Viking area was at a low enough altitude so that many of the cadets could recognize their homes.

As an added thrill, each cadet was allowed to take over the controls momentarily, under the watchful eye of the crew.

The tour coordinator was Lt. B McIntosh, who is Cadet Liason Officer for R C S C "Nootka".

Hon. W.J. Yurko then unveiled the government provided plaque and declared the Lodge officially open. He presented an Alberta flag to Mr. Stutzman who accepted it on behalf of the Lodge residents.

Mr. Stutzman expressed gratitude to the architect and builders of the Lodge for their good work which has provided a real home for its residents. He spoke of the excellent cheerful service given by all the workers in the Lodge, from manager J.B. Baergen, to "the man who rings the bell for dinner."

For both the physical and spiritual welfare provided in the Lodge, Mr. Stutzman was grateful.

The Story Of The Nativity

ST. LUKE, CHAPTER 2, 1-20

1 And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed
2 (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)
3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city
4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, (because he was of the house and lineage of David:)
5 To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child
6 And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.
7 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.
8 And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night.
9 And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were sore afraid.
10 And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.
11 For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.
12 And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.
13 And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,
14 Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.
15 And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.
16 And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.
17 And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.
18 And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.
19 But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.
20 And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA – (BP) – The economy has had a high inflation unemployment, a dropping Canadian dollar and massive mining layoffs has painted the government into a tight political corner which has been made only worse by the advent of rules soon in the House of Commons.

Some of the economic factors which have affected Canada so badly during the past year are undoubtedly the results of the unstable international situation in the Western trading block, but others are things which could and have been predicted and should have been predicted, so that they could be countered when the crisis came.

The horrendous rate of unemployment, for example, could have been expected by anyone who ceased over paying those steadily increasing education taxes which went to educate the post World War II baby boom kids. The kids are now on the job market, hunting unsuccessfully for work if government in Ottawa had spent less time playing with taxation levels to further the goal of income redistribution [illegible] ding with Canadian ideas as we'd have reserves in the nation's financial capacity to combat the jobless tragedy.

Instead when Finance Minister Jean Chretien came to adjust the budget provisions in his major speech in the opening debate of the third session of the 30th Parliament he had little room to move. We already had a deficit forecast at more than $8 billion for the fiscal year of 1977-78 and with the new measures Chretien announced in place, it looks like Ottawa could be up to $10 billion in the hole. That's deficit money on which you and I the taxpayer will have to pay interest.

Another example is the decentralization of the public service announced by the government this fall. It's going to cost $300 million to spread the civil service around in accordance with the government's blueprint. Decentralization of the federal civil service is an extremely worthwhile goal, but why in the name of heaven did the moves have to be with such partisan political interests in the forefront? Why did the Trudeau government wait until the unprecedented expansion of the public service allowed by the cabinet had reached a peak before decentralizing?

The moves should obviously have been made while growth was taking place, so that new departments could expand in [illegible]

Instead we saw the expansion take place in Ottawa then offices closed down to move existing units, upsetting individual lives, and costing us all a fortune in more wasted resources.

When it come to planning ahead, the economy and the interests of the Canadian taxpayer are definitely not high on the priority list of the Trudeau government.

Don Mazankowski's

Up-date on Ottawa

by Don Mazankowski, M.P.

In this report I would like to bring you up to date on a number of recent developments which have taken place in Ottawa.

First of all, the Railway Transport Committee of the Canadian Transport Commission has completed its review and upheld earlier decision to abandon rail passenger service on the Edmonton - Grande Centre and Edmonton - North Battleford lines. The reviews were conducted as a result of appeals made by myself and others after the original decisions were made last March. While these two passenger services will remain discontinued for the time being, both rulings made it clear that they could be reinstated if the projected growth and development in the regions were to create a significant increase in the demand for rail passenger service.

In another transportation development, the CTC has made a ruling which will permit the use of Wheatland Housing charter flights in Canada. For the first time airlines will be permitted to operate [illegible] Canada. However, the CTC decision [illegible] allowing only [illegible] improvements [illegible] subsidiaries and the [illegible] the passage [illegible] program. [illegible] Further [illegible] be given consideration [illegible] anniversary. [illegible] for 1978 [illegible] Northern [illegible] application [illegible] Although [illegible] by the CTC's ruling, [illegible] hearing. The cases which [illegible] of competitive [illegible] Canada Western has been [illegible] applications [illegible] from the [illegible] Air [illegible] summarized, the CTC's ruling [illegible] was possible step towards [illegible] better and more inexpensive air [illegible] for Canadians.

In the farming agriculture, the government has slashed [illegible] million out [illegible] which [illegible] have been spent under the Two Price Wheat Act. The government has been studying a possible increase in the price of domestic wheat used for human consumption for a considerable length of time. While a decision on a new price has been promised by the end of the year, this drastic reduction of funds does not bode well for an adequate increase being granted. It is interesting to note that just this week the federal cabinet was in Montreal announcing over $50 million in new federal spending programs for that city. Their so-called policy of restraint seems to be being fought solely on the backs of the Western farmers.

Also, in agriculture, it appears certain that payments from the Western Grain Stabilization Plan will be made next year to cover losses experienced by producers in the 1977 crop year. Questioning in the House of Commons revealed that no decision has been reached as to whether there will be a payment or how much it will be. However, low grain prices and the poorer quality of this year's harvest will almost surely accumulate a payout under the plan.

As a final note, the federal government has announced across the board increases in postal rates. A first class letter will cost 14 cents as of April 1, 1978 as opposed to the current 12 cents. Even with these higher rates, the Post Office will still run up a massive deficit in 1978.

Premier Lougheed's Christmas Message

Christmas time is a time for family, a time for loved ones and home, a time to share the many blessings that surround us here in this province and in our country Canada.

I sincerely hope that as many Albertans as possible will have the opportunity to share in the happiness and friendship that is always associated with this holiday season. But we must remember those among us for whom Christmas can be very lonely and difficult – those people who are separated from loved ones or those who suffer from poor health or those who are unable to afford the things that most of us take for granted as part of the festive celebrations.

When we list our many blessings as Canadians, let us not forget to count the freedoms we continue to enjoy. However, as a nation we must be realistic and be aware of the strains in our nation. All across Canada we must reassess our thinking toward this country of ours. We must recognize the cultural differences that exist and decide what changes can be made to make Canada a better and more united nation. We should though be confident that by working together and understanding one another better our nation will remain strong and united.

I ask that all citizens of Alberta join me in thoughtful prayer for past blessings and for future opportunities. May there be joyful peace for all of us each in our home here in this richly blessed land for now and for all the years to come.

On behalf of the Government of Alberta I sincerely welcome this opportunity to extend Season's Greetings to all.

Peter Lougheed

Topics will include the following:

Introduction of forage production.
Description of forages.
Adaption of forages.
Technology of forage production.
Handling of forage and nutrient conservation.
Silage.
Economics of forage production.

If there are some interested producers in the Acmella, Viking, Bruce, Holden, Ryley or Tofield areas, the district agriculturist will be prepared to [illegible] weekly study sessions to go over the lessons as a group. Highway 14 curlers face moment of truth

All decisions concerning the Highway 14 Division of the Super Curling League will be decided tonight (Wednesday) during games at Ryley.

The situation at a bit more relaxed in the Highway 13 Division as there will still be three more weeks of curling left on the regular schedule which could cause drastic changes in the standings.

Tonight's games in Ryley are the final contests in the Highway 14 schedule and the two playoff contenders will be determined. As well, the two teams at the bottom of the pile will be eliminated from league participation next season.

Calahoo moved into a tie for the lead along Highway 14 when he edged Schultz 11-9 to give the Tofield team its first loss in the schedule.

Only two points behind are Dairy and Albrecht who both won extra end victories last Wednesday to keep their playoff hopes alive.

Dairy edged Thompson 10-9 while Albrecht got by Kalawsky 7-6.

Thompson and Kalawsky are in the basement and are facing the possibility of not being allowed to compete next season.

In tonight's games, Thompson faces Albrecht while Kalawsky goes against Schultz, and Dairy will meet Calahoo.

Black recorded his second straight in three games as the Highway 13 Division when he stopped Rosse 7-4 in Daysland last Wednesday. The loss was the third straight for the Camrose team.

Eckstrand moved into a tie for top spot when he beat Gibb 8-5 while Miller moved up in the standings with an 11-7 victory over Zarski.

Because this division has seven teams, the regular schedule is longer and won't end until the first week of January.

Sliwa and Miller are tied for top spot with Miller having one less. Third place is shared by Gibb and Miller who have identical 2-2 records.

Tied for fifth place are Enright and Zarski sporting 1-3 marks while Rosse is winless in three starts, although he is not eliminated yet.

Tonight's (Wednesday) games in Daysland will see Zarski going against Enright, Heck meets Gibb, and Miller tangles with Rosse.

Standings in the two divisions are listed in Sports Shorts.

The top two teams from each division will advance to the playoffs, competing for prize money of $1,300 which comes from the entry fee paid by each team.

The league was organized by the Zone to give teams good competition to try and help them make a better showing when they leave the Zone to compete in provincial playoffs.

Expand power link in B.C., Alberta

Calgary Power Ltd. and B.C. Hydro have concluded an agreement under which the two organizations will work toward the installation of a 500,000 volt transmission line to interconnect the power systems of Alberta and British Columbia.

The new line will augment an existing 138,000 volt intertie and is proposed to be in service by 1983. It will make possible, greater mutual assistance in the event of emergencies or power failures in either province.

The Alberta portion of the new intertie is proposed to go from a Calgary area substation to a point on the Alberta - B.C. border north of the Crowsnest Pass. Calgary Power will conduct enquiries with the appropriate Alberta agencies and councils to assist the company in regard to the technical, environmental and social aspects of suggested route options.

Calgary Power will then be able to discuss with individuals and public interest groups the impact of the transmission line Calgary Power will after all the discussions are completed, file a formal application with the Energy Resources Conservation Board for their review and approval.

The 500,000 volt intertie is recognized by the Alberta Electric Utility Planning Council as an important link between the two provincial power networks.

The benefits of a high voltage interconnection between electric utility systems have been demonstrated in the past by B.C. Hydro intertie with utilities in the northwest of the United States. Large blocks of energy have been exchanged to meet emergencies or temporary shortages for consumers in both areas.

Jiffy Yule Logs

Have you ever made jiffy yule logs to give you holiday colored flames in your fireplace during the Christmas season?

Alberta Agriculture's district home economists in the home economics laboratory suggest that you use 3 pounds of coarse salt, 2 ounces each of one or all the coloring salts, strontium nitrate (red), calcium nitrate (yellow), calcium chloride (orange), potassium chloride (violet), borax (green) and copper sulphate (blue), 2 pounds of limestone and paraffin wax.

Combine the limestone, coarse salt and the desired coloring salts in a cardboard box such as an oatmeal carton. Then, using a wooden spoon, put a small part of the mixture into colored paper baking cups. Don't fill the cups more than ½ full. Melt the paraffin wax (old candle ends can be used) over hot water. Cool it to lukewarm, and pour a layer of about a quarter-of-an-inch thick over the contents in each cup. If the wax is too hot when you pour it into the cups, it will spoil their shape.

The above ingredients make about 90 jiffy yule logs.

An alternative way of making colored flames is to pour a small tin of soot remover (available from many hardware stores for cleaning chimneys) over the wood or coal in your fireplace.

Mrs. Barden entered the contest, "Breakthrough '77", at Crossroads I.G.A. in Viking.

Being practical

Let's be practical this winter. The Canadian Red Cross Society says you should, even when you are having fun.

Frozen water is deceptive. Unless the ice cover is more than four inches or 10 centimetres thick, don't even attempt to snowshoe, cross country ski or ice fish on it and leave the snowmobiles on land.

Weakened or broken ice means immersion in cold, cold water . . . one of the most profound shocks a body ever experiences. When this happens, even the Red Cross recommended positions the Heat Escape Lessening Posture (HELP) and the Huddle which increase by about 50 per cent the estimated survival time, can't absolutely guarantee survival.

The best guarantee for a safe accident and fatality free winter is the practice of preventive recreation. Learn all the do's and don ts of your winter sport activity. Learn how to handle an emergency save a life. It's your winter to use wisely.

Christmas is a "High Point" in the lives of many, but a "Low Point" in the lives of others. As children we look forward to Christmas Day. As parents we plan for it. As Young People - away on a job or off at school - we try to get home. What a day for family reunion. One of feasting, fellowship, fun. Some do add Worship and Christmas contemplation. It does add up to a "High Point."

Not all catch this high point. Disaster has struck many. Thousands of homes were recently swept away by Cyclone floods while we watched the "Grey Cup" Game. Unexpected reverses have taken others for a ride. They stand empty handed at Christmas. Tragedies, separations, and unexpected sorrows make Christmas a "Low Point" for so many.

Wise Men of old gave gifts to the Christ Child. Can we do the same? The Lord Jesus said "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me." Read St. Matthew 25:31-46.

We who celebrate a "High Point" season still have time to bring genuine Christmas cheer and loving concern to "Low Point" folk.

Canada and NATO

A visit to NATO Headquarters

An Alberta weekly publisher and former president of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association, H. George Meyer of Tofield recently accompanied a number of directors of the Canadian Community Newspapers Association on a tour of NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, as well as Canadian Forces Bases at Lahr and Baden-Soellingen in Germany. A report on his tour will appear in three parts in this newspaper during the next few weeks. The following is Part One.

Bittersweet memories, with some periods of snow was the weatherman's menu for a group of nine Canadian newspaper publishers and editors late in November as they made a tour of the headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels as well as the Canadian Forces Bases at Lahr and Baden-Soellingen in Germany.

While the weather was not what a visitor might choose the hospitality of our hosts the department of external affairs for the Brussels portion and the Canadian Armed Forces for the German visit was most warm and cordial and made up for the cold and damp of late Fall in Europe.

In Belgium, our tour guide was Frank Adam of the department of foreign affairs while our host was a gentleman who grew up in Calgary Sam Hanson. Sam's parents Dr and Mrs. Morris Hanson incidentally recently have moved to a farm in the Cayley area between Nanton and High River in Southern Alberta's Foothills country.

While we were to have spent two days in Brussels we were delayed one day in flying out of Ottawa and the series of lectures laid on for us were squeezed into a six-hour period. The lectures were so well done however that we had little trouble in absorbing most of the valuable information given us.

NATO was born of a necessity for Western countries to rally themselves against what was then considered a major threat from Russia and its European satellites. This was just four years after the end of the Second World War—in 1949. The situation then, as expressed by the then British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill in a telegram to then U.S. President Harry S. Truman, caused the former some anxiety. He asked Truman, "What will be the position in a year or two when the British and American armies have melted and the French have not yet been formed on any major scale and when Russia may choose to keep 200 or 300 divisions on active service?" He added another phrase part of which has since become a world fixture and commonly used metaphor. An iron curtain is drawn down upon their (Russia at front. We do not know what is going on behind.

Thus, 10 Western countries decided to form an alliance which was in the beginning purely defensive but during the mid-1950s a political side developed and this became more fully developed by the mid-1960s. While the alliance is still basically a defence alliance, it has developed in more recent years a sort of twin pillar political side of detente and political consultation. As detente developed in the late 1960's and early 1970s many agreements and events took place within NATO as well as involving NATO members.

While the Soviets are not as aggressive today as they were in the days of Stalin their long-term aims have not changed and the threat which brought about the establishment of NATO still exists. Until the Allies are certain that the Soviets intend to be friendly they cannot afford to dissolve NATO.

The United States is, by far NATO's largest financial contributor. Canada finds itself in some disfavor a few years ago with some NATO members when this country decided to cut back on its NATO commitment, having it felt to be hoped that Canada and Canadians will realize the importance of the alliance to the whole Western world as well as to Third World countries and that our country will once again be willing to weather the "political struggle" [illegible] peace.

[illegible] alliance, and since the 1950s this alliance has gone from defensive to offensive. Recent Soviet actions in Angola, plus a dramatic growth in the Russian navy have brought about a renewed interest among Western world countries in the welfare of NATO as well as added support.

The NATO countries have confidence in their own defence, and because of this NATO can meet with the Russians and can discourage aggressors militarily as well as politically.

The success of NATO to date can be measured quite simply. It has managed to keep the Soviets and satellites from aggression against the West and for 33 years this has been [illegible]

SASKATCHEWAN BOY—Among Canadians at the NATO headquarters in Brussels is Len Edwards of Meifort, Saskatchewan, at right. He is talking with a publisher from Whitewood, Saskatchewan, Joe Ashfield, who was among the nine representatives of Canadian weekly papers who visited in Brussels and Germany recently.

Pigs are well fed: Why not people?

J. Morris Saltzwy

A dietician in an agricultural institution in Western Canada was aghast when the potatoes supplied to the kitchen were a crappy, rotten mess. She addressed herself to the management saying "Feed them to pigs" The response was, "We can't - the pigs are on a own tweaked diet".

Beef and hogs for the super markets, chickens for Champs, German Shepherds for the R.C.M.P., fur bearing animals for the fashion dolls - all need own tweaked diets. But people who cares?

Well, Aggie Higgins cares. Aggie is a dietician who's been 25 years at the Memorial Dietary. For thirteen years she's been working with "pregnant women at risk" who attend the public clinics at the Royal Victoria Hospital. And she's proved the importance of good in "people production".

The girls she worked with had had numerous pregnancies. The education-level levels were low, they were in low income groups, they were underweight and vomiting. Many of these babies had been premature, immature defective and dead. With four public health nurses, working out of a "hole in the wall", Aggie counselled the ladies, provided basically an egg, an orange and a quart of milk each day and you guessed it - the girls delivered full term healthy babies. These babies that weigh in at 7½ to 8½ lbs. Aggie calls "Blue Ribbon Babies." Average cost $125.00 per pregnancy.

Fantastic, when you consider that the care of a defective child accumulated a burden of some $200,000 to the country - double that if you include the contributions he would have made to the G.N.P.

Aggie doesn't bonbonte them for what they are eating - or regale them with stories of amino acids and International Units of Vitamin D. She encourages them to consume with what they are eating and to ADD the egg, the orange and the milk. One of the problems is to make sure the mother gets the food supplement because she wants to give it to the kids at home. But the cooperation of the kids is seldom at issue - their mother gets it, because their new baby needs it now.

NOW! because the brain cells are formed during pregnancy and in the first ten months of life. After that the brain cells don't increase - so if the child is deprived now, it is far more devasting than serious malnourishment at any other time in his life.

It's nonsense to spend money on special teachers, smaller classrooms and special equipment for kids with learning disabilities - and deprive pregnant women of adequate nourishment. Underdeveloped countries are slowly realizing that the only way to provide native leadership is to feed their pregnant women properly. It's our only hope of breaking the poverty cycle.

You may not be a rat, but you'll be interested to know that experiments with rats show that malnutrition during pregnancy and in the early stages of life results in permanent mental damage. It is estimated brain cells are decreased by 15 percent if the mother is deprived during pregnancy, by 30 percent if the rat is deprived during infancy and by 60 percent if there is deprivation during both these stages of development. Proteins, like meat, milk, cheese, eggs, etc. make all the organs - not just brains, and the condition of eyes and ears, bones and teeth - the whole list are related to the prenatal and infant diet.

Although the prenatal diet and the food in the first year of life are ultimately important, food continues throughout our lives to influence strongly our daily ability to cope. Studies show that poor diet is related to accidents, dental cavities, depression, fatigue, crankily insensibleness, failing hair skin problems, academic failure.

In Canada over 1½ million adults are grossly obese, over 2 million adults have high blood cholesterol, over 1½ million people don't get enough iron, nearly 2 million children and teenagers don't get enough calcium, and 5 million don't get enough Vitamin C. And it's not just poverty groups that are in trouble.

Diabetes, anemia, and diseases come premature death and abnormal [illegible] Vitamin [illegible] 1 million dollars per year for hospitalization, medical dental care and loss of productivity.

"What to eat" is fairly simple, although nutrition and health people have tried to complicate it and confuse us. There are four groups: 1 Milk, 2. Meat, 3. Fruits and Vegetables and 4. Cereals and Bread. Get some of every group every day. I won't convince you - but try it for a week and you will convince yourself.

They say there's always room for one more pig at the trough. If you're skinny and tired, fat or miserable, if your head's thick or your teeth thin, or your eyes dim, maybe you could get in at the trough with these pigs and enjoy a controlled diet!

Water, sewer by-law is passed in Tofield

Water and sewer services in Tofield will be better regulated in the immediate future.

At the last regular meeting of town council, councillors gave three readings and passed an amended by law which regulates all water and sewer services in the town.

Council advised David Modde of the County School Committee that the committee should contact Provincial Planning so that all future plans for subdivisions in the town would be submitted to the school committee for comments.

Council also requested that the school committee install a gate on 56 Avenue near the fire hydrant to provide access to the school in case of fire.

Council tabled a request from the Tofield Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion which had sought tax relief. Councillors requested a copy of an audited financial report before acting on the request.

The town foreman was authorized to give approval for requests to remove snow from private property, if the requests do not interfere with normal work routines.

Approval was given for the payment of accounts amounting to $117,271.37.

Approval was given to the minutes of the previous meeting, with a minor amendment.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a meeting held on December 13th.

The next meeting of council is scheduled for January 8th.

Confronting Your Faith

Co-Pastor Carl Hansen of the Salem Mennonite Church brings this Christmas message to the readers of The Mercury.

The annual emergence of red Santas, twinkling lights, green trees, crowded stores and the sum total of all the cultural accretions of almost 2000 years of celebrating, remind us that this is the Advent season. Behind all of this debris of accumulated ancient customs lies the great historic EVENT which all of this was somehow intended to celebrate.

This event is more than the birth of a great man, even the greatest man John succinctly describes this event "And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us" John 1.14 Something much more than the birth of a baby happened here Paul tells us that the eternal God "emptied Himself, taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men. He humbled Himself and became obedient unto death" This Christmas we are really celebrating the indwelling of Deity, the self-humiliation of God.

But why do we celebrate this? What meaning does this event have for us today? It has much broader meaning than most of us realize.

In the first place, the "Word became flesh" in order to enlighten us about God, to help us understand who He is and what He expects of us. Try to imagine what our world might be like if God had not come in Jesus. Remove from our history and our culture all the influence of Jesus and subsequent Christianity. What kind of civilization might we have? What kind of religion?

Secondly, God "emptied Himself" and "humbled Himself" in order to impart His grace to us in Jesus. He provided and demonstrated His forgiveness of our many human failures and sins. He came to bring deliverance from spiritual and psychological bondages, and to bring healing and wholeness in our human personalities so that we can once more become all that God intended.

Finally, the "Word became flesh" so that all flesh might become "Word-in-deed." Jesus was born as the Son of God so that we all might become children of God. The same Holy Spirit that impregnated Mary is released to transform all of us into brothers and sisters of Jesus and children of God. In a real sense the incarnation goes on through the ages as God's Holy Spirit moves into people's lives and changes them. Again and again the Divine "Word" takes on human flesh and reveals God's character and God's way to live to the world among which God's children dwell.

This Advent season let us each remember and rejoice that long ago the "Word became flesh" for me. But let us also honestly ask, "Is the Divine Word being unfleshed in my life today?" So let it be!

Fatality-free Xmas is Dr. Horner's wish

Dr. Hugh M. Horner, deputy premier and minister of transportation, has a Christmas wish. It's a simple one: "No repeat of last year's Black Christmas when 14 traffic fatalities occurred in Alberta during the holiday season."

It was the worst record in recent years. In 1975 there were six deaths and the 1976 Christmas season was fatality-free.

"If wishes come true I wish for a repeat of the 1976 season with no fatalities," said Dr. Horner.

He pointed out that last year half the fatal accidents occurred in clear weather and only half occurred on snow-covered or icy roads.

"It's obvious that caution on the part of the road users at all times, in all types of weather is necessary if we are going to have a fatality-free holiday season this year," said Dr. Horner.

The Christmas holiday season, the period three days prior to and three days after December 25 ...

New highs in market for Indian crafts

Sales in Indian arts and crafts to retail stores from the Department's Central Marketing Service in April and May of this year reached an all-time high of $151,000, a marked increase of 26% over the same period last year.

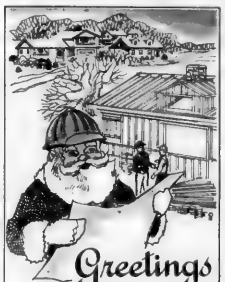
Sales of authentic Indian crafts by the Central Marketing Service in May alone were $100,000, representing a 43% increase over the previous year. Total sales in 1977 were $609,000, an increase of 40% over the previous year. The sales forecast for the year is $800,000 — almost double the volume sold two years ago.

This progress is a measurable indication of the growing awareness of fine Indian arts and crafts not only by Canadians but also on the part of many visitors to our country.

Central Marketing Service is an agency of the Department of Indian and Northern Affairs Economic Development Branch which acts as a wholesale market for Indian arts and crafts made in all parts of the nation. Indian arts and crafts reach a central warehouse in Ottawa in various ways. Here they are inspected, priced, stocked and re-sold to museums, galleries and retail outlets in Canada and abroad. To the individual craftsman the service offers a year-round market, at [illegible]

The Marketing Service works in close liaison with the National Indian Advisory Council on Indian Arts and Crafts which is represented by artists and crafts producers from every province and territory.

The increases in sales are partly the result of a publicity campaign which included the development of a special tag certifying the authenticity of Indian crafts. The Stretched Beaver Pelt Tag attached to every item sold through Central Marketing Service was designed as a guarantee to the consumer that each craft was made in Canada by Indian people.



Our blueprint for a Merry Christmas specifies lots of happiness to all. For your patronage, gratitude.

Solar energy heated house

Construction of a moderately priced, three bedroom family dwelling heated with solar energy, designed by the United States Department of Agriculture's Research Service (ARS) is nearing completion.

The report received by Alberta Agriculture says the completely insulated, [illegible] solar system in the solar collector and a 12 inch thick layer of crushed rock beneath the floor of the house serves as a heat storage tank. The house is conventional in other respects.

According to the U.S. report, the heating system is simple in design. Two layers of translucent fiberglass replace conventional roofing on the south roof slope and transmit sunshine or solar energy into the attic where it is absorbed by a black plywood sheet. This heats the air in the attic and the heated air is circulated to heat the house and the rocks beneath the house. The heated rocks can store a four-day supply of heat to warm the house at night and during cloudy or rainy weather.

The solar heated house was designed at the ARS Rural Housing Research Unit, and is part of the ARS effort to lower the operating costs of rural housing with a low-cost, low-maintenance heating system using solar radiation as the energy source. The report says such a heating system could be modified to match the demands of geographic and [illegible]

Sulphur key to thermal asphalt research to solve frost upheaval

Frost upheaval during the spring of the year which turns road bumps from "multi hills" into stunning monstrosities, has been a major concern to road builders and motorists alike since highways and by-ways were first constructed in this country.

But we may see a major break through in alleviating this problem if current research proves successful.

Researchers have discovered that by adding a natural gas by-product, sulphur, to the conventional road paving mix of asphalt and low density aggregate, a porous sand and gravel mixture, a thermal effect occurs. They believe its structural strength is unaffected by the sulphur additive and, most significantly, provides frost heave protection when full-depth paving of eight to 10 inches is used.

Research into thermal asphalt has been carried on for a number of years by the Sulphur Development Institute of Canada under the directorship of Dr. D.B. Moir.

"We plan to make a fully instrumented field trial installation of thermal asphalt in cooperation with the City of Calgary," said Dr. Moir.

Shell Canada is developing a low quality aggregate approach under the trade name "thermopave". By adding about 1.5 per cent sulphur, sand can be used in place of normal high quality aggregate to produce a road paving material of superior quality compared to conventional asphalt concrete.

Minor equipment modifications are needed to accommodate the sulphur additive. However, paver and truck modifications are required in order to handle this unique material.

Many tests have been conducted with thermopave. Salt-seep weather performance data is being evaluated from a trial made at Medicine Hat.

Another approach to reducing asphalt usage is to employ a combination of means for road paving. Present usage of asphalt costs approximately $70 to $90 per ton and the demand is taxing supplies.

By contrast, sulphur is relatively inexpensive and plentiful, especially in Alberta. For example, some natural gas fields contain as much as 35 percent sulphur content from the wellhead gas flow. The elemental sulphur is removed from "wet" or "sour" gas and evidence of this brilliant yellow colored by-product, which solidifies easily, can be found in massive sulphur storage blocks near gas processing plants.

In "Reduced Sulphur Usage", up to 40 percent of the asphalt is replaced by sulphur.

Paving materials of this system appear stronger than conventional asphalt and could reduce total material usage to lower costs or alternatively it could downgrade the aggregate. This process, utilizing standard paving procedures, except for the manufacture of the sulphur asphalt binder, requires no equipment modifications.

Gulf Research in Toronto is researching a process which utilizes 40 percent sulphur-and has conducted field trials in small centers in Alberta and Ontario through the cooperation of the respective provincial departments of highways. Varied formulations and concrete thicknesses have been used to develop performance data over a wide range of conditions.

Prosk Prosk of R.M. Hardy and Associates in Calgary is developing a sulphur asphalt paving system which also utilizes about 40 percent sulphur.

Mr. Prosk adds a small amount of emulsion stabilizer to the system at virtually no increase in cost," said Dr. Moir, "which might simplify the mixing preparations at the paving plant site."

Dr. Moir added "We feel the concept of sulphur-asphalt mixtures will eventually find broad application in road construction and we are confident that the process and performance data currently being generated will soon lead us to commercial utilization. The economics should be most attractive, but like most research projects it takes time to be fully explored."

Researchers in France are also working on reduced asphalt usage of approximately 30 percents. Tests from a two year experimental site in that country are reportedly encouraging.

Raise family allowances

There will be full escalation of Family Allowances for 1978 in accordance with the increase in the cost of living, Effective January, the federal government monthly allowances paid for children under 18 will rise to $25.68 from $23.80 in most provinces and in the territories.

The amount and method of payment of Family Allowances varies in Quebec and Alberta. Under a provision in the Family Allowances Act, a provincial government may ask the federal government to vary the rates payable in that province according to the age or number of children in a family, or both, providing the payments average $25.68. Quebec and Alberta have again chosen this option.

Special Allowances, which are paid to foster parents, welfare agencies, government departments and institutions maintaining children, will also increase to $25.68 from $23.80.

The Week Before Christmas

(Apologies to the original)

'T'was the week before Christmas
when all through the town,
Not a shop closed at six, not one up or down.
The windows were bright with after-hours glare,
In hopes that late shoppers soon would be there.

The children at home are all snug in their beds
With one question ringing aloud in their heads.
"Where's Daddy?" asks Mary
"He's down at the store."
"But Mommy, why doesn't Daddy come home anymore?"

"Mary, my child, he's one of those breed
Who stays open late because I was decreed
That shopkeepers should not spend any time
With family or friends in this season divine."

"Won't Daddy have Christmas?"
"The Chamber says not.
And our City Fathers went right out and got
A new closing by-law that says in effect,
That we won't see Daddy till his Christmas is wrecked.
He'll be tired and sore from those twelve hour days,
Waiting for shoppers who can't spend anyways.
For the hours are extended but their wallets are not,
And no one can spend what he hasn't got."

So Mary knelt down by her bedside to pray
Asking that Daddy could come home to stay.
And softly outside the carolers sing
But they can't be heard o'er the cash register's ring.

Cartons best protection for milk, tests reveal

Those familiar pay toward milk cartons serve the consumer better than the returnable three quart plastic jugs and disposable pouch packs, according to a study conducted by food scientists at the University of Guelph.

The findings of Dr. J.M. deMan and his group reveal that paper board cartons do a substantially superior job of acting as a light screen than do the other milk packaging systems.

His report showed that milk can rapidly lose its wholesome flavour and nutritive qualities when exposed to fluorescent lights in the dairy case of food outlets.

Milk packaged in clear pouches developed oxidized flavour in three hours and milk in returnable jugs showed off-flavour in six hours. Samples in paperboard cartons afforded complete protection and no oxidized flavour could be detected after 48 hours.

According to Dr deMan, "light is one of milk's greatest enemies, whether it be natural daylight or artificial light. Milk starts to lose its taste and flavour as soon as it is exposed to light."

Tests revealed a wide variation of nutritional losses in milk subjected to light, depending upon the container. Exposure to light for 48 hours resulted in almost complete loss of ascorbic acid in the clear pouch (87 percent), and the returnable jug (80 percent), but the paperboard carton (3 percent) was almost completely unaffected.

Dr. deMan stated that his tasting panel became so adept in their art that they were soon able to relate the off taste factor to almost the exact number of hours as which the samples were exposed to light. Consumers sometimes complain about a flavour development variously described as 'sun' and 'sweaty' when milk has been over exposed to light.

The University of Guelph study was concerned only with milk in three quart containers or packages, and the samples were pasteurized homogenized whole milk.

The Canadian findings were similar to those conducted earlier by the University of Michigan and Penn State University.

The flower of Christmas Eve

by Dr. Ulf Soehngen

Supervisor of Apiculture with Alberta Agriculture

A long time ago, when people had much more of the true Christmas spirit than they have today, a young boy lived alone on the outskirts of Mexico City.

It was the custom each Christmas Eve for the local inhabitants to gather at the great cathedral, where each would lay at the feet of the nativity one of his most prized possessions. Young and old, rich and poor alike, offered to the Christ Child that which he held most dear. Rumour had it that when the Saviour was specially pleased, he would set the great bells of the cathedral to ringing. But even the oldest man in the city could not remember an occasion when the bells had rung.

The boy was heartbroken for he had nothing to give. As he sat, crying bitterly, he scarcely noted that his tears were falling onto a small, insignificant green plant, the only plant that had been able to survive on this impoverished strip of ground. Exhausted, he fell into a deep sleep.

Several hours later he awoke to find growing at his feet a bright red flower more beautiful than any he had ever seen before. "This will be my offering," he said. Tenderly, ever so tenderly, he loosened the soil around the roots of the plant, and carried it to the cathedral. In view of the many rich gifts, he hardly dared to approach the nativity, but his love for the Christ Child overcame his fear, and he offered his gift. Suddenly there was a hush, and from far off in the high towers of the cathedral came the ringing of the great bells!

To this day, the poinsettia is known in Mexico as "La flor de la Nochebuena" — the flower of Christmas Eve!

Everybody's preparing for the big Day.
Hope it's merry in every way. Our thanks.

Melvin F.allstrom, when driving home from Camrose Tuesday evening of last week, had an unfortunate accident when a deer dashed out from the ditch into the car before he could stop, damaging the front of the car badly and hurting the deer. Luckily a car with Holden residents was behind him, driving him and Mrs. Ethel Brekstad home and Melvin went back with the tow truck to bring his car in. No one was injured in the collision.

The Friendship Group met for the regular monthly meeting on Dec. 15th at the home of Mrs. Beth Campbell, this being the Christmas meeting. Mrs. Vera Scott attended the meeting and acted as organist. The meeting was opened with singing a carol followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison and a short devotion was read. The minutes of the last meeting, held November 24th at the home of Mrs. Edith Carlson, were read and approved. The ladies were advised that a letter had been sent to Miss Sadie McLeod and Miss Blanche Pardoe congratulating them on their long service as missionaries. Cards were signed by all the ladies present to be sent to former members, Mrs. Carrie Olson, Mrs. Maud Carlins and Mrs. Sina McLennan. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ethel Brekstad with Mrs. G.H. Taylor in charge of devotions. A collection was taken up, the sum of $15.00, which is to be sent to the Bible House for their Christmas offering. A lunch and social hour was then enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Taylor and family of St. Albert were Saturday afternoon visitors with is parents, Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Taylor. Brian and family left on Tuesday to spend the Christmas and New Year's holiday season with his wife's parents, Professor and Mrs. Louie Orvien in Holland, and with other relatives.

Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple held their regular monthly meeting on December 13th with Hill. Ethel Fleming presiding. Correspondence was read and filed. Lady Helen Bilyk gave a report of the December Chamber of Commerce supper. Lady Anne Schwager reported that five ladies had attended the meeting of Irma Lodge on November 15th. The senior citizens' party which was to have been held December 8th was postponed due to the bad weather, and would be held some time in the new year. Lady Hunter reported on the Elks' installation of officers, and Lady Kay Chupka gave the Sunshine report.

It was also decided that to hold the Lodge birthday party as usual, in January, with a date set and a committee to arrange this was appointed. Lady Kay Chupka was presented with her 25-year pin by P.H.R.L. Hurum who had initiated her 25 years ago. The Memorial service was held as is the custom of the Lodge at the December meeting, paying tribute to departed members. The Lodge was closed and lunch and a social hour enjoyed, lunch hostesses being Ladies Mary Hardy and Kate Nichols. At this time, P.E.R. John Semotiuk attended and presented the members who had acted on the drill team, the R.R.L. and pianist with O.O.R.P. wings, a thank you from Holden Lodge B.P.O. Elks for their assistance at the installation of officers.

Mike A. Komarnisky was a visitor in Daysland last week, having a check-up at his doctor's.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carlson and son Jonathon will be spending Boxing Day with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carlson.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Budd were visiting at Provost over the weekend with Mae's mother, who has not been too well.

Santa Claus made his annual trip around Holden last Saturday afternoon giving Christmas goodies to the children and a number of children were given a ride around the streets in his sleigh.

Mrs. Betty Keith who has been staying for the past few weeks with her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Keith, left on the weekend for Calgary where she will spend the Christmas holiday with her daughter and family, Lauretta and Larry Thygesen.

Cecil and Gwen Hooper celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary on December 10th. They were over to Vegreville shopping and then drove on to Viking and visited with Gwen's mother, Mrs. Phena Evans in Vialta Lodge, with Mrs. Dumer Anderson playing the anniversary waltz for them and everyone offering them congratulations. They went to Sylvia's Dining-Lounge for supper where they were surprised with a small cake with one sparkling candle on it in their honor.

I would like to extend Christmas Greetings to all the staff at The Mercury and to readers of the Holden column.

"These gifts on this Christmas Day
For all the world the gift of peace,
May good will in each heart increase
That everywhere men may be free

As God intended them to be.
Leave happiness in larger store
Then folks have ever had before,
Make this a year we won't forget
The kindest warmest Christmas yet."

May the New Year, 1978 be a healthy and happy one for all readers.

Tourist Assoc. has five postcard choice

At the most recent regular meeting of the Battle River Tourist Association held in Daysland, the final decision on the scene to go on a fifth post card was made.

At the September meeting, members decided that of the various suggestions put forth, a scene of the "badlands" to be found throughout the course of the Battle River and its tributaries would be the most appropriate.

At the November meeting, seven such scenes were presented to the members, and they selected a particularly nice picture taken in Big Knife Provincial Park by Herb Zinger of Castor.

By January, drug stores and various other outlets throughout the tourist zone will be able to obtain a selection of five post cards through Battle River Tourist Association. These include a winter scene, a general view of the Battle River valley, a power boat on a still lake, a beach scene and now a picture of the "badlands".

Before the Battle River Tourist Association got into the act in this regard, almost the only post cards available in this part of Alberta depicted pictures taken in Banff or Jasper!!

Santa has a habit of conforming to the speediest and most up-to-date travelling conveyance of the age in his eagerness to deliver his presents down the chimney. According to old Christmas card pictures, the traditional Nordic deer-carriage was most frequently used, but Santa has also travelled on coaches, railway engines, cars, balloons, airplanes, submarines and rockets . . almost immediately after such was invented.

Thinking Slim

BY JEAN NIDETCH

A teacher from Arizona wrote me last week with a problem I'm sure many of you will relate to.

One of her joys, she said, is reading. Books, magazines, newspapers, even the labels on cans if there's nothing else available.

The teacher, who's 30 pounds overweight, decided recently to trim her body and give her spirits a lift by losing that weight.

So she chose a nutritionally sound weight control program, threw out all the cookies she had in the pantry, and began reeducating her eating habits.

"I do very well most of the time," she wrote. "But I'm finding it extremely difficult to get out of a habit I hadn't realized I had until I started on my weight control program. I'm afraid it's going to ruin my good efforts to lose weight and any advice you can offer to remedy it will be enormously appreciated.

Simply put, for years and years whenever she was at home, she read. And wherever she read! She was always nibbling on something as she turned page after page.

"I'm not going to stop reading," she wrote, "but I also don't want to sacrifice my weight control program. What can I do?"

Well, for one thing, you can analyze how and where you read. If, for example, you've been sitting down at the kitchen table with a magazine or a newspaper and a bowl of nuts, chances are you're still doing that. But the kitchen table, my friend, must have one function and one function only for you. That's where you eat your meals, and you must do it without reading.

In other words, wherever you've been doing your reading and eating together — change it! Surely there's another place that's just as well lighted, just as comfortable, one that's dissociated from the act of eating.

If your fingers are used to traveling to your mouth, keep them occupied with "worry beads" or a rubber band you can twist this way or that, until you've broken the habit of eating while you read.

It won't be easy to wean yourself from a habit so well ingrained but nothing worthwhile is easy. Still if you keep trying, you'll do it!

Life underground can be cheaper

Hot on the heels of solar-heated homes comes another proposal for cutting down residential energy needs - underground housing. Two University of Toronto civil engineers, Jean Claude Roegiers and John Timusk, say underground homes shouldn't be considered unusual because they have been around for centuries. And they could chop energy bills to almost nothing. "If you build a house deep enough in the ground, heat generated by the body and lighting could be enough, and in the summer there would be no need for air conditioning," Roegiers says. As well housing density could be increased since underground houses would touch without anyone noticing it. The technology is available and cost is competitive with conventional housing. A University of Houston study found that to construct a proposed campus building underground would cost $38 a square foot, vs $25 a square foot on the surface. Although the initial cost would be higher, at least until the techniques to build underground housing are refined, energy savings in the long run would more than offset this. Roegiers and Timusk have so far been unsuccessful in their quest for funds to construct a prototype underground home. It would be a luxurious $100,000 structure, heavily instrumented to monitor its energy performance. There is far more interest in underground buildings in the U.S., Roegiers says. At the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, for example, an underground library is being constructed. And the U.S. government is funding the construction of a completely underground village of 15-20 homes in Arizona.

Minstik news

Mrs. Jim Reddick

Your Minstik correspondent extends season's greetings to all members of The Mercury staff, fellow correspondents and all my faithful readers and friends far and near. My wishes are extended also into 1978.

The Ladies Club Christmas party was held at the hall on Wednesday afternoon, December 14th.

After a short business session, there was an exchange of gifts with Jean Ferguson acting as Santa. Each person gave a reading or some form of entertainment on receiving their gift.

A lovely dinner was served by hostesses, Joyce Bowerman, Eva Davenport, and Marie Fraser.

Six whist drives will be held in 1978, the first being on January 13th.

The annual meeting will be January 11th, with election of officers.

The Community League meeting for December was held Wednesday evening. No business was done. New officers take over their duties at the January meeting.

The annual Christmas concert was held at the hall on Friday evening. Some lovely items were put on by the children of the community. Each received a gift and a candy bag.

A lovely floral arrangement of flowers was presented to Mrs. Margaret George, by vice-president, Gladys Swabey, on behalf of the Ladies Club, in appreciation for 40 years of helping with Christmas concerts in the past. Lunch was served by the ladies of the club.

On Thursday evening the Fullonvale Jets defeated the Tofield Bantams 3-0 at the Fullonvale complex. Jeff Jacks, netminder for Fullonvale, was credited with the shutout.

A sort of 'Tis is making its rounds in this area these last days.

There will be no crafts centre meeting in December. The next one takes place on January 16, 1978. This is a December - January combined meeting.

Tourist Assoc. has five postcard choice

At the most recent regular meeting of the Battle River Tourist Association held in Daysland, the final decision on the scene to go on a fifth post card was made.

At the September meeting, members decided that of the various suggestions put forth, a scene of the "badlands" to be found throughout the course of the Battle River and its tributaries would be the most appropriate.

At the November meeting, seven such scenes were presented to the members, and they selected a particularly nice picture taken in Big Knife Provincial Park by Herb Zinger of Castor.

By January, drug stores and various other outlets throughout the tourist area will be able to obtain a selection of five post cards through Battle River Tourist Association. These include a winter scene, a general view of the Battle River valley, a power boat on a still lake, a beach scene and now a picture of the "badlands".

Before the Battle River Tourist Association got into the act in this regard, almost the only post cards available in this part of Alberta depicted pictures taken in Banff or Jasper!!

Santa has a habit of conforming to the speediest and most up-to-date travelling conveyance of the age in his eagerness to deliver his presents down the chimney. According to old Christmas card pictures, the traditional Nordic deer-carriage was most frequently used, but Santa has also travelled on coaches, railway engines, cars, balloons, airplanes, submarines and rockets . . . and with immediately after each was invented.

Thinking Slim
BY JEAN NIDETCH

A teacher from Arizona wrote me last week with a problem I'm sure many of you can appreciate.

One of her joys, she said, is reading. Books, magazines, newspapers, even the labels on cans if there's nothing else available.

The teacher, who's 30 pounds overweight, decided recently to trim her body and give her spirits a lift by losing that weight.

So she chose a nutritionally sound weight control program, threw out all the cookies she had in the pantry, and began reeducating her eating habits.

"I do very well most of the time," she wrote, "but I'm finding it extremely difficult to get out of a habit I hadn't realized I had until I started on my weight control program. I'm afraid it's going to ruin my good efforts to lose weight and any advice you can offer to remedy it will be enormously appreciated."

Simply put, for years and years whenever she was at home, she read. And wherever she read, she ate! She was always nibbling on something as she turned page after page.

"I'm not going to stop reading," she wrote, "but I also don't want to sacrifice my weight control program. What can I do?"

Well, for one thing, you can analyze how and where you read. If, for example, you've been sitting down at the kitchen table with a magazine or a newspaper and a bowl of nuts, chances are you're still doing that. But the kitchen table, my friend, must have one function and one function only for you. That's where you eat your meals, and you must do it without reading.

In other words, wherever you've been doing your reading and eating together — change it! Surely there's another place that's just as well lighted, just as comfortable, one that's dissociated from the act of eating.

If your fingers are used to traveling to your mouth, keep them occupied with "worry beads" or a rubber band you can twist this way or that, until you've broken the habit of eating while you read.

It won't be easy to wean yourself from a habit so well ingrained but nothing worthwhile is easy. Still if you keep trying, you'll do it!

Life underground can be cheaper

Hot on the heels of colour-bombed homes comes another proposal for cutting down residential energy needs — underground housing. Two University of Toronto civil engineers, Jean Claude Roegiers and John Timusk, say underground homes shouldn't be considered unusual because they have been around for centuries. And they could chop energy bills to almost nothing. "If you build a house deep enough in the ground, heat generated by the body and lighting could be enough, and in the summer there would be no need for air conditioning," Roegiers says. As well housing density could be increased since underground homes would touch without anyone noticing it. The technology is available and cost is competitive with conventional housing. A University of Houston study found that to construct a proposed campus building underground would cost $28 a square foot, vs $25 a square foot on the surface. Although the initial cost would be higher, at least until the techniques to build underground housing are refined, energy savings in the long run would more than offset this. Roegiers and Timusk have so far been unsuccessful in their quest for funds to construct a prototype underground home. It would be a luxurious $100,000 structure, heavily instrumented to monitor its energy performance. There is far more interest in underground buildings in the U.S., Roegiers says. At the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, for example, an underground library is being constructed. And the U.S. government is funding the construction of a completely underground village of 15-20 homes in Arizona.

Garden Club plans annual meet

Members of the Tofield Garden Club met Dec. 13 at the Anglican Church for their Christmas meeting.

Plans were made to attend the open house at Hanging Lake Gardens on Dec. 17th.

Money making projects undertaken by the club were discussed and it was decided to hold only one flea market in 1978. Other money making projects will be held when the need arises.

The members are planning a trip to Edmonton to tour the Conservatory on January 3rd, weather permitting.

They will travel via bus and plan to stop for supper at the Capilano Inn. Non-members are welcome to attend and anyone interested should contact Theresa Jones at 662-2182 or Yvonne Brown at 662-3651.

The January meeting is the annual meeting of the club and a nominating committee was appointed. Isabel Lee and Doris Brown will draw up a list of candidates for the offices to be filled.

Lunch was served by Marie Mitchell, Louise Kyle and Yvonne Brown.

The next meeting of the Garden Club will be held on Jan. 9th at the home of Doris Brown.

Beautiful, cold and dangerous

What is as anticipated in summer because certain death in winter.

It's a cold fact.

The Canadian winter is beautiful, cold and dangerous. Each year, many people die a cold death ice fishing, snowmobiling, winter camping, or even while on ex-ercises exercise hike.

The circumstances vary, but all the victims had one common enemy: the cold. The weather may be a relatively balmy 10 degrees Celsius, but cold can kill.

External cold all too often wins the terrifying battle between it and the retention of the delicate heat balance within the body. When it wins it is called hypothermia, the lowering of internal body temperatures. When the internal body temperature drops to less than 34 degrees Celsius, the result is death.

The Canadian Red Cross Society urges you to prepare yourself for this battle with the cold. Never fish, ski or snowmobile on ice less than four inches or 16 centimetres thick or near obstacles such as rocks, stumps and wharves which weaken ice.

Investigate the wind chill factor and the temperature expected before going outdoors then dress accordingly. Mittens are warmer than gloves and wool is still the best material of all because even when wet, it gives warmth. One third of all body heat is lost in the neck and head area, so cover up.

Fight frostbite by avoiding excessive use of alcohol, tobacco and drugs. And chew gum -- it helps face muscles stay flexible.

In a Canadian winter, the cold is expected. Prepare for it. It's your winter to use wisely.
